Churchill Pledges Private Enterprise Again in Industry

Conservative Leader Issues Manifesto for General Election, End of Class War

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Winston Churchill, calling upon Britain to put an end to socialism, pledged his conservatives today to return the nationalized iron and steel industry to private ownership and to remove other restrictions on industry.

As leader of the party, the 76-year-old wartime prime minister issued a 2,500-word Conservative manifesto for the Oct. 25 general election. It declared "nationalization has proved itself a failure which has resulted in heavy losses to the taxpayer or the consumer or both."

Britain, it said, must end "class warfare," stop "frantic extravagances" and rebuild her life at home and her prestige abroad.

"There must be no illusions about our difficulties and dangers," it said, adding that Oct. 25 "may well be the turning point in the fortunes and even the life of Britain."

'Hard Working People'

"We are a hard working people. We are second to none in the ability or enterprise so far as we are allowed to use these gifts," the declaration said. "We now have the only socialist government in the Empire and Commonwealth. Of all the countries in the world, Britain is the one least capable of bearing a socialist system."

The Conservatives were the first to issue their election manifesto for the monumental battle at the polls shaping up for Oct. 25, in which the Tories scent the possibility of a victory ending the six years of Labor party reign. The Labor party, which during that six years nationalized most of Britain's major industries, is expected to announce its manifesto Sunday or Monday. The Labor party annual conference opens Monday in Scarborough.

The manifesto contended it was the extravagance of the Labor government which caused Britain's devaluation of the pound from $4.02 to $2.80 in September, 1949.

"Devaluation was the offspring of wild, profuse expenditure and the evils which we suffer today are the inevitable progeny of that wanton way of living," the manifesto said.

Will Sentence Priest

Amos, Quebec, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Rev. J. Alfred Roy, a Roman Catholic priest, was scheduled to be sentenced today after pleading guilty to interfering with mail addressed to Baptists. He admitted yesterday that he kept and delayed postal circulars mailed by the Rev. Leslie G. Barnhart to members of his congregation in Ste. Geramine.

Two Japanese Taken

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Two more Japanese holdouts from World War 2 days were picked up today on Guam. In all, eight have surrendered or been taken since Tuesday. Still other Japanese were believed roaming southern Guam more than seven years after the island was liberated.

Daylight Saving to End

New York, Sept. 28 (AP) — You'll get back that lost hour tomorrow night. That's when Daylight Savings Time ends for some 65,000,000 Americans in most areas that use the fast summer time. Clocks that were moved ahead an hour last April 29 will be officially turned back at 2 a. m. (EST) Sunday.

Clothes Buying Is Off; Help Is Asked

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—People aren't buying as many clothes as the clothing industry expected and President Truman has been asked to provide government orders to tide over the slack period.

Jacob Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, sought Mr. Truman's help yesterday in taking up some of the unemployment slack. He said the President was sympathetic.

Potofsky said the President suggested he confer with Secretary of Defense Lovett.

The union leader said that one cause of the decline in clothing sales was the draft—young men facing induction just won't buy suits, he said.

Wind Sweeps Upstate Area; Loss Is Heavy

Albany, Sept. 28 (AP)—Brisk autumn winds whirred eastward across upstate New York today and left a trail of damaged crops, fallen trees and broken power lines.

The winds were somewhat calmer than yesterday's which hit 60 miles an hour in western New York while hailstones pelted the central section.

The weather bureau predicted gusts up to 40 miles an hour in the central section today and up to 25 in the Albany area.

Several highways were blocked by torn trees in the Rocester area. To the west, the community of Orchard Park, in Erie county, was without lights for an hour last night.

Fallen utility lines left four communities north and west of Utica without lights or telephone service. Power and telephone linemen worked on breaks at Holland Patent, Stittville, Boonville and Taberg.

Downtown Syracuse got .35 inches of rain in 15 minutes last night. During the day, winds blew down tree limbs.

At the Chazy orchards in Clinton county, Manager Donald Green said that the high winds caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the apple crop.

Several airline flights were delayed at Oneida county airport near Utica. One flight, bound for Albany, was ordered back to the field.

Gross Gets Prison Term of 12 Years, Faces 10 Added

Sentence Is Suspended on 54 Counts—His Lawyer Plans to Appeal

New York, Sept. 28 (AP) — Bookie Harry Gross, sentenced to 12 years in prison for operating a $20,000,000 a year gambling ring, still faces an additional 10-year jail term for contempt stemming from the police graft trial.

The 35-year-old bookie sat glum and silent yesterday as he heard himself sentenced in Special Sessions Court to serve one year each, running consecutively, on 12 counts of a 66-count indictment charging gambling and conspiracy.

Sentence was suspended on the other 54 counts, and there was no fine. Maximum sentence would have been 68 years in jail and $34,000 in fines.

The bookie still faces other prison terms. At the collapse of the recent police trial, Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz sentenced Gross to five years and a $15,000 fine for contempt.

On Wednesday, the grand jury indicted Gross on charges of criminal contempt, which carry a 10-year maximum jail term and a $10,000 fine on conviction. The jury's indictment supersedes Judge Leibowitz' penalty.

Appeal to Come

Gross' attorney, Michael Kern, said he would appeal yesterday's sentence immediately.

Justice William B. Northrup, heading a three-man court, pronounced sentence. Before doing so, the bench made it clear to Gross that he was being penalized for wrecking the police graft trial of 18 cops by refusing to testify against them.

Gross talked freely about operations of his bookie empire, and how he paid police protection amounting to $1,000,000 a year. But when it came to naming police names, Gross balked and shattered the case against the defendants.

Justice Northrup told Gross: "You gloried in the fact that you bribed corrupt members of the police force and you seem proud to be looked upon as a fountain of corruption. You are a

OPS Memo Causes Howls; Truman Orders It Killed

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP) — An Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) memo to its staff to withhold from the public any information which might embarrass it was killed promptly last night on President Truman's orders.

The Chief Executive moved just two hours and nine minutes after word of the directive leaked out, but even that was not soon enough to head off a storm of protest over the OPS action in the Senate.

Joseph Short, White House press secretary, announced that Mr. Truman had directed the memo be withdrawn because it "might be misconstrued" to be an outgrowth of Mr. Truman's order setting up new curbs on release of material affecting the national security.

The controversial OPS memo was issued Tuesday, the same day Mr. Truman issued his order. The President had said his new security regulations "must not be used to * * * cover up mistakes made by any official or employe of the government."

The OPS Staff Bulletin was issued, in its own words, "to emphasize the necessity for limiting the use and inspection of files to employes of OPS, and to prohibit the disclosure of material contained therein, or the release of any other internal information that might cause embarrassment to OPS."

The White House statement said Mr. Truman had been assured that OPS did not mean to classify its operations as "security information" but that he felt the memo "was so broad that it might be misconstrued in violation" of his order on that subject.

It added:

"In the work of the OPS, it is frequently necessary to obtain confidential information from businessmen which naturally cannot be divulged to competitors or others. OPS will prepare a new bulletin to clarify this problem."

Mass Men and Supplies but Allied Planes Make Record Raids During Night

Bradley in Tokyo

Chief of Staff Head to Map Strategy if Truce Fails

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 28 (AP)—Communist forces launched a series of sharp attacks last night at widely scattered points across 50 miles of the Korean battle front.

Behind the lines, they rolled a mass of men and supplies toward the front along all the major north-south roads across the waist of the Korean peninsula.

They took advantage of a moonless night. But allied planes converged on the main arteries and the U. S. Fifth Air Force said its pilots destroyed 508 Communist vehicles and damaged 613—a record. The old mark was 964, set Wednesday.

The roving airmen attacked more than 1,700 trucks from dusk Thursday to dawn Friday, the Fifth Air Force said.

Bradley to Make Survey

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was in Tokyo, the Defense Department in Washington said, to survey "all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, United Nations commander.

Bradley possibly was coming to the war theatre to map strategy if attempts to revive the truce talks fail completely and full scale fighting erupts.

The Communist forces threw their sharpest attacks in the Yonchon and Chorwon sectors near western Korea's iron triangle, and in the east-central area at Heartbreak Ridge and the Punchbowl Heights.

The Reds lobbed artillery and mortar shells throughout Thursday night and allied infantrymen dug in just below the crest of Heartbreak, a hill mass north of Yanggu.

Other Red troops attacked American and South Korean troops holding a hill west of the ridge. They had captured it only Tuesday. The fight raged on into the morning.

Aim At Advance Units

It appeared that the Reds were trying to cut off advance allied units both in the east and west.

Marine Corsair pilots and air force B-26 night fliers teamed in the attack on Red transport behind the lines.

Capt. Marvin F. Teel, Warrensburg, Mo., said his flight of B-26 invaders caught an 18-vehicle convoy near Tikchon, in the center of the peninsula near Parallel 40.

Revolution May Be Phony

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Although the State Department said today it had no information on the revolt in Argentina, officials who follow Argentine affairs closely advanced two theories on the situation.

These were:

1. It may be a bona fide revolution on the part of some of Argentina's top military men who have been seething recently over efforts by President Peron's wife, Eva, to become vice-president. She turned down the nomination reportedly after some Argentine army chiefs warned Peron about their strong feeling against her efforts.

2. Or it may be a pre-election maneuver by the government to whip up popular sentiment to bring out a heavy vote from Peron's main source of political strength—the working masses. Peron is running for re-election in general elections scheduled for next month.

Air Force Survey Declares Newburgh Poor in Housing

Off-Base Conditions Are Limited at High Cost, Command Report Warns

An air force survey showing family housing to be "extremely limited at high cost," near 71 air bases, includes the Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh, an Associated Press report from Washington said today.

The air force reported yesterday that at 48 other bases housing at reasonable rates was limited, and at only 12 bases was housing reported at reasonable rates.

The survey of off-base housing conditions was conducted by base commanders.

Included in the New York state bases "where family housing is extremely limited at high cost," and where personnel are advised "not to bring families until suitable housing can be found," are the Suffolk County Air Force Base, and the one at West Hampton Beach.

"Bases where family housing at reasonable rates is limited," with "most units in high priced brackets including some temporary accommodations," include: Mitchel Air Force Base at Hempstead.

State Commissioner Is to Tell About Korea and Conditions in Far East

DR. H. E. HILLEBOE

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, state commissioner of health, will tell of his experiences in Korea and Japan while on his recent trip with Governor Thomas E. Dewey at a non-political meeting of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel, on Tuesday, October 23, at 8 p. m.

This announcement was made by Mrs. Ruth Brinnier, president of the club, today. Mrs. Brinnier said that Commissioner Hilleboe, while on the trip had made studies of the methods used by our armed forces for the treatment and care of our men wounded in the battle and of the medical and sanitary problems in the various countries which he visited.

Commissioner Hilleboe is an able speaker and his talk undoubtedly will be of great interest to the members of the club and to those engaged in the medical, nursing and public health fields.

Health Groups Invited

Mrs. Brinnier said that an invitation to hear Commissioner Hilleboe is being extended by the club to the members of the Ulster County Medical and Dental Societies; the officers and nurses of our local hospitals; the superintendent and staff of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital; the directors and staffs of the Ulster County Tumor Clinic and the Kingston Laboratory; members of the Ulster County Board of Health and the commissioners and staff of the Ulster County Health Department and those engaged in medical and health work.

Death Threatened to Officers Who Participate in War

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 28 (AP)—The official state radio announced today a revolt was staged by two former army generals against the government of Juan D. Peron and was swiftly put down.

The radio, a short time after announcing civil war had broken out in Argentina, declared the government quelled the revolt headed by former Gen. Arturo Rawson and former Gen. Benjamin Menendez. Rawson was a leader of a 1943 rebellion which placed him in the presidency just two days.

There was no information available from other sources. The capital has been closed down tightly, with business establishments shuttered.

There were many rumors of troop movements, but these, too, could not be confirmed.

Chiefs Expected to Map Strategy if Parley for Truce Collapses in Korea

No Answer Given

Communists Withhold Reply, but Radio Uses Rough Language

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley arrived tonight, possibly to map strategy if the Korean truce talks collapse completely and full-scale fighting erupts.

Bradley's plane arrived at nearby Haneda Airport at 9:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m., E.S.T.). The chairman of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff was accompanied by Charles Bohlen, State Department expert on Russia.

The Defense Department in Washington said Bradley would "survey all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander.

Ridgway yesterday suggested a switch in the truce talk site in an effort to revive the stalled armistice talks.

Peiping radio treated Ridgway's proposal with rough language. In a broadcast tonight as Bradley's plane was winging the last few miles to Tokyo, it accused Ridgway of "carrying out orders from Washington to use the change-of-conference site question to block the resumption" of truce talks.

No Reply Given

The Chinese and North Koreans have not answered Ridgway's suggestion Thursday for getting the bogged down parley going again. He wanted the conference site switched from Kaesong, behind Red lines, to the Songhyon area in no-man's land. The village is six miles southeast of Kaesong.

Observers said this could be Ridgway's last compromise proposal.

The Reds broke off armistice talks Aug. 23. They accused the United Nations of violating the neutrality of Kaesong. The charge was denied.

Underscoring the pessimism were UN pilot reports of masses of enemy trucks moving toward the battle front and a flareup of Red infantry attacks all along the battle line.

Futility Is Echoed

Ridgway's headquarters in an unofficial release echoed the futility of the last six weeks of bickering and note exchanges.

The Reds, the release accused, sought resumption of the armistice parley on their own terms or a complete breakdown "out of sheer frustration."

Ridgway wants the full delegations to "meet as early as possible at a place approximately midway between the battlelines in the vicinity of Songhyon."

He proposed that the five-man delegations would first discuss maintaining the neutrality of the new location. Then they would return to debating the establishment of a demilitarized zone across Korea—the agenda item under discussion when the talks were abruptly halted by the Reds 37 days ago.

Red China's official Peiping Radio quoted a dispatch from North Korea:

"If Ridgway is allowed to have his way, the resumption of the Korean peace talks will be sidetracked into discussions of conditions such as the question of a new site and as many other impossible demands as Ridgway wishes to bring out to block the resumption of the armistice talks."

In two and one-half months of trying to reach an armistice, the talks have wallowed in a morass of words. They have been suspended more days than they have been in session since they began July 10.

Bicycle Is at School

A report to the police at 1:45 p. m. yesterday indicated that a school boy either has forgotten that he owns a bicycle, or he prefers to walk. A blue and white bicycle with a basket on front has been left at the rear of the high school for four days, the report said. It was taken to police headquarters.

Nurses and Others Respond to Appeal

Average Given to Hospital Is $58.05 for Each Employe

Members of the Benedictine Hospital "family", nurses and employes, have responded 100 per cent to the appeal for funds in the $600,000 Building Fund Campaign, hospital executives announced today.

The nurses and employes have reported a total $3,720 or an average of $58.05 per employe, an unusually high average, according to campaign officials. This amount is exclusive of any amount that may be pledged later by the Benedictine Nurses Alumnae Association and the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary.

The Industrial Division of the campaign will be launched at 4 o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Joseph Honig.

Mr. Honig has called his associates for a meeting at 4 p. m. today at the YMCA to assign the various industries in Kingston. Members of the Industrial committee are Harry Silsby, Joseph Saccoman, Ted Kolb, James Berardi, Ray Garraghan, Al Seitz, Wiliam Edelmuth, Aaron Lipkin and James Dwyer.

The beneral phase of the campaign will be launched Thursday evening, October 11 at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, campaign officials said today.

Jessup Listens to McCarthy

Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup leans forward in his spectator's seat to listen to Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R.-Wisc.) present documents in support of his charges that the diploma has "an unusual affinity for Communist causes." How Beef Will Go Up Shows In New List Given by OPS

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Housewives will begin paying an average of 1½ to 2 cents a pound more for beef next Monday.

The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) announced late yesterday new ceilings which boosted the prices of some cuts and lowered others, but on the average resulted in a slight over-all increase.

OPS ordered that the new prices be posted so customers can see them easily.

This is what will happen to the better-known beef products:

Hamburger—the cheaper grade containing up to 25 per cent fat will go up about a penny a pound. The better grade, lean ground containing up to 12 per cent fat will increase 2 to 5 cents a pound.

Round steak and chuck roasts—these most popular selling cuts will go up 2 to 8 cents a pound, depending on grade.

Porterhouse steaks, prime sirloin—these and other higher-priced cuts which have not been selling as well will drop from 4 to 8 cents a pound.

Rib cuts—up 15 cents a pound.

Brisket or stewing beef—down as much as 20 cents a pound on choice cuts.

OPS said the choice grades which account for 35 per cent of all beef sold to consumers probably will not average more than a penny a pound increase. Sharpest increases apply to utility grade cuts, used in processing sausage, smoked and cured meat.

Churchill Pledges Private Enterprise Again in Industry

Conservative Leader Issues Manifesto for General Election, End of Class War

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Winston Churchill, calling upon Britain to put an end to socialism, pledged his conservatives today to return the nationalized iron and steel industry to private ownership and to remove other restrictions on industry.

As leader of the party, the 76-year-old wartime prime minister issued a 2,500-word Conservative manifesto for the Oct. 25 general election. It declared "nationalization has proved itself a failure which has resulted in heavy losses to the taxpayer or the consumer or both."

Britain, it said, must end "class warfare," stop "frantic extravagances" and rebuild her life at home and her prestige abroad.

"There must be no illusions about our difficulties and dangers," it said, adding that Oct. 25 "may well be the turning point in the fortunes and even the life of Britain."

'Hard Working People'

"We are a hard working people. We are second to none in the ability or enterprise so far as we are allowed to use these gifts," the declaration said. "We now have the only socialist government in the Empire and Commonwealth. Of all the countries in the world, Britain is the one least capable of bearing a socialist system."

The Conservatives were the first to issue their election manifesto for the monumental battle at the polls shaping up for Oct. 25, in which the Tories scent the possibility of a victory ending the six years of Labor party reign. The Labor party, which during that six years nationalized most of Britain's major industries, is expected to announce its manifesto Sunday or Monday. The Labor party annual conference opens Monday in Scarborough.

The manifesto contended it was the extravagance of the Labor government which caused Britain's devaluation of the pound from $4.02 to $2.80 in September, 1949.

"Devaluation was the offspring of wild, profuse expenditure and the evils which we suffer today are the inevitable progeny of that wanton way of living," the manifesto said.

Daylight Saving to End

New York, Sept. 28 (AP) — You'll get back that lost hour tomorrow night. That's when Daylight Savings Time ends for some 65,000,000 Americans in most areas that use the fast summer time. Clocks that were moved ahead an hour last April 29 will be officially turned back at 2 a. m. (EST) Sunday.

Clothes Buying Is Off; Help Is Asked

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—People aren't buying as many clothes as the clothing industry expected and President Truman has been asked to provide government orders to tide over the slack period.

Jacob Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, sought Mr. Truman's help yesterday in taking up some of the unemployment slack. He said the President was sympathetic.

Potofsky said the President suggested he confer with Secretary of Defense Lovett.

The union leader said that one cause of the decline in clothing sales was the draft—young men facing induction just won't buy suits, he said.

Wind Sweeps Upstate Area; Loss Is Heavy

Albany, Sept. 28 (AP)—Brisk autumn winds whirred eastward across upstate New York today and left a trail of damaged crops, fallen trees and broken power lines.

The winds were somewhat calmer than yesterday's which hit 60 miles an hour in western New York while hailstones pelted the central section.

The weather bureau predicted gusts up to 40 miles an hour in the central section today and up to 25 in the Albany area.

Several highways were blocked by torn trees in the Rocester area. To the west, the community of Orchard Park, in Erie, county, was without lights for an hour last night.

Fallen utility lines left four communities north and west of Utica without lights or telephone service. Power and telephone linemen worked on breaks at Holland Patent, Stittville, Boonville and Taberg.

Downtown Syracuse got .35 inches of rain in 15 minutes last night. During the day, winds blew down tree limbs.

At the Chazy orchards in Clinton county, Manager Donald Green said that the high winds caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the apple crop.

Several airline flights were delayed at Oneida county airport near Utica. One flight, bound for Albany, was ordered back to the field.

Gross Gets Prison Term of 12 Years, Faces 10 Added

Sentence Is Suspended on 54 Counts—His Lawyer Plans to Appeal

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Bookie Harry Gross, sentenced to 12 years in prison for operating a $20,000,000 a year gambling ring, still faces an additional 10-year jail term for contempt stemming from the police graft trial.

The 35-year-old bookie sat glum and silent yesterday as he heard himself sentenced in Special Sessions Court to serve one year each, running consecutively, on 12 counts of a 66-count indictment charging gambling and conspiracy.

Sentence was suspended on the other 54 counts, and there was no fine. Maximum sentence would have been 68 years in jail and $34,000 in fines.

The bookie still faces other prison terms. At the collapse of the recent police trial, Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz sentenced Gross to five years and a $15,000 fine for contempt.

On Wednesday, the grand jury indicted Gross on charges of criminal contempt, which carry a 10-year maximum jail term and a $10,000 fine on conviction. The jury's indictment supersedes Judge Leibowitz' penalty.

Appeal to Come

Gross' attorney, Michael Kern, said he would appeal yesterday's sentence immediately.

Justice William B. Northrup, heading a three-man court, pronounced sentence. Before doing so, the bench made it clear to Gross that he was being penalized for wrecking the police graft trial of 18 cops by refusing to testify against them.

Gross talked freely about operations of his bookie empire, and how he paid police protection amounting to $1,000,000 a year. But when it came to naming police names, Gross balked and shattered the case against the defendants.

Justice Northrup told Gross: "You gloried in the fact that you bribed corrupt members of the police force and you seem proud to be looked upon as a fountain of corruption. You are a

Air Force Survey Declares Newburgh Poor in Housing

Off-Base Conditions Are Limited at High Cost, Command Report Warns

An air force survey showing family housing to be "extremely limited at high cost," near 71 air bases, includes the Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh, an Associated Press report from Washington said today.

The air force reported yesterday that at 48 other bases housing at reasonable rates was limited, and at only 12 bases was housing reported at reasonable rates.

The survey of off-base housing conditions was conducted by base commanders.

Included in the New York state bases "where family housing is extremely limited at high cost," and where personnel are advised "not to bring families until suitable housing can be found," are the Suffolk County Air Force Base, and the one at West Hampton Beach.

"Bases where family housing at reasonable rates is limited," with "most units in high priced brackets including some temporary accommodations," include: Mitchel Air Force Base at Hempstead.

Nurses and Others Respond to Appeal

Average Given to Hospital Is $58.05 for Each Employe

Members of the Benedictine Hospital "family", nurses and employes, have responded 100 per cent to the appeal for funds in the $600,000 Building Fund Campaign, hospital executives announced today.

The nurses and employes have reported a total $3,720 or an average of $58.05 per employe, an unusually high average, according to campaign officials. This amount is exclusive of any amount that may be pledged later by the Benedictine Nurses Alumnae Association and the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary.

The Industrial Division of the campaign will be launched at 4 o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Joseph Honig.

Mr. Honig has called his associates for a meeting at 4 p. m. today at the YMCA to assign the various industries in Kingston. Members of the Industrial committee are Harry Silsby, Joseph Saccoman, Ted Kolb, James Berardi, Ray Garraghan, Al Seitz, Wiliam Edelmuth, Aaron Lipkin and James Dwyer.

The beneral phase of the campaign will be launched Thursday evening, October 11 at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, campaign officials said today.

OPS Memo Causes Howls; Truman Orders It Killed

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP) — An Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) memo to its staff to withhold from the public any information which might embarrass it was killed promptly last night on President Truman's orders.

The Chief Executive moved just two hours and nine minutes after word of the directive leaked out, but even that was not soon enough to head off a storm of protest over the OPS action in the Senate.

Joseph Short, White House press secretary, announced that Mr. Truman had directed the memo be withdrawn because it "might be misconstrued" to be an outgrowth of Mr. Truman's order setting up new curbs on release of material affecting the national security.

The controversial OPS memo was issued Tuesday, the same day Mr. Truman issued his order. The President had said his new security regulations "must not be used to • • • cover up mistakes made by any official or employe of the government."

The OPS Staff Bulletin was issued, in its own words, "to emphasize the necessity for limiting the use and inspection of files to employes of OPS, and to prohibit the disclosure of material contained therein, or the release of any other internal information that might cause embarrassment to OPS."

The White House statement said Mr. Truman had been assured that OPS did not mean to classify its operations as "security information" but that he felt the memo "was so broad that it might be misconstrued in violation" of his order on that subject.

It added:

"In the work of the OPS, it is frequently necessary to obtain confidential information from businessmen which naturally cannot be divulged to competitors or others. OPS will prepare a new bulletin to clarify this problem."

How Beef Will Go Up Shows In New List Given by OPS

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Housewives will begin paying an average of 1½ to 2 cents a pound more for beef next Monday.

The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) announced late yesterday new ceilings which boosted the prices of some cuts and lowered others, but on the average resulted in a slight over-all increase.

OPS ordered that the new prices be posted so customers can see them easily.

This is what will happen to the better-known beef products:

Hamburger—the cheaper grade containing up to 25 per cent fat will go up about a penny a pound. The better grade, lean ground containing up to 12 per cent fat will increase 2 to 5 cents a pound.

Round steak and chuck roasts—these most popular selling cuts will go up 2 to 8 cents a pound, depending on grade.

Porterhouse steaks, prime sirloin—these and other higher-priced cuts which have not been selling as well will drop from 4 to 8 cents a pound.

Rib cuts—up 15 cents a pound.

Brisket or stewing beef—down as much as 20 cents a pound on choice cuts.

OPS said the choice grades which account for 35 per cent of all beef sold to consumers probably will not average more than a penny a pound increase. Sharpest increases apply to utility grade cuts, used in processing sausage, smoked and cured meats

Churchill Pledges Private Enterprise Again in Industry

Conservative Leader Issues Manifesto for General Election, End of Class War

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Winston Churchill, calling upon Britain to put an end to socialism, pledged his conservatives today to return the nationalized iron and steel industry to private ownership and to remove other restrictions on industry.

As leader of the party, the 76-year-old wartime prime minister issued a 2,500-word Conservative manifesto for the Oct. 25 general election. It declared "nationalization has proved itself a failure which has resulted in heavy losses to the taxpayer or the consumer or both."

Britain, it said, must end "class warfare," stop "frantic extravagances" and rebuild her life at home and her prestige abroad.

"There must be no illusions about our difficulties and dangers," it said, adding that Oct. 25 "may well be the turning point in the fortunes and even the life of Britain."

'Hard Working People'

"We are a hard working people. We are second to none in the ability or enterprise so far as we are allowed to use these gifts," the declaration said. "We now have the only socialist government in the Empire and Commonwealth. Of all the countries in the world, Britain is the one least capable of bearing a socialist system."

The Conservatives were the first to issue their election manifesto for the monumental battle at the polls shaping up for Oct. 25, in which the Tories scent the possibility of a victory ending the six years of Labor party reign. The Labor party, which during that six years nationalized most of Britain's major industries, is expected to announce its manifesto Sunday or Monday. The Labor party annual conference opens Monday in Scarborough.

The manifesto contended it was the extravagance of the Labor government which caused Britain's devaluation of the pound from $4.02 to $2.80 in September, 1949.

"Devaluation was the offspring of wild, profuse expenditure and the evils which we suffer today are the inevitable progeny of that wanton way of living," the manifesto said.

Scattered Points Hit By Reds

Mass Men and Supplies but Allied Planes Make Record Raids During Night

Bradley in Tokyo

Chief of Staff Head to Map Strategy if Truce Fails

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 28 (AP)—Communist forces launched a series of sharp attacks last night at widely scattered points across 50 miles of the Korean battle front.

Behind the lines, they rolled a mass of men and supplies toward the front along all the major north-south roads across the waist of the Korean peninsula.

They took advantage of a moonless night. But allied planes converged on the main arteries and the U. S. Fifth Air Force said its pilots destroyed 508 Communist vehicles and damaged 613—a record. The old mark was 964, set Wednesday.

The roving airmen attacked more than 1,700 trucks from dusk Thursday to dawn Friday, the Fifth Air Force said.

Bradley to Make Survey

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was in Tokyo, the Defense Department in Washington said, to survey "all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, United Nations commander.

Bradley possibly was coming to the war theatre to map strategy if attempts to revive the truce talks fail completely and full scale fighting erupts.

The Communist forces threw their sharpest attacks in the Yonchon and Chorwon sectors near western Korea's iron triangle, and in the east-central area at Heartbreak Ridge and the Punchbowl Heights.

The Reds lobbed artillery and mortar shells throughout Thursday night and allied infantrymen dug in just below the crest of Heartbreak, a hill mass north of Yanggu.

Other Red troops attacked American and South Korean troops holding a hill west of the ridge. They had captured it only Tuesday. The fight raged on into the morning.

Aim At Advance Units

It appeared that the Reds were trying to cut off advance allied units both in the east and west.

Marine Corsair pilots and air force B-26 night fliers teamed in the attack on Red transport behind the lines.

Capt. Marvin F. Teel, Warrensburg, Mo., said his flight of B-26 invaders caught an 18-vehicle convoy near Tikchon, in the center of the peninsula near Parallel 40.

"It was just what we were look-

Revolution May Be Phony

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Although the State Department said today it had no information on the revolt in Argentina, officials who follow Argentine affairs closely advanced two theories on the situation.

These were:

1. It may be a bona fide revolution on the part of some of Argentina's top military men who have been seething recently over efforts by President Peron's wife, Eva, to become vice-president. She turned down the nomination reportedly after some Argentine army chiefs warned Peron about their strong feeling against her efforts.

2. Or it may be a pre-election maneuver by the government to whip up popular sentiment to bring out a heavy vote from Peron's main source of political strength—the working masses. Peron is running for re-election in general elections scheduled for next month.

All Aspects Are Due for Discussion

No Answer Given

Communists Withhold Reply, but Radio Uses Rough Language

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley arrived tonight, possibly to map strategy if the Korean truce talks collapse completely and full-scale fighting erupts.

Bradley's plane arrived at nearby Haneda Airport at 9:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m., E.S.T.). The chairman of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff was accompanied by Charles Bohlen, State Department expert on Russia.

The Defense Department in Washington said Bradley would "survey all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander.

Ridgway yesterday suggested a switch in the truce talk site in an effort to revive the stalled armistice talks.

Peiping radio treated Ridgway's proposal with rough language. In a broadcast tonight as Bradley's plane was winging the last few miles to Tokyo, it accused Ridgway of "carrying out orders from Washington to use the change-of-conference site question to block the resumption" of truce talks.

No Reply Given

The Chinese and North Koreans have not answered Ridgway's suggestion Thursday for getting the bogged down parley going again. He wanted the conference site switched from Kaesong, behind Red lines, to the Songhyon area in no-man's land. The village is six miles southeast of Kaesong.

Observers said this could be Ridgway's last compromise proposal.

The Reds broke off armistice talks Aug. 23. They accused the United Nations of violating the neutrality of Kaesong. The charge was denied.

Underscoring the pessimism were UN pilot reports of masses of enemy trucks moving toward the battle front and a flareup of Red infantry attacks all along the battle line.

Futility Is Echoed

Ridgway's headquarters in an unofficial release echoed the futility of the last six weeks of bickering and note exchanges.

The Reds, the release accused, sought resumption of the armistice parley on their own terms or a complete breakdown "out of sheer frustration."

Ridgway wants the full delegations to "meet as early as possible at a place approximately midway between the battlelines in the vicinity of Songhyon."

He proposed that the five-man delegations would first discuss maintaining the neutrality of the new location. Then they would return to debating the establishment of a demilitarized zone across Korea—the agenda item under discussion when the talks were abruptly halted by the Reds 37 days ago.

Red China's official Peiping Radio quoted a dispatch from North Korea:

"If Ridgway is allowed to have his way, the resumption of the Korean peace talks will be sidetracked into discussions of conditions such as the question of a new site and as many other impossible demands as Ridgway wishes to bring out to block the resumption of the armistice talks."

In two and one-half months of trying to reach an armistice, the talks have wallowed in a morass of words. They have been suspended more days than they have been in session since they began July 10.

Jury Is Completed In 'Hobo Jungle' Alleged Assault

A jury was completed this morning in County Court where the robbery, grand larceny and assault charges against William Copeland and Bernard Keyes were under trial.

Copeland, a seasonal worker in the town of Marlborough, and Bernard Keyes, who has resided in Marlborough and Newburgh for several years, are charged with having assaulted Edward Baker, another seasonal worker, at a "hobo jungle" along the railroad tracks near Marlborough last May and taken from him some $800 which represented his savings.

The story of the two defendants differs as to the events of that day. Keyes, represented by John L. Larkin, contends he had no part in any robbery or assault and that he was given $30 of the loot after he and Copeland had arrived at Newburgh some time after the assault.

On the morning of the alleged crime Copeland and Keyes purchased wine and went to the jungle where they invited Baker to join them. They claim that when the wine was exhausted they asked Baker for money to get a new supply and also to get food necessary to make a pot of "mulligan" stew.

Denies Robbery

They went to the village, purchased the articles and returned to the jungle. Copeland contends that Baker asked for his change from a $5 bill and was denied the change and told to get on his way. There was a scuffle and Baker left.

Copeland denies there was assault or robbery and that the money which was found on him later when he was arrested in Marlborough was his own savings. He contends he has been a steady worker in the area for some time and saved his money.

Keyes Tells Story

Keyes, however tells another story. In his opening Attorney Larkin stated that the three men had met as alleged. Copeland and Keyes did go to the village for additional supplies but he claims when they returned to the "jungle" Copeland and Keyes went to the railroad track to get an additional supply of wood for the fire to cook the "mulligan" and while they were away he heard a scuffle on the tracks and Copeland returned and they left for Newburgh.

Not in Fight He Says

In Newburgh Keyes says he was given $25 or $30 by Copeland and they then separated. Where the money came from he claims he did not know. He denies he took any part in a robbery or assault. He claims he heard the battle but says hobo fights are constantly taking place in the "jungles" and he paid no attention to it.

Baker contends he was held up by the two men and robbed of his savings, after being slugged by the men. Baker is 58 years old, and was known to Copeland and Keyes only as the "toolmaker."

Sides Hold Firm In Theatre Strike

The strike of cashiers, ushers, candy attendants and porters at three local Walter Reade theatres continued today with no signs of settlement.

About 25 employes, claiming membership in Local B-42, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL), began picketing on Saturday afternoon after an attempt to win recognition for their union.

The local's president, Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, said today that there has been no move made by management toward a settlement, and that picketing will continue. She said other union groups in the city and county are supporting her local in its strike.

Fred Bartholdi, Reade's city manager, said today there was "nothing new" to report on the strike situation. He stressed again that all three theatres are "running as usual."

Meanwhile, Local 637 of the Theatrical Union, a union including local projectionists in its membership, said its members have refused to cross picket lines set up by Local B-42 and charged the three local Reade theatres are operating with non-union projectionists. Local 637 is not on strike.

The three theatres affected are the Kingston, Broadway and 9W Drive-In.

Strikes in Jersey Threaten Oil; Lines Manned by Pickets

Newark, N. J., Sept. 28 (AP)—Mushrooming strikes in key New Jersey defense plants spread from the aircraft to the rubber industry today and threatened oil production.

Well over a billion dollars in defense production was halted by walk-outs affecting more than 18,000 workers.

While federal mediators moved into the walkout of 10,000 Wright aeronautical workers in Wood-Ridge and Garfield, some 3,000 CIO rubber workers shut down the U. S. Rubber Co. plant in Passaic at midnight.

State officials moved to avert a stoppage of 2,200 workers at the Bayonne refinery of Esso Standard Oil Co., in mediation sessions here. They also scheduled conferences to try to settle a wage dispute that has idled 1,100 workers at four plants of the Whippany Paper Board Co. for 59 days.

Lines Are Formed

Picket lines were thrown around the Passaic rubber plant after four-month-old negotiations with Local 217, United Rubber Workers, broke down over a piece-work incentive system and seniority provisions. Some 2,700 production and 250 office workers stayed off the job.

Newspaper Prices Are Going Higher All Across Nation

(By The Associated Press)

Daily newspaper prices are swinging upward all over the country as costs of publishing increase steadily.

This upward trend has been underway for several months. Large and small newspapers alike have found a price boost necessary. It is country-wide.

Publishers cite greater newsprint costs, higher salaries and larger bills for distributing their papers.

In Los Angeles the Times and the Examiner, both morning papers have hiked daily newsstand prices from seven cents to a dime, effective October 1.

In Memphis, Tenn., the Commercial Appeal and the Press-Scimitar raised subscription prices, effective Monday. The former's weekly rate for daily and Sunday editions goes from 40 to 45 cents. The latter's for daily editions only goes from 25 to 30 cents.

Sunday papers in many cities have gone from 10 cents to 15 cents and in some cases to 20 cents.

Other price boosts, varying somewhat in size, included such widely separated dailies as:

Washington (D.C.) Star, Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger, Roanoke (Va.) Times and World-News, Indianapolis Star and News, Astoria (Oregon) Astorian-Budget, Galesburg (Ill.) Register-Mail, Attleboro (Mass.) Sun.

Barge Launched At Island Dock

Launching of the steel coal barge Edwin H. Werner for the Sargent Barge Line, Inc., of New York at Island Dock today was witnessed by its owner D. J. Sargent and a party of 15 men representing the companies served by the barge line.

The barge was christened by Mrs. Goodwin E. Crosby, niece of its owner, and went into the Rondout creek shortly after 11 a. m.

In the group who joined the personnel of Island Dock, Inc., in witnessing the launching were officials of the Jersey Central Power and Light Co., for which the barge will carry coal, and officials of the National Lead Co., and the National Sugar Refining Co., which the line also serves.

The visitors were guests of Island Dock at a luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel following the launching and they were scheduled to have dinner tonight as guests of the Sargent line at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York.

Finishing touches will be made on the barge at Island Dock and it will be shipped out in about 10 days. Another similar barge will be built at Island Dock as soon as steel is available.

Gross Gets Prison

cesspool of corruption which the people are sick of.

In Different Light

"Had you chosen to aid the people, this court would have looked upon you in a different light. But you made your choice and now you must answer for it. Let word go out to the community that he who trifles with justice will get nothing but justice."

Prior to sentencing Gross, the legal stage had been set for a spectacular expose of the bookie's testimony before the Brooklyn rackets-probing grand jury.

Kings county District Attorney Miles F. McDonald, fighting mad after Gross ruined his two-year buildup toward the police graft trial, had said he would read a digest of that testimony, listing police names which would implicate some 100 cops as bribe takers. High police brass is said to be among them.

Read From Records

McDonald read from the grand jury records, using a 100-page digest, but the names of the policemen were not disclosed.

Before the reading, Leibowitz, who presided at the police graft trial, asked that the names be withheld. Leibowitz said he reversed the DA's much-publicized plans because it would be "unfair and un-American" to name names when the accused policemen had no opportunity to defend themselves.

McDonald said:

"By itself, without naming names, we cannot show the full scope of Gross' familiarity with members of the police department. But I am bowing to the judge's decision."

After sentencing, Gross showed little emotion as he was taken to a jail cell. But he did mumble, "you'd think I committed murder or something."

Mrs. Matthews Is Named to Post

Mrs. Barbara Matthews, 16 Charlotte street, has been appointed chief observer of the Kingston Ground Observer Corps to replace Mrs. Dorothea Flemings, 34 Catskill avenue, who recently resigned, Sherwood E. Davis, director of local civil defense, announced today.

Mrs. Matthews, who was formerly an assistant chief observer, had served in civil defense during World War 2. Mrs. George Dewey Logan, 68 Garden street, is post supervisor.

At her first officers' meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel last night, Mrs. Matthews announced that training for spotters who have not previously served will start Oct. 1. She also announced that 30 new spotters are scheduled to report at the civil defense office, city hall, between 7 and 9 p. m. today to take the loyalty oath.

Strike Is Called

Labor announced in a broadcast that some military men launched a revolt against the government of Juan D. Peron. It called for a nationwide general strike in support of the President.

At frequent intervals the official state radio repeated this announcement from the presidential press office:

"A state of internal war exists. "Army officers taking part will be shot."

The Labor Confederation (CGT) is the backbone of Peron's government.

State of Siege Called

The broadcast warned that any military men joining in the uprising would be executed. A state of siege—a modified form of martial law—was proclaimed, the broadcast said.

Within minutes after the broadcast, a crowd began to assemble in front of the huge Plaza Mayo balcony from which Peron frequently has spoken to his supporters in the more than five years of his reign. Workers were urgently exhorted to assemble in the square, in front of the president's Casa Rosada offices.

Only yesterday President Peron annnounced that the army would police the forthcoming national elections in which he has been named a candidate to succeed himself.

Elections November 11

The Argentine elections are scheduled Nov. 11.

Peron first came to power in 1943 after an army coup overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo. Peron, as the power behind the scenes, placed Gen. Pedro P. Ramierz in power, then later replaced him with Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

Peron himself took over the posts of secretary of labor and security. In 1944 he emerged as minister of war and then vice president. Like many other South American strongmen, he built his strength around the labor party, having won military support.

In 1945 Peron was jailed briefly and then released. He campaigned for the presidential election and won it in 1946. Eva or Evita (Little Eva) Peron as she preferred to be called, then entered politics in a big way, helping to rally the workers and the poor to Peron's colors with broad promises of better days to come. Her beauty and her energy helped clinch the workers' support for her husband.

Married in 1945

Peron and Eva had been married secretly in a civil ceremony outside Buenos Aires in 1945. Peron then was 50, and Eva was 26. A church ceremony was held in December, when the marriage was annnounced officially.

Before his election June 4, 1946, Peron outlined a plan for a vast nationalization program to take over railways, airlines, buses, streetcars and shipping. He was able to carry out almost all this program and set up a government monopoly to buy meat, wheat and edible oils for export.

'Shirtless Ones'

His followers were dubbed the "descamisados," shirtless ones, in a concerted attack on the Argentine aristocracy and landowners. Great rallies were staged by the Peronista party to consolidate its position with the workers. Peron promised higher wages, shorter hours, retirement funds, paid vacations, maternity aids and Christmas bonuses.

Eva, meanwhile, set up the Eva Peron Foundation to dole out government and private funds. It became the biggest enterprise in Argentina, and some were forced to contribute to it with a smile.

The Perons bought and controlled newspapers, with Eva at the helm of the newspaper Democracia. Peron's government put the largest independent daily, La Prensa,, out of business, and exercised control over others through government monopoly of newsprint.

Jailed His Opposition

Peron jailed politicians who opposed him, charging them with "descato," or disrespect of the president. Ricardo Balbin, Radical party member and leading figure of the opposition, was sentenced only last November to five years on that charge, but he was pardoned and released in January.

The army, however, appeared to have been unhappy over the "petticoat rule" of Evita. In February, 1947, army leaders were reported to have approached Peron with appeals to ease his politically ambitious wife out of public life.

Peron is understood to have threatened to resign if the army brought further pressure to bear on the touchy point of Evita. Since the military at that time had no appetite for another coup, the deadlock was unbroken and Evita continued as "the lady of hope" and "the standard bearer of the meek" in the words of her newspaper tributes.

In March, 1949, the Constitutional Assembly reframed the old 1853 Constitution to enable Peron to run for a second term he at first said he had no intention of offering himself again but he was "persuaded" by party councils to reconsider.

OPS Memo Causes

Salle was in Chicago when the memo was disclosed. He termed it "poorly conceived" and said of its withdrawal: "If I'd been there (in Washington) we wouldn't have needed a request from the President."

The storm which quickly blew up in the Senate promised to subside. Senator Maybank (D.-S.C.) said he was happy to learn of the President's action, taken after the Senate recessed overnight.

In the brief period the memo was still in effect, Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) called it "a blow at liberty." Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) said "I am not able to produce words to describe any feelings at this."

Jury Is Completed In 'Hobo Jungle' Alleged Assault

A jury was completed this morning in County Court where the robbery, grand larceny and assault charges against William Copeland and Bernard Keyes were under trial.

Copeland, a seasonal worker in the town of Marlborough, and Bernard Keyes, who has resided in Marlborough and Newburgh for several years, are charged with having assaulted Edward Baker, another seasonal worker, at a "hobo jungle" along the railroad tracks near Marlborough last May and taken from him some $800 which represented his savings.

The story of the two defendants differs as to the events of that day. Keyes, represented by John L. Larkin, contends he had no part in any robbery or assault and that he was given $30 of the loot after he and Copeland had arrived at Newburgh some time after the assault.

On the morning of the alleged crime Copeland and Keyes purchased wine and went to the jungle where they invited Baker to join them. They claim that when the wine was exhausted they asked Baker for money to get a new supply and also to get food necessary to make a pot of "mulligan" stew.

Denies Robbery

They went to the village, purchased the articles and returned to the jungle. Copeland contends that Baker asked for his change from a $5 bill and was denied the change and told to get on his way. There was a scuffle and Baker left.

Copeland denies there was assault or robbery and that the money which was found on him later when he was arrested in Marlborough was his own savings. He contends he has been a steady worker in the area for some time and saved his money.

Keyes Tells Story

Keyes, however tells another story. In his opening Attorney Larkin stated that the three men had met as alleged. Copeland and Keyes did go to the village for additional supplies but he claims when they returned to the "jungle" Copeland and Keyes went to the railroad track to get an additional supply of wood for the fire to cook the "mulligan" and while they were away he heard a scuffle on the tracks and Copeland returned and they left for Newburgh.

Not in Fight He Says

In Newburgh Keyes says he was given $25 or $30 by Copeland and they then separated. Where the money came from he claims he did not know. He denies he took any part in a robbery or assault. He claims he heard the battle but says hobo fights are constantly taking place in the "jungles" and he paid no attention to it.

Baker contends he was held up by the two men and robbed of his savings, after being slugged by the men. Baker is 58 years old, and was known to Copeland and Keyes only as the "toolmaker."

Sides Hold Firm In Theatre Strike

The strike of cashiers, ushers, candy attendants and porters at three local Walter Reade theatres continued today with no signs of settlement.

About 25 employes, claiming membership in Local B-42, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL), began picketing on Saturday afternoon after an attempt to win recognition for their union.

The local's president, Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, said today that there has been no move made by management toward a settlement, and that picketing will continue. She said other union groups in the city and county are supporting her local in its strike.

Fred Bartholdi, Reade's city manager, said today there was "nothing new" to report on the strike situation. He stressed again that all three theatres are "running as usual."

Meanwhile, Local 637 of the Theatrical Union, a union including local projectionists in its membership, said its members have refused to cross picket lines set up by Local B-42 and charged the three local Reade theatres are operating with non-union projectionists. Local 637 is not on strike.

The three theatres affected are the Kingston, Broadway and 9W Drive-In.

Strikes in Jersey Threaten Oil; Lines Manned by Pickets

Newark, N. J., Sept. 28 (AP)—Mushrooming strikes in key New Jersey defense plants spread from the aircraft to the rubber industry today and threatened oil production.

Well over a billion dollars in defense production was halted by walk-outs affecting more than 18,000 workers.

While federal mediators moved into the walkout of 10,000 Wright aeronautical workers in Wood-Ridge and Garfield, some 3,000 CIO rubber workers shut down the U. S. Rubber Co. plant in Passaic at midnight.

State officials moved to avert a stoppage of 2,200 workers at the Bayonne refinery of Esso Standard Oil Co., in mediation sessions here. They also scheduled conferences to try to settle a wage dispute that has idled 1,100 workers at four plants of the Whippany Paper Board Co. for 59 days.

Lines Are Formed

Picket lines were thrown around the Passaic rubber plant after four-month-old negotiations with Local 217, United Rubber Workers, broke down over a piece-work incentive system and seniority provisions. Some 2,700 production and 250 office workers stayed off the job.

Newspaper Prices Are Going Higher All Across Nation

(By The Associated Press)

Daily newspaper prices are swinging upward all over the country as costs of publishing increase steadily.

This upward trend has been underway for several months. Large and small newspapers alike have found a price boost necessary. It is country-wide.

Publishers cite greater newsprint costs, higher salaries and larger bills for distributing their papers.

In Los Angeles the Times and the Examiner, both morning papers have hiked daily newsstand prices from seven cents to a dime, effective October 1.

In Memphis, Tenn., the Commercial Appeal and the Press-Scimitar raised subscription prices, effective Monday. The former's weekly rate for daily and Sunday editions goes from 40 to 45 cents. The latter's for daily editions only goes from 25 to 30 cents.

Sunday papers in many cities have gone from 10 cents to 15 cents and in some cases to 20 cents.

Other price boosts, varying somewhat in size, included such widely separated dailies as:

Washington (D.C.) Star, Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger, Roanoke (Va.) Times and World-News, Indianapolis Star and News, Astoria (Oregon) Astorian-Budget, Galesburg (Ill.) Register-Mail, Attleboro (Mass.) Sun.

Barge Launched At Island Dock

Launching of the steel coal barge Edwin H. Werner for the Sargent Barge Line, Inc., of New York at Island Dock today was witnessed by its owner D. J. Sargent and a party of 15 men representing the companies served by the barge line.

The barge was christened by Mrs. Goodwin E. Crosby, niece of its owner, and went into the Rondout creek shortly after 11 a. m.

In the group who joined the personnel of Island Dock, Inc., in witnessing the launching were officials of the Jersey Central Power and Light Co., for which the barge will carry coal, and officials of the National Lead Co., and the National Sugar Refining Co., which the line also serves.

The visitors were guests of Island Dock at a luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel following the launching and they were scheduled to have dinner tonight as guests of the Sargent line at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York.

Finishing touches will be made on the barge at Island Dock and it will be shipped out in about 10 days. Another similar barge will be built at Island Dock as soon as steel is available.

Gross Gets Prison

cesspool of corruption which the people are sick of.

In Different Light

"Had you chosen to aid the people, this court would have looked upon you in a different light. But you made your choice and now you must answer for it. Let word go out to the community that he who trifles with justice will get nothing but justice."

Prior to sentencing Gross, the legal stage had been set for a spectacular expose of the bookie's testimony before the Brooklyn rackets-probing grand jury.

Kings county District Attorney Miles F. McDonald, fighting mad after Gross ruined his two-year buildup toward the police graft trial, had said he would read a digest of that testimony, listing police names which would implicate some 100 cops as bribe takers. High police brass is said to be among them.

Read From Records

McDonald read from the grand jury records, using a 100-page digest, but the names of the policemen were not disclosed.

Before the reading, Leibowitz, who presided at the police graft trial, asked that the names be withheld. Leibowitz said he reversed the DA's much-publicized plans because it would be "unfair and un-American" to name names when the accused policemen had no opportunity to defend themselves.

McDonald said:

"By itself, without naming names, we cannot show the full scope of Gross' familiarity with members of the police department. But I am bowing to the judge's decision."

After sentencing, Gross showed little emotion as he was taken to a jail cell. But he did mumble, "you'd think I committed murder or something."

Mrs. Matthews Is Named to Post

Mrs. Barbara Matthews, 16 Charlotte street, has been appointed chief observer of the Kingston Ground Observer Corps to replace Mrs. Dorothea Flemings, 34 Catskill avenue, who recently resigned, Sherwood E. Davis, director of local civil defense, announced today.

Mrs. Matthews, who was formerly an assistant chief observer, had served in civil defense during World War 2. Mrs. George Dewey Logan, 68 Garden street, is post supervisor.

At her first officers' meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel last night, Mrs. Matthews announced that training for spotters who have not previously served will start Oct. 1. She also announced that 30 new spotters are scheduled to report at the civil defense office, city hall, between 7 and 9 p. m. today to take the loyalty oath.

Strike Is Called

Labor announced in a broadcast that some military men launched a revolt against the government of Juan D. Peron. It called for a nationwide general strike in support of the President.

At frequent intervals the official state radio repeated this announcement from the presidential press office:

"A state of internal war exists. "Army officers taking part will be shot."

The Labor Confederation (CGT) is the backbone of Peron's government.

State of Siege Called

The broadcast warned that any military men joining in the uprising would be executed. A state of siege—a modified form of martial law—was proclaimed, the broadcast said.

Within minutes after the broadcast, a crowd began to assemble in front of the huge Plaza Mayo balcony from which Peron frequently has spoken to his supporters in the more than five years of his reign. Workers were urgently exhorted to assemble in the square, in front of the president's Casa Rosada offices.

Only yesterday President Peron annnounced that the army would police the forthcoming national elections in which he has been named a candidate to succeed himself.

Elections November 11

The Argentine elections are scheduled Nov. 11.

Peron first came to power in 1943 after an army coup overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo. Peron, as the power behind the scenes, placed Gen. Pedro P. Ramierz in power, then later replaced him with Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

Peron himself took over the posts of secretary of labor and security. In 1944 he emerged as minister of war and then vice president. Like many other South American strongmen, he built his strength around the labor party, having won military support.

In 1945 Peron was jailed briefly and then released. He campaigned for the presidential election and won it in 1946, Eva or Evita (Little Eva) Peron as she preferred to be called, then entered politics in a big way, helping to rally the workers and the poor to Peron's colors with broad promises of better days to come. Her beauty and her energy helped clinch the workers' support for her husband.

Married in 1945

Peron and Eva had been married secretly in a civil ceremony outside Buenos Aires in 1945. Peron then was 50, and Eva was 26. A church ceremony was held in December, when the marriage was annnounced officially.

Before his election June 4, 1946, Peron outlined a plan for a vast nationalization program to take over railways, airlines, buses, streetcars and shipping. He was able to carry out almost all this program and set up a government monopoly to buy meat, wheat and edible oils for export.

'Shirtless Ones'

His followers were dubbed the "descamisados," shirtless ones, in a concerted attack on the Argentine aristocracy and landowners. Great rallies were staged by the Peronista party to consolidate its position with the workers. Peron promised higher wages, shorter hours, retirement funds, paid vacations, maternity aids and Christmas bonuses.

Eva, meanwhile, set up the Eva Peron Foundation to dole out government and private funds. It became the biggest enterprise in Argentina, and some were forced to contribute to it with a smile.

The Perons bought and controlled newspapers, with Eva at the helm of the newspaper Democracia. Peron's government put the largest independent daily, La Prensa,, out of business, and exercised control over others through government monopoly of newsprint.

Jailed His Opposition

Peron jailed politicians who opposed him, charging them with "descato," or disrespect of the president. Ricardo Balbin, Radical party member and leading figure of the opposition, was sentenced only last November to five years on that charge, but he was pardoned and released in January.

The army, however, appeared to have been unhappy over the "petticoat rule" of Evita. In February, 1947, army leaders were reported to have approached Peron with appeals to ease his politically ambitious wife out of public life.

Peron is understood to have threatened to resign if the army brought further pressure to bear on the touchy point of Evita. Since the military at that time had no appetite for another coup, the deadlock was unbroken and Evita continued as "the lady of hope" and "the standard bearer of the meek" in the words of her newspaper tributes.

In March, 1949, the Constitutional Assembly reframed the old 1853 Constitution to enable Peron to run for a second term he at first said he had no intention of offering himself again but he was "persuaded" by party councils to reconsider.

OPS Memo Causes

Salle was in Chicago when the memo was disclosed. He termed it "poorly conceived" and said of its withdrawal: "If I'd been there (in Washington) we wouldn't have needed a request from the President."

The storm which quickly blew up in the Senate promised to subside. Senator Maybank (D.-S.C.) said he was happy to learn of the President's action, taken after the Senate recessed overnight.

In the brief period the memo was still in effect, Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) called it "a blow at liberty." Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) said "I am not able to produce words to describe any feelings at this."

Albany, Sept. 28 (AP)—The State Liquor Authority refused today to renew the liquor license of a Hudson woman who said food sales in her restaurant had fallen off because of a decline of sporting activities in the city. The SLA said Miss Sofi Lwivsky was not operating a bona fide restaurant. Gambling and other vice in Hudson is being investigated by a State Crime Commission agent.

Jury Is Completed In 'Hobo Jungle' Alleged Assault

A jury was completed this morning in County Court where the robbery, grand larceny and assault charges against William Copeland and Bernard Keyes were under trial.

Copeland, a seasonal worker in the town of Marlborough, and Bernard Keyes, who has resided in Marlborough and Newburgh for several years, are charged with having assaulted Edward Baker, another seasonal worker, at a "hobo jungle" along the railroad tracks near Marlborough last May and taken from him some $800 which represented his savings.

The story of the two defendants differs as to the events of that day. Keyes, represented by John L. Larkin, contends he had no part in any robbery or assault and that he was given $30 of the loot after he and Copeland had arrived at Newburgh some time after the assault.

On the morning of the alleged crime Copeland and Keyes purchased wine and went to the jungle where they invited Baker to join them. They claim that when the wine was exhausted they asked Baker for money to get a new supply and also to get food necessary to make a pot of "mulligan" stew.

Denies Robbery

They went to the village, purchased the articles and returned to the jungle. Copeland contends that Baker asked for his change from a $5 bill and was denied the change and told to get on his way. There was a scuffle and Baker left.

Copeland denies there was assault or robbery and that the money which was found on him later when he was arrested in Marlborough was his own savings. He contends he has been a steady worker in the area for some time and saved his money.

Keyes Tells Story

Keyes, however tells another story. In his opening Attorney Larkin stated that the three men had met as alleged. Copeland and Keyes did go to the village for additional supplies but he claims when they returned to the "jungle" Copeland and Keyes went to the railroad track to get an additional supply of wood for the fire to cook the "mulligan" and while they were away he heard a scuffle on the tracks and Copeland returned and they left for Newburgh.

Not in Fight He Says

In Newburgh Keyes says he was given $25 or $30 by Copeland and they then separated. Where the money came from he claims he did not know. He denies he took any part in a robbery or assault. He claims he heard the battle but says hobo fights are constantly taking place in the "jungles" and he paid no attention to it.

Baker contends he was held up by the two men and robbed of his savings, after being slugged by the men. Baker is 58 years old, and was known to Copeland and Keyes only as the "toolmaker."

Sides Hold Firm In Theatre Strike

The strike of cashiers, ushers, candy attendants and porters at three local Walter Reade theatres continued today with no signs of settlement.

About 25 employes, claiming membership in Local B-42, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL), began picketing on Saturday afternoon after an attempt to win recognition for their union.

The local's president, Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, said today that there has been no move made by management toward a settlement, and that picketing will continue. She said other union groups in the city and county are supporting her local in its strike.

Fred Bartholdi, Reade's city manager, said today there was "nothing new" to report on the strike situation. He stressed again that all three theatres are "running as usual."

Meanwhile, Local 637 of the Theatrical Union, a union including local projectionists in its membership, said its members have refused to cross picket lines set up by Local B-42 and charged the three local Reade theatres are operating with non-union projectionists. Local 637 is not on strike.

The three theatres affected are the Kingston, Broadway and 9W Drive-In.

Strikes in Jersey Threaten Oil; Lines Manned by Pickets

Newark, N. J., Sept. 28 (AP)—Mushrooming strikes in key New Jersey defense plants spread from the aircraft to the rubber industry today and threatened oil production.

Well over a billion dollars in defense production was halted by walk-outs affecting more than 18,000 workers.

While federal mediators moved into the walkout of 10,000 Wright aeronautical workers in Wood-Ridge and Garfield, some 3,000 CIO rubber workers shut down the U. S. Rubber Co. plant in Passaic at midnight.

State officials moved to avert a stoppage of 2,200 workers at the Bayonne refinery of Esso Standard Oil Co., in mediation sessions here. They also scheduled conferences to try to settle a wage dispute that has idled 1,100 workers at four plants of the Whippany Paper Board Co. for 59 days.

Lines Are Formed

Picket lines were thrown around the Passaic rubber plant after four-month-old negotiations with Local 217, United Rubber Workers, broke down over a piece-work incentive system and seniority provisions. Some 2,700 production and 250 office workers stayed off the job.

Newspaper Prices Are Going Higher All Across Nation

(By The Associated Press)

Daily newspaper prices are swinging upward all over the country as costs of publishing increase steadily.

This upward trend has been underway for several months. Large and small newspapers alike have found a price boost necessary. It is country-wide.

Publishers cite greater newsprint costs, higher salaries and larger bills for distributing their papers.

In Los Angeles the Times and the Examiner, both morning papers have hiked daily newsstand prices from seven cents to a dime, effective October 1.

In Memphis, Tenn., the Commercial Appeal and the Press-Scimitar raised subscription prices, effective Monday. The former's weekly rate for daily and Sunday editions goes from 40 to 45 cents. The latter's for daily editions only goes from 25 to 30 cents.

Sunday papers in many cities have gone from 10 cents to 15 cents and in some cases to 20 cents.

Other price boosts, varying somewhat in size, included such widely separated dailies as:

Washington (D.C.) Star, Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger, Roanoke (Va.) Times and World-News, Indianapolis Star and News, Astoria (Oregon) Astorian-Budget, Galesburg (Ill.) Register-Mail, Attleboro (Mass.) Sun.

Barge Launched At Island Dock

Launching of the steel coal barge Edwin H. Werner for the Sargent Barge Line, Inc., of New York at Island Dock today was witnessed by its owner D. J. Sargent and a party of 15 men representing the companies served by the barge line.

The barge was christened by Mrs. Goodwin E. Crosby, niece of its owner, and went into the Rondout creek shortly after 11 a. m.

In the group who joined the personnel of Island Dock, Inc., in witnessing the launching were officials of the Jersey Central Power and Light Co., for which the barge will carry coal, and officials of the National Lead Co., and the National Sugar Refining Co., which the line also serves.

The visitors were guests of Island Dock at a luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel following the launching and they were scheduled to have dinner tonight as guests of the Sargent line at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York.

Finishing touches will be made on the barge at Island Dock and it will be shipped out in about 10 days. Another similar barge will be built at Island Dock as soon as steel is available.

Gross Gets Prison

cesspool of corruption which the people are sick of.

In Different Light

"Had you chosen to aid the people, this court would have looked upon you in a different light. But you made your choice and now you must answer for it. Let word go out to the community that he who trifles with justice will get nothing but justice."

Prior to sentencing Gross, the legal stage had been set for a spectacular expose of the bookie's testimony before the Brooklyn rackets-probing grand jury.

Kings county District Attorney Miles F. McDonald, fighting mad after Gross ruined his two-year buildup toward the police graft trial, had said he would read a digest of that testimony, listing police names which would implicate some 100 cops as bribe takers. High police brass is said to be among them.

Read From Records

McDonald read from the grand jury records, using a 100-page digest, but the names of the policemen were not disclosed.

Before the reading, Leibowitz, who presided at the police graft trial, asked that the names be withheld. Leibowitz said he reversed the DA's much-publicized plans because it would be "unfair and un-American" to name names when the accused policemen had no opportunity to defend themselves.

McDonald said:

"By itself, without naming names, we cannot show the full scope of Gross' familiarity with members of the police department. But I am bowing to the judge's decision."

After sentencing, Gross showed little emotion as he was taken to a jail cell. But he did mumble, "you'd think I committed murder or something."

Mrs. Matthews Is Named to Post

Mrs. Barbara Matthews, 16 Charlotte street, has been appointed chief observer of the Kingston Ground Observer Corps to replace Mrs. Dorothea Flemings, 34 Catskill avenue, who recently resigned, Sherwood E. Davis, director of local civil defense, announced today.

Mrs. Matthews, who was formerly an assistant chief observer, had served in civil defense during World War 2. Mrs. George Dewey Logan, 68 Garden street, is post supervisor.

At her first officers' meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel last night, Mrs. Matthews announced that training for spotters who have not previously served will start Oct. 1. She also announced that 30 new spotters are scheduled to report at the civil defense office, city hall, between 7 and 9 p. m. today to take the loyalty oath.

Strike Is Called

Labor announced in a broadcast that some military men launched a revolt against the government of Juan D. Peron. It called for a nationwide general strike in support of the President.

At frequent intervals the official state radio repeated this announcement from the presidential press office:

"A state of internal war exists. "Army officers taking part will be shot."

The Labor Confederation (CGT) is the backbone of Peron's government.

State of Siege Called

The broadcast warned that any military men joining in the uprising would be executed. A state of siege—a modified form of martial law—was proclaimed, the broadcast said.

Within minutes after the broadcast, a crowd began to assemble in front of the huge Plaza Mayo balcony from which Peron frequently has spoken to his supporters in the more than five years of his reign. Workers were urgently exhorted to assemble in the square, in front of the president's Casa Rosada offices.

Only yesterday President Peron annnounced that the army would police the forthcoming national elections in which he has been named a candidate to succeed himself.

Elections November 11

The Argentine elections are scheduled Nov. 11.

Peron first came to power in 1943 after an army coup overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo. Peron, as the power behind the scenes, placed Gen. Pedro P. Ramierz in power, then later replaced him with Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

Peron himself took over the posts of secretary of labor and security. In 1944 he emerged as minister of war and then vice president. Like many other South American strongmen, he built his strength around the labor party, having won military support.

In 1945 Peron was jailed briefly and then released. He campaigned for the presidential election and won it in 1946. Eva or Evita (Little Eva) Peron as she preferred to be called, then entered politics in a big way, helping to rally the workers and the poor to Peron's colors with broad promises of better days to come. Her beauty and her energy helped clinch the workers' support for her husband.

Married in 1945

Peron and Eva had been married secretly in a civil ceremony outside Buenos Aires in 1945. Peron then was 50, and Eva was 26. A church ceremony was held in December, when the marriage was annnounced officially.

Before his election June 4, 1946, Peron outlined a plan for a vast nationalization program to take over railways, airlines, buses, streetcars and shipping. He was able to carry out almost all this program and set up a government monopoly to buy meat, wheat and edible oils for export.

'Shirtless Ones'

His followers were dubbed the "descamisados," shirtless ones, in a concerted attack on the Argentine aristocracy and landowners. Great rallies were staged by the Peronista party to consolidate its position with the workers. Peron promised higher wages, shorter hours, retirement funds, paid vacations, maternity aids and Christmas bonuses.

Eva, meanwhile, set up the Eva Peron Foundation to dole out government and private funds. It became the biggest enterprise in Argentina, and some were forced to contribute to it with a smile.

The Perons bought and controlled newspapers, with Eva at the helm of the newspaper Democracia. Peron's government put the largest independent daily, La Prensa,, out of business, and exercised control over others through government monopoly of newsprint.

Jailed His Opposition

Peron jailed politicians who opposed him, charging them with "descato," or disrespect of the president. Ricardo Balbin, Radical party member and leading figure of the opposition, was sentenced only last November to five years on that charge, but he was pardoned and released in January.

The army, however, appeared to have been unhappy over the "petticoat rule" of Evita. In February, 1947, army leaders were reported to have approached Peron with appeals to ease his politically ambitious wife out of public life.

Peron is understood to have threatened to resign if the army brought further pressure to bear on the touchy point of Evita. Since the military at that time had no appetite for another coup, the deadlock was unbroken and Evita continued as "the lady of hope" and "the standard bearer of the meek" in the words of her newspaper tributes.

In March, 1949, the Constitutional Assembly reframed the old 1853 Constitution to enable Peron to run for a second term he at first said he had no intention of offering himself again but he was "persuaded" by party councils to reconsider.

OPS Memo Causes

Salle was in Chicago when the memo was disclosed. He termed it "poorly conceived" and said of its withdrawal: "If I'd been there (in Washington) we wouldn't have needed a request from the President."

The storm which quickly blew up in the Senate promised to subside. Senator Maybank (D.-S.C.) said he was happy to learn of the President's action, taken after the Senate recessed overnight.

In the brief period the memo was still in effect, Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) called it "a blow at liberty." Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) said "I am not able to produce words to describe any feelings at this."

Says Sporting Declined

Albany, Sept. 28 (AP)—The State Liquor Authority refused today to renew the liquor license of a Hudson woman who said food sales in her restaurant had fallen off because of a decline of sporting activities in the city. The SLA said Miss Sofi Lwivsky was not operating a bona fide restaurant. Gambling and other vice in Hudson is being investigated by a State Crime Commission agent.

May Ratify Agreement

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 28 (AP)—Hopes appeared high today that 22,000 strikers at the Caterpillar Tractor Co. would ratify an agreement ending their long and costly strike and return to their jobs Monday. The two-month-old wage dispute at the largest industrial unit in downstate Illinois was settled in Washington yesterday through efforts of the Federal Mediation Service.

Testifies He Pocketed 'Contributions'

Edward A. Ruppell (left) Republican boss of Staten Island, New York city, talks with his attorney, Harold E. Corbin, after testifying Sept. 26, before the New York State Crime Commission formed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Ruppell said he raised money in the party's name and pocketed it. Jittery office holders and liquor license applicant were a prime source of what the politician called "contributions."

Ruppell Declines To Quit as Leader

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Can Staten Island's Republican chairman, Edward A. Ruppell, hold his post in the face of charges made against him at State Crime Commission hearings?

Ruppell's reaction to the testimony about political skulduggery in his country-like bailiwick is that he has no intention "at the present" of quitting the chairmanship.

He said last night he would arrive at a decision this week-end.

Ruppell made the statement shortly after Republican State Chairman William L. Pfeiffer—with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's backing—demanded that Ruppell quit as Richmond county Republican chairman.

The ax fell on two state jobholders yesterday in the aftermath of seven days of hearings by the State Crime Commission on links between politics and the underworld in the ferryboat borough.

Those relieved of their jobs:

1. George W. Gatz, chief executive officer of the State Liquor Authority. Testimony had linked him with payments to Ruppell for liquor licenses. At his own request, Gatz was granted a leave of absence. He said he wanted the leave until he could clear his name. He said he was "innocent of any wrongdoing."

2. The other jobholder to feel the ax was Angelo Costantino, an associate counsel to the State Tax Commission. Costantino, who figured in the testimony about payments allegedly exacted by Ruppell for liquor licenses, was suspended by the State Tax Commission pending further investigation.

Ruppell resigned yesterday from his $10,000-a-year job as Richmond county (Staten Island) commissioner of borough works.

The State Crime Commission's hearings on links between crime and politics on Staten Island were suspended Wednesday, and no date was set for possible resumption.

Leader Is Killed

Manila, Sept. 28 (AP)—Guillermo Capadocia, the Communist Huks' No. 2 leader, was killed today by Philippines troops on Panay Island. The government had offered a $50,000 reward for him. The National Defense Department said an army task force led by Col. Alfredo M. Ramos battled Capadocia's Huk band in San Remigio Township.

More Gems Found; This Time in Ship

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Authorities say another $50,000 to $100,000 in gems was discovered yesterday on the liner Queen Elizabeth in a stateroom where $66,000 in undeclared jewels was found Wednesday in the clothing of a nine-year-old girl.

Customs men told of finding a cache of cut diamonds under a bunk in the room occupied by Mrs. Perl Blatt, wife of a Brooklyn jeweler, and their daughter.

When the liner docked on Wednesday, the mother was warned that physical examinations would be necessary. Mrs. Blatt then pointed out jewelry concealed in the girl's clothing. Agents say they found a $25,000 diamond brooch, $25,000 necklace, a $15,000 emerald and diamond bracelet and a $1,000 diamond ring.

They quoted Mrs. Blatt as saying she attempted to smuggle the jewelry into the U. S. because she was unable to take them or a like amount of cash out of England legally.

Officials confiscated all the gems but no charges have been filed pending further investigation.

Mrs. Oscar Smith and Miss Marguerite Smith are making frequent visits to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh, where Miss Ratie Paltridge was removed by ambulance after she had injured herself in a fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Paltridge and daughter, Phyllis are moving from the tenant house on the property of Morris Cohn, south of Modena, to a cottage on the property of Mrs. Alvina Matheisen, north of the village.

Testifies He Pocketed 'Contributions'

Edward A. Ruppell (left) Republican boss of Staten Island, New York city, talks with his attorney, Harold E. Corbin, after testifying Sept. 26, before the New York State Crime Commission formed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Ruppell said he raised money in the party's name and pocketed it. Jittery office holders and liquor license applicant were a prime source of what the politician called "contributions."

May Ratify Agreement

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 28 (AP)—Hopes appeared high today that 22,000 strikers at the Caterpillar Tractor Co. would ratify an agreement ending their long and costly strike and return to their jobs Monday. The two-month-old wage dispute at the largest industrial unit in downstate Illinois was settled in Washington yesterday through efforts of the Federal Mediation Service.

Ruppell Declines To Quit as Leader

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Can Staten Island's Republican chairman, Edward A. Ruppell, hold his post in the face of charges made against him at State Crime Commission hearings?

Ruppell's reaction to the testimony about political skulduggery in his country-like bailiwick is that he has no intention "at the present" of quitting the chairmanship.

He said last night he would arrive at a decision this week-end.

Ruppell made the statement shortly after Republican State Chairman William L. Pfeiffer—with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's backing—demanded that Ruppell quit as Richmond county Republican chairman.

The ax fell on two state jobholders yesterday in the aftermath of seven days of hearings by the State Crime Commission on links between politics and the underworld in the ferryboat borough.

Those relieved of their jobs:

1. George W. Gatz, chief executive officer of the State Liquor Authority. Testimony had linked him with payments to Ruppell for liquor licenses. At his own request, Gatz was granted a leave of absence. He said he wanted the leave until he could clear his name. He said he was "innocent of any wrongdoing."

2. The other jobholder to feel the ax was Angelo Costantino, an associate counsel to the State Tax Commission. Costantino, who figured in the testimony about payments allegedly exacted by Ruppell for liquor licenses, was suspended by the State Tax Commission pending further investigation.

Ruppell resigned yesterday from his $10,000-a-year job as Richmond county (Staten Island) commissioner of borough works.

The State Crime Commission's hearings on links between crime and politics on Staten Island were suspended Wednesday, and no date was set for possible resumption.

Leader Is Killed

Manila, Sept. 28 (AP)—Guillermo Capadocia, the Communist Huks' No. 2 leader, was killed today by Philippines troops on Panay Island. The government had offered a $50,000 reward for him. The National Defense Department said an army task force led by Col. Alfredo M. Ramos battled Capadocia's Huk band in San Remigio Township.

More Gems Found; This Time in Ship

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Authorities say another $50,000 to $100,000 in gems was discovered yesterday on the liner Queen Elizabeth in a stateroom where $66,000 in undeclared jewels was found Wednesday in the clothing of a nine-year-old girl.

Customs men told of finding a cache of cut diamonds under a bunk in the room occupied by Mrs. Perl Blatt, wife of a Brooklyn jeweler, and their daughter.

When the liner docked on Wednesday, the mother was warned that physical examinations would be necessary. Mrs. Blatt then pointed out jewelry concealed in the girl's clothing. Agents say they found a $25,000 diamond brooch, $25,000 necklace, a $15,000 emerald and diamond bracelet and a $1,000 diamond ring.

They quoted Mrs. Blatt as saying she attempted to smuggle the jewelry into the U. S. because she was unable to take them or a like amount of cash out of England legally.

Officials confiscated all the gems but no charges have been filed pending further investigation.

RETARDED PUBLIC SERVICES

At the recent Ottawa Conference of the North Atlantic Treaty nations, our western Allies drilled home the idea that rearmament—if not carefully pursued—represents a menace to their none-too-robust civilian economies.

U. S. officials concede the existence of this peril, but they don't agree with European leaders that the way to meet it is to have America bear a still larger share of the defense burden. Our statesmen feel Europe can do more on its own to expand output and thus ease the bite on civilian activities.

They might have made another point. Surely it is true that the United States is better able to shoulder a big share of the rearmament load than are European countries; and to sustain reductions in the level of civilian production. But we still have some desperately pressing problems that are being made vastly more urgent by the defense effort.

America is continuing its celebrated growth. Population is rising and the economy is burgeoning to take care of multiplying needs. This year, for example, business will spend a record $25 billion for additional plants.

Yet some of the public services which go hand-in-hand with that development are not keeping pace. They were not keeping up even before the defense emergency, and now the situation is far worse.

Attention was called not long ago to the serious lag in highway construction. With trucks carrying an ever-increasing proportion of our goods, with more passenger cars on the road than ever, the traffic situation is becoming intolerable in many places. Unless relieved, it will soon begin to cause stagnation.

The outlook for American schools is not much happier. The wartime boom in babies is having its first heavy impact upon our school system today—and the brutal facts are apparent. We do not have enough school buildings and other facilities, nor enough teachers to handle the deluge. And no building program or teacher-training plan now in sight seems adequate to cope with it.

Turn to the problem of hospitals and general medical facilities and the story is much the same. Naturally, too, other community services are suffering.

Beyond doubt it is impossible to meet all these needs to perfection while a preparedness program is still under way. They most likely would not be wholly cared for, even without the defense activity.

But it seems fair that our statesmen should make plain to Europe that we cannot grossly neglect these requirements without ultimately impairing the strength all free men look to for security.

And within our own bailiwick, we might usefully work out a system of priorities for the development of schools, highways and other services. In that fashion, even though under limits imposed by rearmament, we might assure a minimum healthy balance in our national life. Without that balance, the warping strains of uneven growth can only diminish American power.

A rumor has been heard that General Douglas MacArthur may move to Connecticut, and in that case be boomed for the Republican nomination for senator. The Constitution requires merely that a senator live in the state which elects him, and does not say for how long prior to election.

NOT ENOUGH PENNIES

The House and the Senate were in complete disagreement as to whether it should cost three cents or four cents to mail a letter, and on a few other points about postal rates. But the Post Office Department deficit, if it could have been endowed with human characteristics, would have been smiling tolerantly about the whole business, secure in the knowledge that it would not be banished by any agreement along lines suggested in the debate.

The deficit is running about half a billion dollars a year, and the largest rate increases under consideration would increase revenues by only about $400,000,000. At the same time a pay increase bill which would add a quarter of a billion to the costs of the Department was being prepared for final approval. It appeared to be quite certain that the postal system deficit would remain with us.

Percentages did not seem nearly as important in school as they become toward the end of the baseball season.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

WATCH THE COURTS

Manners are the exterior manifestation of morals. When the manners of a people are debased, it needs to look after its morals. In our courts and before various semi-judicial investigations, a disrespect for the dignity of the courts and the law is being displayed which would be intolerable anywhere, but more so among a free people whose order of life is controlled by a voluntary acceptance of law.

In a despotism, it is possible to say: "Off with his head!" And off it goes. In a free society rigorous protections are placed about the individual to safeguard him against tyrannical and whimsical acts of public officials. But the citizen can only safeguard his liberties and protections if he practices self-restraint, if he is respectful and decent, if he recognizes that while all are equal before the law, none may be contemptuous of it.

The 11 Communists who appeared in Judge Medina's court and acted like hoodlums set a bad example, to be followed with vulgar impudence by Harry Gross in Judge Leibowitz's court in Brooklyn, and before the New York State Crime Commission.

Harry Gross made a mockery of a court, making it obvious that increasingly those who live on the margins of society have become so bold that they respect nothing—not the law, not the courts, not the dignity of judges.

Criminals have always existed. But such men, in the past, lived in fear of being caught. They were bold and brazen until they faced stern justice and knew the majesty of the law, as evidenced in a court.

The new breed of hoodlums, having no morals and believing that all men are corruptible, look upon our courts as marketplaces and upon judges as current or potential crooks. Their only problem seems to be to find the right politician who will know how to bribe the particular judge.

I have been told by lawyers that there has been a notable falling away of good manners in the courts; that not only laymen but many lawyers act impudently in the courts, flouting the judges, and giving the impression of familiarity, which is the first sign of contempt. I have also been told by lawyers that some judges tend to be lenient because they recognize that the lawyer is trying to impress his client that he is earing his fee. When judges are lax and lawyers forgetful of their manners, it must be accepted that a debasement of morals has set in.

The manners and morals of a people are set at the top. What is propriety is determined by the style of those in authority and position. When the leaders of a nation are vulgar, indecent in manners and morals, when their language is cheap and blasphemous, when they associate with petty crooks and political panhandlers, when they themselves grow rich in public office or tolerate abuses among those who are close to them—the style of corruption will have been set.

Harry Gross and Mike Dalessio are no different from the gamblers who refused to testify or even to open their mouths before the Kefauver Committee, or from those who, by consent, perjure themselves in divorce cases, or who steal in connection with the RFC or who go through a red light on the road, imperilling other human beings.

These are responses to the same lack of self-discipline. And it goes as high or low as you like in American life today.

I noticed, traveling the roads this summer in an automobile, the disregard of drivers for traffic regulations, particularly the drivers of big and heavy trucks who are fast pushing the taxpaying citizens off the road. Naturally, it is impossible to police all the roads of this country all the time, but we must assume in a free society that men will restrain themselves, police themselves. It must be assumed, in a free country, that the police are to be called in unusually, that citizens, recognizing the law as a majestic keystone in the arch of social existence, will obey it without police action.

In a moral society, such self-discipline can be depended upon. It is handed down from father to son as the decent way to live. It used to be called manners and those who failed them were ostracized by clean-living people. But when a Mickey Cohen is pitied as a product of his environment, we are dealing not with manners, morals or justice but with social corruption.

That Body of Yours

OUT-PATIENT CLINICS FOR ALCOHOLICS

I write about alcohol and alcoholism frequently because governments, various voluntary organizations and the public generally have become aware of the great mistake we have all been making in not considering alcoholism as a defect in the make-up of an individual—a defect that should be treated as any other defect or disease. And because this defect or disease affects not only the alcoholic himself but his working or productive ability and the comfort and happiness of his family, it means that his treatment and care is really a public liability.

That the alcoholic is really a sick man or woman and should have the care of a physician instead of the police has been shown to us by the Yale School for Study of Alcoholism and other organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous. Some weeks ago I reported that the state of Massachusetts had adopted the idea of treating alcoholics in the out-patient clinics of several general hospitals.

The pattern of organization or method followed is similar to that of other clinics operated cooperatively by the Department of Public Health. It is intended that these clinic facilities for alcoholism shall be a part of the regular services offered the community by the hospital.

We read in The New England Medical Journal that at these clinics "the patient must be helped to adjust his life, without alcohol, to the community and its environment wherein he lives or expects to live. Merely to keep the alcoholic sober in the artificial environment in an institution instead of the environment of his home community, or depending on special treatment, is expensive, ineffective and certain to lead to failure."

It is further pointed out that the establishment of such clinics in out-patient departments of general hospitals means that the alcoholic knows that his affliction is accepted as a disease to be cared for in or by an institution in which other ailments are treated. This tends to remove the stigma so frequently attached to alcoholism, the alcoholic is more readily willing to admit his inability to handle alcohol and so seeks help.

Research workers in alcoholism and members of Alcoholics Anonymous have found that once the alcoholic admits he needs help in fighting alcoholism, he almost certainly can be cured.

Courageous Little Fellow, Isn't He?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The nation's capital today is witnessing the most nauseating spasm of large and petty graft since this newsman began covering Washington.

There are several reasons for this, as previously enumerated in this column, one of them being the fact that government officials have lost their sense of smell.

When the man at the top in government can't smell the bad odor arising from the distribution of deep freezes by his military aide, or when he defends the commodity grain speculation of his White House doctor, and tolerates airline lobbying by his chief secretary, then the olfactory nerves of those around him get dull too.

Another important reason for the sickening spectacle of graft and favoritism, however, is the current system of political campaign contributions. This is something the public little realizes.

It has now become a standard practice for both big business and labor unions to obligate congressmen. After you have made your contribution to a congressman's political campaign, you then benefit by influencing his vote on legislation of interest to you, or getting him to call up government agencies in order to secure loans, priorities or government contracts.

This practice has become so widespread that many otherwise fine senators and representatives get so in hock politically that they can hardly call their souls their own.

Getting Big Loan

Here is how the system works: out in Los Angeles, members of the Harvey Machine Company contribute heavily to the campaign funds of several congressmen. Most of the time they bet their money on Democrats, because the Democrats are in power. But sometimes they also back Republicans. In addition, Lawrence Harvey wants to be Democratic national committeeman from California, chips in $1,000 at each of the last two Jackson Day dinners and serves on the $100-a-plate committee welcoming Truman to Los Angeles October 8.

Simultaneously the Harvey company wants a big loan to build an aluminum plant. A lot of wires are pulled, congressmen who are recipients of campaign contributions go to bat, and lo and behold, Harvey comes up with a $46,000,000 loan. There's a lot more to the story than that, but one of the most important features is the way certain very fine congressmen have to become messenger boys for Harvey largely to pay off a political debt.

It doesn't make for clean efficient government.

China Lobby Contributes

Or take another case. When Senator Bridges of Maine last ran for re-election in New Hampshire, Alfred Kohlberg, who lives in New York, not New Hampshire, contributed $1,000 to Bridge's campaign. Kohlberg just happens to be the key man in the China Lobby.

Another Bridges contributor, in fact his heaviest, also lives a long way from New Hampshire—in San Francisco. He is Edward Heller, whose wife happens to be Democratic national committeewoman for California. Yet Heller, a Democrat, contributed $3,000 to help Senator Bridges, a Republican, stay in the Senate from New Hampshire.

Significantly, Heller is director of the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, biggest repository of Chinese Nationalist money. Significant also, Bridges, both before and since his election, has gone out of his way to defend Chinag Kai-shek. Once as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he even sent a lobbyist for Chiang's brother-in-law on a propaganda mission to China, cloaked as Senate representative—though actually paid by the Chiang family.

Obligating a senator has become so common that long rows of campaign contributors from the Delaware du Ponts turn up in south Dakota, while Texas oilmen sent several thousand dollars to Maryland last year to elect GOP Senator Butler.

Labor Bets Too

On the other hand, John L. Lewis kicked in half a million dollars on behalf of the United Mine Workers to elect Roosevelt in 1936, while labor all over the nation poured money into Ohio in 1950 to try to beat Taft.

The tragedy is that under the present system, money from somebody or other is absolutely necessary. You can't run a political campaign without it. Billboards cost about $1,000 each. Radio time can run into hundreds of thousands, while TV is going to cost even more. Governor Dewey turned the tide of the New York election last year in his last 24 hours of television, thereby setting a pattern which every imporant candidate will have to follow at tremendous cost and the necessity of passing the hat for more compaign funds.

Best way to prevent all this probably is to abolish all campaign funds and have a national kitty put up by Congress for each party. If the Democrats and Republicans each were voted $5,000,000, to be allocated state-by-state on the basis of population, it would save five-times-five million dollars in the elimination of graft and favoritism.

Note—Biggest and strangest contributions by eastern bigwigs betting on a senatorial horse were the gifts that poured into South Dakota to re-elect the late Sen. Harlan Bushfield, Republican. Contributions included $4,000 from Lammot duPont of Delaware; $2,500 from his brother, Irenee duPont; $2,000 from their General Motors associate, Alfred P. Sloan; $5,000 from Ailsa Mellon of the Pittsburgh Mellon family; $4,000 from Sarah Mellon Scaife; $6,000 from the Pew family of the Sun Oil Co., in Philadelphia; $5,000 from Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune; $10,000 from Mazey Jarmon of the General Shoe Co., in Tennessee; and $1,000 from L. W. Mesta of Pittsburgh, cousin of Perle.

Questions — Answers

..Q—What was the name of the lightship that headed off a Nazi sub in World War II?

A—This incident was the highest moment in the career of the lightship "Old Stone Horse." It happened when the old boat went adrift in a northeaster and a sub surfaced nearby. The lightship flashed the signal lights just as when she was on station. The sub's officers, knowing her proper position, concluded they were far off course and turned toward the outer ocean.

President Is Wrong in His Assumption on Treatment of All Federal Employes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 28—President Truman must have had his tongue in his cheek when he sent a message to Congress recommending that a law be passed which would require every official—whether in the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of the government—to make once a year a full disclosure to the public of all his sources of income besides his government salary.

For Mr. Truman has been outspoken heretofore in his claim that able and conscientious citizens do not want to come to Washington to work for the government because they might be smeared. Certainly it will be hard to persuade individuals to enter government service hereafter if they happen to have made a success in a business or profession and have put away their savings in securities.

The right of privacy is sacred in America. Only when a man or woman is accused of dishonesty is it lawful as a rule to reveal to a congressional committee, for example, an income-tax return. But, while it would be constitutional for legislation to be passed requiring disclosure of all the details of the financial affairs of a person who enters the government service, the big question is whether it would serve any purpose except to provoke smears.

Mr. Truman is rightly indignant that recent charges and rumors have cast suspicion on various persons in the government service, but he is mistaken if he thinks that all government officials now have been tarred with the same brush.

It is, moreover, not clear why the President thinks disclosure of annual incomes will of itself change the minds of those people around the country who, he says, "are getting a mistaken and a distorted impression that the government is full of evil-doers, full of men and women with low standards of morality, full of people who are lining their own pockets and disregarding the public interest."

What Mr. Truman proposes will only open up to smear and suspicion the personal affairs of a lot of innocent people and, rather than go through such an experience, persons of means—the very people who, having won success in private life, can now contribute their time at low salaries to public service—will fight shy of any government posts. America would be the loser, because the job-seekers who in private business or their professions cannot earn more than government pay will be the ones who will be selected for positions in the government, not only for Congress but for the federal bench.

It looks as if Mr. Truman is smarting under the charges which have been leveled at his administration and is trying to throw up a smoke screen to divert attention from the unmorality of individuals inside and outside the government who have been the beneficiaries of "pull" and influence and special privilege. This cannot be cured by offering a reckless proposal to reveal the family finances of every government official. For it would not be enough presumably to disclose the official's own income. Logically, the income of his wife or father-in-law or cousin or aunt would have to be disclosed, too.

What is most disappointing is that Mr. Truman succumbs to the very thing he has been denouncing—the assumption that men in the government cannot themselves be trusted to distinguish between proper and improper connections or interests. He does not confine this to executive officials but he puts the finger of suspicion on federal judges, too, and takes it for granted that justices can no longer be depended upon to disqualify themselves from sitting in cases involving companies or firms with which in the past they may have had some connection or in whose securities they at present have investments.

To assume that federal judges can't be trusted to conduct themselves properly and must disclose their financial affairs to everybody's gaze is a reflection on the judiciary which illustrates the utter carelessness and irresponsibility of the President's message. If Mr. Truman had sent to Congress a declaration that in America everybody is deemed honest in financial affairs and in the conduct of his office unless someone can come forth with evidence of dishonesty and that the discovery of dishonesty in government will be promptly prosecuted, he would have been on safer ground. But in the wake of the scandals in the RFC and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue—both of which have been under his immediate supervision as Chief Executive—it is a grave mistake for the President now to try to shift the blame by suggesting that all public officials disclose their private affairs.

What he is also doing—perhaps inadvertently—is to open up the question of whether the Democratic National Committee is in need of an authentic list of private incomes to help with the annual shakedown that usually precedes the $100-a-plate dinners and the collection of larger contributions. Stranger things have happened in politics.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 28—The Babson Organization has 2,000 corporations on its Master List which it constantly watches. In other words, out of the 16,000 corporations whose securities are publicly traded in, we select 2,000 which we believe to be the cream.

Notwithstanding our careful selection, some of these corporations are at times suffering from one department slipping. This naturally worries the head of the department. The more he worries, the more the department slips; the more it slips, the more he worries. If this continues too long he has a nervous breakdown or a heart attack. This is a loss to the corporation and its stockholders.

The real purpose of my story is to emphasize that men are more important than machines; — in fact, all machines were invented by men and we must depend upon men for coming great inventions. I have in mind electronic devices which should reduce prices and increase the wages of intelligent workers. The value of foremen and department heads is not fully recognized by many corporations. Their accumulation of experience will take many years on the part of their successors to duplicate.

Entitled To More Rest

Corporations judge employes by their hours of work and—directly or indirectly—by their production in physical units. But a department head or foreman may be able to develop original ideas in a few hours that can be worth large amounts to the corporation. To accomplish this, however, such a man should not be worried, and should keep himself in good health. If I should tell the president of the corporation that he could save thousands of dollars annually by spending $1,000 on repairing a certain machine, he would gladly do so; but most corporation heads can't see this when it comes to repairing men or keeping them in A-1 condition.

When I tell the corporation president that he could save and make large sums by spending $1,000 to give the head of a slipping department a complete rest for a month, the president often fails to see the point. Of course, this rest must be away from home and under supervision. Yet, such an investment by the corporation would produce more in dividends to stockholders than if spent in any other possible way. This is the next great lesson which corporations must learn.

Preventing Heart Attacks

During the past year, I have been especially distressed because so many of my friends and clients are dying from heart attacks. This is not only a loss to the family, but often a severe loss to the corporations with which such men were connected. Often the death of such a man is ultimately unfavorably reflected in labor relations, sales programs and the earnings of the corporation; and hence a loss to stockholders. With special interest in the 2,000 corporations above mentioned, I am anxious for the support of all attempts to reduce these heart tragedies.

Doctors tell me that these heart attacks are unnecessary and could largely be prevented if corporations would insist on annual physical audits of their head executives. When finding one of their executives threatened with a heart condition, the corporation would find it an excellent investment to give this executive a supervised vacation with pay at a restful spot catering to the "tired businessman." This is not charity or of a "welfare" nature. It is sound, hardboiled business sense.

Repairing Versus Preventive

The so-called "six weeks cure" for heart attacks can be taken at home or at a hospital if the patient will absolutely obey the doctor's orders; but this is not true of preventive heart repairing. Those showing a tendency to heart trouble, and who have not yet been attacked, need not stay in bed. They should, however, be away from home and office, in a restful spot in the woods until all these symptoms vanish.

In this connection let me say that great progress is being made by physicians in detecting possible heart troubles. The electro-cardiograph is now being supplemented or anticipated by "flicker tests," blood tests and ingenious gadgets which given an executive a warning to take a rest and avoid further trouble.

Melbourne (AP) — John Greenston, a 57-year-old bachelor, who is tired of Melbourne's "frustrations", is recruiting men and women to go with him to an island Utopia. RETARDED PUBLIC SERVICES

At the recent Ottawa Conference of the North Atlantic Treaty nations, our western Allies drilled home the idea that rearmament—if not carefully pursued—represents a menace to their none-too-robust civilian economies.

U. S. officials concede the existence of this peril, but they don't agree with European leaders that the way to meet it is to have America bear a still larger share of the defense burden. Our statesmen feel Europe can do more on its own to expand output and thus ease the bite on civilian activities.

They might have made another point. Surely it is true that the United States is better able to shoulder a big share of the rearmament load than are European countries; and to sustain reductions in the level of civilian production. But we still have some desperately pressing problems that are being made vastly more urgent by the defense effort.

America is continuing its celebrated growth. Population is rising and the economy is burgeoning to take care of multiplying needs. This year, for example, business will spend a record $25 billion for additional plants.

Yet some of the public services which go hand-in-hand with that development are not keeping pace. They were not keeping up even before the defense emergency, and now the situation is far worse.

Attention was called not long ago to the serious lag in highway construction. With trucks carrying an ever-increasing proportion of our goods, with more passenger cars on the road than ever, the traffic situation is becoming intolerable in many places. Unless relieved, it will soon begin to cause stagnation.

The outlook for American schools is not much happier. The wartime boom in babies is having its first heavy impact upon our school system today—and the brutal facts are apparent. We do not have enough school buildings and other facilities, nor enough teachers to handle the deluge. And no building program or teacher-training plan now in sight seems adequate to cope with it.

Turn to the problem of hospitals and general medical facilities and the story is much the same. Naturally, too, other community services are suffering.

Beyond doubt it is impossible to meet all these needs to perfection while a preparedness program is still under way. They most likely would not be wholly cared for, even without the defense activity.

But it seems fair that our statesmen should make plain to Europe that we cannot grossly neglect these requirements without ultimately impairing the strength all free men look to for security.

And within our own bailiwick, we might usefully work out a system of priorities for the development of schools, highways and other services. In that fashion, even though under limits imposed by rearmament, we might assure a minimum healthy balance in our national life. Without that balance, the warping strains of uneven growth can only diminish American power.

A rumor has been heard that General Douglas MacArthur may move to Connecticut, and in that case be boomed for the Republican nomination for senator. The Constitution requires merely that a senator live in the state which elects him, and does not say for how long prior to election.

NOT ENOUGH PENNIES

The House and the Senate were in complete disagreement as to whether it should cost three cents or four cents to mail a letter, and on a few other points about postal rates. But the Post Office Department deficit, if it could have been endowed with human characteristics, would have been smiling tolerantly about the whole business, secure in the knowledge that it would not be banished by any agreement along lines suggested in the debate.

The deficit is running about half a billion dollars a year, and the largest rate increases under consideration would increase revenues by only about $400,000,000. At the same time a pay increase bill which would add a quarter of a billion to the costs of the Department was being prepared for final approval. It appeared to be quite certain that the postal system deficit would remain with us.

Percentages did not seem nearly as important in school as they become toward the end of the baseball season.

'These Days'

WATCH THE COURTS

Manners are the exterior manifestation of morals. When the manners of a people are debased, it needs to look after its morals. In our courts and before various semi-judicial investigations, a disrespect for the dignity of the courts and the law is being displayed which would be intolerable anywhere, but more so among a free people whose order of life is controlled by a voluntary acceptance of law.

In a despotism, it is possible to say: "Off with his head!" And off it goes. In a free society rigorous protections are placed about the individual to safeguard him against tyrannical and whimsical acts of public officials. But the citizen can only safeguard his liberties and protections if he practices self-restraint, if he is respectful and decent, if he recognizes that while all are equal before the law, none may be contemptuous of it.

The 11 Communists who appeared in Judge Medina's court and acted like hoodlums set a bad example, to be followed with vulgar impudence by Harry Gross in Judge Leibowitz's court in Brooklyn, and before the New York State Crime Commission.

Harry Gross made a mockery of a court, making it obvious that increasingly those who live on the margins of society have become so bold that they respect nothing—not the law, not the courts, not the dignity of judges.

Criminals have always existed. But such men, in the past, lived in fear of being caught. They were bold and brazen until they faced stern justice and knew the majesty of the law, as evidenced in a court.

The new breed of hoodlums, having no morals and believing that all men are corruptible, look upon our courts as marketplaces and upon judges as current or potential crooks. Their only problem seems to be to find the right politician who will know how to bribe the particular judge.

I have been told by lawyers that there has been a notable falling away of good manners in the courts; that not only laymen but many lawyers act impudently in the courts, flouting the judges, and giving the impression of familiarity, which is the first sign of contempt. I have also been told by lawyers that some judges tend to be lenient because they recognize that the lawyer is trying to impress his client that he is earing his fee. When judges are lax and lawyers forgetful of their manners, it must be accepted that a debasement of morals has set in.

The manners and morals of a people are set at the top. What is propriety is determined by the style of those in authority and position. When the leaders of a nation are vulgar, indecent in manners and morals, when their language is cheap and blasphemous, when they associate with petty crooks and political panhandlers, when they themselves grow rich in public office or tolerate abuses among those who are close to them—the style of corruption will have been set.

Harry Gross and Mike Dalessio are no different from the gamblers who refused to testify or even to open their mouths before the Kefauver Committee, or from those who, by consent, perjure themselves in divorce cases, or who steal in connection with the RFC or who go through a red light on the road, imperilling other human beings.

These are responses to the same lack of self-discipline. And it goes as high or low as you like in American life today.

I noticed, traveling the roads this summer in an automobile, the disregard of drivers for traffic regulations, particularly the drivers of big and heavy trucks who are fast pushing the taxpaying citizens off the road. Naturally, it is impossible to police all the roads of this country all the time, but we must assume in a free society that men will restrain themselves, police themselves. It must be assumed, in a free country, that the police are to be called in unusually, that citizens, recognizing the law as a majestic keystone in the arch of social existence, will obey it without police action.

In a moral society, such self-discipline can be depended upon. It is handed down from father to son as the decent way to live. It used to be called manners and those who failed them were ostracized by clean-living people. But when a Mickey Cohen is pitied as a product of his environment, we are dealing not with manners, morals or justice but with social corruption.

OUT-PATIENT CLINICS FOR ALCOHOLICS

I write about alcohol and alcoholism frequently because governments, various voluntary organizations and the public generally have become aware of the great mistake we have all been making in not considering alcoholism as a defect in the make-up of an individual—a defect that should be treated as any other defect or disease. And because this defect or disease affects not only the alcoholic himself but his working or productive ability and the comfort and happiness of his family, it means that his treatment and care is really a public liability.

That the alcoholic is really a sick man or woman and should have the care of a physician instead of the police has been shown to us by the Yale School for Study of Alcoholism and other organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous. Some weeks ago I reported that the state of Massachusetts had adopted the idea of treating alcoholics in the out-patient clinics of several general hospitals.

The pattern of organization or method followed is similar to that of other clinics operated cooperatively by the Department of Public Health. It is intended that these clinic facilities for alcoholism shall be a part of the regular services offered the community by the hospital.

We read in The New England Medical Journal that at these clinics "the patient must be helped to adjust his life, without alcohol, to the community and its environment wherein he lives or expects to live. Merely to keep the alcoholic sober in the artificial environment in an institution instead of the environment of his home community, or depending on special treatment, is expensive, ineffective and certain to lead to failure."

It is further pointed out that the establishment of such clinics in out-patient departments of general hospitals means that the alcoholic knows that his affliction is accepted as a disease to be cared for in or by an institution in which other ailments are treated. This tends to remove the stigma so frequently attached to alcoholism, the alcoholic is more readily willing to admit his inability to handle alcohol and so seeks help.

Research workers in alcoholism and members of Alcoholics Anonymous have found that once the alcoholic admits he needs help in fighting alcoholism, he almost certainly can be cured.

Courageous Little Fellow, Isn't He?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The nation's capital today is witnessing the most nauseating spasm of large and petty graft since this newsman began covering Washington.

There are several reasons for this, as previously enumerated in this column, one of them being the fact that government officials have lost their sense of smell.

When the man at the top in government can't smell the bad odor arising from the distribution of deep freezes by his military aide, or when he defends the commodity grain speculation of his White House doctor, and tolerates airline lobbying by his chief secretary, then the olfactory nerves of those around him get dull too.

Another important reason for the sickening spectacle of graft and favoritism, however, is the current system of political campaign contributions. This is something the public little realizes.

It has now become a standard practice for both big business and labor unions to obligate congressmen. After you have made your contribution to a congressman's political campaign, you then benefit by influencing his vote on legislation of interest to you, or getting him to call up government agencies in order to secure loans, priorities or government contracts.

This practice has become so widespread that many otherwise fine senators and representatives get so in hock politically that they can hardly call their souls their own.

Getting Big Loan

Here is how the system works: out in Los Angeles, members of the Harvey Machine Company contribute heavily to the campaign funds of several congressmen. Most of the time they bet their money on Democrats, because the Democrats are in power. But sometimes they also back Republicans. In addition, Lawrence Harvey wants to be Democratic national committeeman from California, chips in $1,000 at each of the last two Jackson Day dinners and serves on the $100-a-plate committee welcoming Truman to Los Angeles October 8.

Simultaneously the Harvey company wants a big loan to build an aluminum plant. A lot of wires are pulled, congressmen who are recipients of campaign contributions go to bat, and lo and behold, Harvey comes up with a $46,000,000 loan. There's a lot more to the story than that, but one of the most important features is the way certain very fine congressmen have to become messenger boys for Harvey largely to pay off a political debt.

It doesn't make for clean efficient government.

China Lobby Contributes

Or take another case. When Senator Bridges of Maine last ran for re-election in New Hampshire, Alfred Kohlberg, who lives in New York, not New Hampshire, contributed $1,000 to Bridge's campaign. Kohlberg just happens to be the key man in the China Lobby.

Another Bridges contributor, in fact his heaviest, also lives a long way from New Hampshire—in San Francisco. He is Edward Heller, whose wife happens to be Democratic national committeewoman for California. Yet Heller, a Democrat, contributed $3,000 to help Senator Bridges, a Republican, stay in the Senate from New Hampshire.

Significantly, Heller is director of the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, biggest repository of Chinese Nationalist money. Significant also, Bridges, both before and since his election, has gone out of his way to defend Chinag Kai-shek. Once as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he even sent a lobbyist for Chiang's brother-in-law on a propaganda mission to China, cloaked as Senate representative—though actually paid by the Chiang family.

Obligating a senator has become so common that long rows of campaign contributors from the Delaware du Ponts turn up in south Dakota, while Texas oilmen sent several thousand dollars to Maryland last year to elect GOP Senator Butler.

Labor Bets Too

On the other hand, John L. Lewis kicked in half a million dollars on behalf of the United Mine Workers to elect Roosevelt in 1936, while labor all over the nation poured money into Ohio in 1950 to try to beat Taft.

The tragedy is that under the present system, money from somebody or other is absolutely necessary. You can't run a political campaign without it. Billboards cost about $1,000 each. Radio time can run into hundreds of thousands, while TV is going to cost even more. Governor Dewey turned the tide of the New York election last year in his last 24 hours of television, thereby setting a pattern which every imporant candidate will have to follow at tremendous cost and the necessity of passing the hat for more compaign funds.

Best way to prevent all this probably is to abolish all campaign funds and have a national kitty put up by Congress for each party. If the Democrats and Republicans each were voted $5,000,000, to be allocated state-by-state on the basis of population, it would save five-times-five million dollars in the elimination of graft and favoritism.

Note—Biggest and strangest contributions by eastern bigwigs betting on a senatorial horse were the gifts that poured into South Dakota to re-elect the late Sen. Harlan Bushfield, Republican. Contributions included $4,000 from Lammot duPont of Delaware; $2,500 from his brother, Irenee du-Pont; $2,000 from their General Motors associate, Alfred P. Sloan; $5,000 from Ailsa Mellon of the Pittsburgh Mellon family; $4,000 from Sarah Mellon Scaife; $6,000 from the Pew family of the Sun Oil Co., in Philadelphia; $5,000 from Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune; $10,000 from Mazey Jarmon of the General Shoe Co., in Tennessee; and $1,000 from L. W. Mesta of Pittsburgh, cousin of Perle.

Q—What was the name of the lightship that headed off a Nazi sub in World War II?

A—This incident was the highest moment in the career of the lightship "Old Stone Horse." It happened when the old boat went adrift in a northeaster and a sub surfaced nearby. The lightship flashed the signal lights just as when she was on station. The sub's officers, knowing her proper position, concluded they were far off course and turned toward the outer ocean.

President Is Wrong in His Assumption on Treatment of All Federal Employes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 28—President Truman must have had his tongue in his cheek when he sent a message to Congress recommending that a law be passed which would require every official—whether in the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of the government—to make once a year a full disclosure to the public of all his sources of income besides his government salary.

For Mr. Truman has been outspoken heretofore in his claim that able and conscientious citizens do not want to come to Washington to work for the government because they might be smeared. Certainly it will be hard to persuade individuals to enter government service hereafter if they happen to have made a success in a business or profession and have put away their savings in securities.

The right of privacy is sacred in America. Only when a man or woman is accused of dishonesty is it lawful as a rule to reveal to a congressional committee, for example, an income-tax return. But, while it would be constitutional for legislation to be passed requiring disclosure of all the details of the financial affairs of a person who enters the government service, the big question is whether it would serve any purpose except to provoke smears.

Mr. Truman is rightly indignant that recent charges and rumors have cast suspicion on various persons in the government service, but he is mistaken if he thinks that all government officials now have been tarred with the same brush.

It is, moreover, not clear why the President thinks disclosure of annual incomes will of itself change the minds of those people around the country who, he says, "are getting a mistaken and a distorted impression that the government is full of evil-doers, full of men and women with low standards of morality, full of people who are lining their own pockets and disregarding the public interest."

What Mr. Truman proposes will only open up to smear and suspicion the personal affairs of a lot of innocent people and, rather than go through such an experience, persons of means—the very people who, having won success in private life, can now contribute their time at low salaries to public service—will fight shy of any government posts. America would be the loser, because the job-seekers who in private business or their professions cannot earn more than government pay will be the ones who will be selected for positions in the government, not only for Congress but for the federal bench.

It looks as if Mr. Truman is smarting under the charges which have been leveled at his administration and is trying to throw up a smoke screen to divert attention from the unmorality of individuals inside and outside the government who have been the beneficiaries of "pull" and influence and special privilege. This cannot be cured by offering a reckless proposal to reveal the family finances of every government official. For it would not be enough presumably to disclose the official's own income. Logically, the income of his wife or father-in-law or cousin or aunt would have to be disclosed, too.

What is most disappointing is that Mr. Truman succumbs to the very thing he has been denouncing—the assumption that men in the government cannot themselves be trusted to distinguish between proper and improper connections or interests. He does not confine this to executive officials but he puts the finger of suspicion on federal judges, too, and takes it for granted that justices can no longer be depended upon to disqualify themselves from sitting in cases involving companies or firms with which in the past they may have had some connection or in whose securities they at present have investments.

To assume that federal judges can't be trusted to conduct themselves properly and must disclose their financial affairs to everybody's gaze is a reflection on the judiciary which illustrates the utter carelessness and irresponsibility of the President's message. If Mr. Truman had sent to Congress a declaration that in America everybody is deemed honest in financial affairs and in the conduct of his office unless someone can come forth with evidence of dishonesty and that the discovery of dishonesty in government will be promptly prosecuted, he would have been on safer ground. But in the wake of the scandals in the RFC and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue—both of which have been under his immediate supervision as Chief Executive—it is a grave mistake for the President now to try to shift the blame by suggesting that all public officials disclose their private affairs.

What he is also doing—perhaps inadvertently—is to open up the question of whether the Democratic National Committee is in need of an authentic list of private incomes to help with the annual shakedown that usually precedes the $100-a-plate dinners and the collection of larger contributions. Stranger things have happened in politics.

RETARDED PUBLIC SERVICES

At the recent Ottawa Conference of the North Atlantic Treaty nations, our western Allies drilled home the idea that rearmament—if not carefully pursued—represents a menace to their none-too-robust civilian economies.

U. S. officials concede the existence of this peril, but they don't agree with European leaders that the way to meet it is to have America bear a still larger share of the defense burden. Our statesmen feel Europe can do more on its own to expand output and thus ease the bite on civilian activities.

They might have made another point. Surely it is true that the United States is better able to shoulder a big share of the rearmament load than are European countries; and to sustain reductions in the level of civilian production. But we still have some desperately pressing problems that are being made vastly more urgent by the defense effort.

America is continuing its celebrated growth. Population is rising and the economy is burgeoning to take care of multiplying needs. This year, for example, business will spend a record $25 billion for additional plants.

Yet some of the public services which go hand-in-hand with that development are not keeping pace. They were not keeping up even before the defense emergency, and now the situation is far worse.

Attention was called not long ago to the serious lag in highway construction. With trucks carrying an ever-increasing proportion of our goods, with more passenger cars on the road than ever, the traffic situation is becoming intolerable in many places. Unless relieved, it will soon begin to cause stagnation.

The outlook for American schools is not much happier. The wartime boom in babies is having its first heavy impact upon our school system today—and the brutal facts are apparent. We do not have enough school buildings and other facilities, nor enough teachers to handle the deluge. And no building program or teacher-training plan now in sight seems adequate to cope with it.

Turn to the problem of hospitals and general medical facilities and the story is much the same. Naturally, too, other community services are suffering.

Beyond doubt it is impossible to meet all these needs to perfection while a preparedness program is still under way. They most likely would not be wholly cared for, even without the defense activity.

But it seems fair that our statesmen should make plain to Europe that we cannot grossly neglect these requirements without ultimately impairing the strength all free men look to for security.

And within our own bailiwick, we might usefully work out a system of priorities for the development of schools, highways and other services. In that fashion, even though under limits imposed by rearmament, we might assure a minimum healthy balance in our national life. Without that balance, the warping strains of uneven growth can only diminish American power.

A rumor has been heard that General Douglas MacArthur may move to Connecticut, and in that case be boomed for the Republican nomination for senator. The Constitution requires merely that a senator live in the state which elects him, and does not say for how long prior to election.

NOT ENOUGH PENNIES

The House and the Senate were in complete disagreement as to whether it should cost three cents or four cents to mail a letter, and on a few other points about postal rates. But the Post Office Department deficit, if it could have been endowed with human characteristics, would have been smiling tolerantly about the whole business, secure in the knowledge that it would not be banished by any agreement along lines suggested in the debate.

The deficit is running about half a billion dollars a year, and the largest rate increases under consideration would increase revenues by only about $400,000,000. At the same time a pay increase bill which would add a quarter of a billion to the costs of the Department was being prepared for final approval. It appeared to be quite certain that the postal system deficit would remain with us.

Percentages did not seem nearly as important in school as they become toward the end of the baseball season.

WATCH THE COURTS

Manners are the exterior manifestation of morals. When the manners of a people are debased, it needs to look after its morals. In our courts and before various semi-judicial investigations, a disrespect for the dignity of the courts and the law is being displayed which would be intolerable anywhere, but more so among a free people whose order of life is controlled by a voluntary acceptance of law.

In a despotism, it is possible to say: "Off with his head!" And off it goes. In a free society rigorous protections are placed about the individual to safeguard him against tyrannical and whimsical acts of public officials. But the citizen can only safeguard his liberties and protections if he practices self-restraint, if he is respectful and decent, if he recognizes that while all are equal before the law, none may be contemptuous of it.

The 11 Communists who appeared in Judge Medina's court and acted like hoodlums set a bad example, to be followed with vulgar impudence by Harry Gross in Judge Leibowitz's court in Brooklyn, and before the New York State Crime Commission.

Harry Gross made a mockery of a court, making it obvious that increasingly those who live on the margins of society have become so bold that they respect nothing—not the law, not the courts, not the dignity of judges.

Criminals have always existed. But such men, in the past, lived in fear of being caught. They were bold and brazen until they faced stern justice and knew the majesty of the law, as evidenced in a court.

The new breed of hoodlums, having no morals and believing that all men are corruptible, look upon our courts as marketplaces and upon judges as current or potential crooks. Their only problem seems to be to find the right politician who will know how to bribe the particular judge.

I have been told by lawyers that there has been a notable falling away of good manners in the courts; that not only laymen but many lawyers act impudently in the courts, flouting the judges, and giving the impression of familiarity, which is the first sign of contempt. I have also been told by lawyers that some judges tend to be lenient because they recognize that the lawyer is trying to impress his client that he is earing his fee. When judges are lax and lawyers forgetful of their manners, it must be accepted that a debasement of morals has set in.

The manners and morals of a people are set at the top. What is propriety is determined by the style of those in authority and position. When the leaders of a nation are vulgar, indecent in manners and morals, when their language is cheap and blasphemous, when they associate with petty crooks and political panhandlers, when they themselves grow rich in public office or tolerate abuses among those who are close to them—the style of corruption will have been set.

Harry Gross and Mike Dalessio are no different from the gamblers who refused to testify or even to open their mouths before the Kefauver Committee, or from those who, by consent, perjure themselves in divorce cases, or who steal in connection with the RFC or who go through a red light on the road, imperilling other human beings.

These are responses to the same lack of self-discipline. And it goes as high or low as you like in American life today.

I noticed, traveling the roads this summer in an automobile, the disregard of drivers for traffic regulations, particularly the drivers of big and heavy trucks who are fast pushing the taxpaying citizens off the road. Naturally, it is impossible to police all the roads of this country all the time, but we must assume in a free society that men will restrain themselves, police themselves. It must be assumed, in a free country, that the police are to be called in unusually, that citizens, recognizing the law as a majestic keystone in the arch of social existence, will obey it without police action.

In a moral society, such self-discipline can be depended upon. It is handed down from father to son as the decent way to live. It used to be called manners and those who failed them were ostracized by clean-living people. But when a Mickey Cohen is pitied as a product of his environment, we are dealing not with manners, morals or justice but with social corruption.

OUT-PATIENT CLINICS FOR ALCOHOLICS

I write about alcohol and alcoholism frequently because governments, various voluntary organizations and the public generally have become aware of the great mistake we have all been making in not considering alcoholism as a defect in the make-up of an individual—a defect that should be treated as any other defect or disease. And because this defect or disease affects not only the alcoholic himself but his working or productive ability and the comfort and happiness of his family, it means that his treatment and care is really a public liability.

That the alcoholic is really a sick man or woman and should have the care of a physician instead of the police has been shown to us by the Yale School for Study of Alcoholism and other organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous. Some weeks ago I reported that the state of Massachusetts had adopted the idea of treating alcoholics in the out-patient clinics of several general hospitals.

The pattern of organization or method followed is similar to that of other clinics operated cooperatively by the Department of Public Health. It is intended that these clinic facilities for alcoholism shall be a part of the regular services offered the community by the hospital.

We read in The New England Medical Journal that at these clinics "the patient must be helped to adjust his life, without alcohol, to the community and its environment wherein he lives or expects to live. Merely to keep the alcoholic sober in the artificial environment in an institution instead of the environment of his home community, or depending on special treatment, is expensive, ineffective and certain to lead to failure."

It is further pointed out that the establishment of such clinics in out-patient departments of general hospitals means that the alcoholic knows that his affliction is accepted as a disease to be cared for in or by an institution in which other ailments are treated. This tends to remove the stigma so frequently attached to alcoholism, the alcoholic is more readily willing to admit his inability to handle alcohol and so seeks help.

Research workers in alcoholism and members of Alcoholics Anonymous have found that once the alcoholic admits he needs help in fighting alcoholism, he almost certainly can be cured.

Courageous Little Fellow, Isn't He?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The nation's capital today is witnessing the most nauseating spasm of large and petty graft since this newsman began covering Washington.

There are several reasons for this, as previously enumerated in this column, one of them being the fact that government officials have lost their sense of smell.

When the man at the top in government can't smell the bad odor arising from the distribution of deep freezes by his military aide, or when he defends the commodity grain speculation of his White House doctor, and tolerates airline lobbying by his chief secretary, then the olfactory nerves of those around him get dull too.

Another important reason for the sickening spectacle of graft and favoritism, however, is the current system of political campaign contributions. This is something the public little realizes.

It has now become a standard practice for both big business and labor unions to obligate congressmen. After you have made your contribution to a congressman's political campaign, you then benefit by influencing his vote on legislation of interest to you, or getting him to call up government agencies in order to secure loans, priorities or government contracts.

This practice has become so widespread that many otherwise fine senators and representatives get so in hock politically that they can hardly call their souls their own.

Getting Big Loan

Here is how the system works: out in Los Angeles, members of the Harvey Machine Company contribute heavily to the campaign funds of several congressmen. Most of the time they bet their money on Democrats, because the Democrats are in power. But sometimes they also back Republicans. In addition, Lawrence Harvey wants to be Democratic national committeeman from California, chips in $1,000 at each of the last two Jackson Day dinners and serves on the $100-a-plate committee welcoming Truman to Los Angeles October 8.

Simultaneously the Harvey company wants a big loan to build an aluminum plant. A lot of wires are pulled, congressmen who are recipients of campaign contributions go to bat, and lo and behold, Harvey comes up with a $46,000,000 loan. There's a lot more to the story than that, but one of the most important features is the way certain very fine congressmen have to become messenger boys for Harvey largely to pay off a political debt.

It doesn't make for clean efficient government.

China Lobby Contributes

Or take another case. When Senator Bridges of Maine last ran for re-election in New Hampshire, Alfred Kohlberg, who lives in New York, not New Hampshire, contributed $1,000 to Bridge's campaign. Kohlberg just happens to be the key man in the China Lobby.

Another Bridges contributor, in fact his heaviest, also lives a long way from New Hampshire—in San Francisco. He is Edward Heller, whose wife happens to be Democratic national committeewoman for California. Yet Heller, a Democrat, contributed $3,000 to help Senator Bridges, a Republican, stay in the Senate from New Hampshire.

Significantly, Heller is director of the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, biggest repository of Chinese Nationalist money. Significant also, Bridges, both before and since his election, has gone out of his way to defend Chinag Kai-shek. Once as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he even sent a lobbyist for Chiang's brother-in-law on a propaganda mission to China, cloaked as Senate representative—though actually paid by the Chiang family.

Obligating a senator has become so common that long rows of campaign contributors from the Delaware du Ponts turn up in south Dakota, while Texas oilmen sent several thousand dollars to Maryland last year to elect GOP Senator Butler.

Labor Bets Too

On the other hand, John L. Lewis kicked in half a million dollars on behalf of the United Mine Workers to elect Roosevelt in 1936, while labor all over the nation poured money into Ohio in 1950 to try to beat Taft.

The tragedy is that under the present system, money from somebody or other is absolutely necessary. You can't run a political campaign without it. Billboards cost about $1,000 each. Radio time can run into hundreds of thousands, while TV is going to cost even more. Governor Dewey turned the tide of the New York election last year in his last 24 hours of television, thereby setting a pattern which every imporant candidate will have to follow at tremendous cost and the necessity of passing the hat for more compaign funds.

Best way to prevent all this probably is to abolish all campaign funds and have a national kitty put up by Congress for each party. If the Democrats and Republicans each were voted $5,000,000, to be allocated state-by-state on the basis of population, it would save five-times-five million dollars in the elimination of graft and favoritism.

Note—Biggest and strangest contributions by eastern bigwigs betting on a senatorial horse were the gifts that poured into South Dakota to re-elect the late Sen. Harlan Bushfield, Republican. Contributions included $4,000 from Lammot duPont of Delaware; $2,500 from his brother, Irenee duPont; $2,000 from their General Motors associate, Alfred P. Sloan; $5,000 from Ailsa Mellon of the Pittsburgh Mellon family; $4,000 from Sarah Mellon Scaife; $6,000 from the Pew family of the Sun Oil Co., in Philadelphia; $5,000 from Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune; $10,000 from Mazey Jarmon of the General Shoe Co., in Tennessee; and $1,000 from L. W. Mesta of Pittsburgh, cousin of Perle.

..Q—What was the name of the lightship that headed off a Nazi sub in World War II?

A—This incident was the highest moment in the career of the lightship "Old Stone Horse." It happened when the old boat went adrift in a northeaster and a sub surfaced nearby. The lightship flashed the signal lights just as when she was on station. The sub's officers, knowing her proper position, concluded they were far off course and turned toward the outer ocean.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 28—President Truman must have had his tongue in his cheek when he sent a message to Congress recommending that a law be passed which would require every official—whether in the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of the government—to make once a year a full disclosure to the public of all his sources of income besides his government salary.

For Mr. Truman has been outspoken heretofore in his claim that able and conscientious citizens do not want to come to Washington to work for the government because they might be smeared. Certainly it will be hard to persuade individuals to enter government service hereafter if they happen to have made a success in a business or profession and have put away their savings in securities.

The right of privacy is sacred in America. Only when a man or woman is accused of dishonesty is it lawful as a rule to reveal to a congressional committee, for example, an income-tax return. But, while it would be constitutional for legislation to be passed requiring disclosure of all the details of the financial affairs of a person who enters the government service, the big question is whether it would serve any purpose except to provoke smears.

Mr. Truman is rightly indignant that recent charges and rumors have cast suspicion on various persons in the government service, but he is mistaken if he thinks that all government officials now have been tarred with the same brush.

It is, moreover, not clear why the President thinks disclosure of annual incomes will of itself change the minds of those people around the country who, he says, "are getting a mistaken and a distorted impression that the government is full of evil-doers, full of men and women with low standards of morality, full of people who are lining their own pockets and disregarding the public interest."

What Mr. Truman proposes will only open up to smear and suspicion the personal affairs of a lot of innocent people and, rather than go through such an experience, persons of means—the very people who, having won success in private life, can now contribute their time at low salaries to public service—will fight shy of any government posts. America would be the loser, because the job-seekers who in private business or their professions cannot earn more than government pay will be the ones who will be selected for positions in the government, not only for Congress but for the federal bench.

It looks as if Mr. Truman is smarting under the charges which have been leveled at his administration and is trying to throw up a smoke screen to divert attention from the unmorality of individuals inside and outside the government who have been the beneficiaries of "pull" and influence and special privilege. This cannot be cured by offering a reckless proposal to reveal the family finances of every government official. For it would not be enough presumably to disclose the official's own income. Logically, the income of his wife or father-in-law or cousin or aunt would have to be disclosed, too.

What is most disappointing is that Mr. Truman succumbs to the very thing he has been denouncing—the assumption that men in the government cannot themselves be trusted to distinguish between proper and improper connections or interests. He does not confine this to executive officials but he puts the finger of suspicion on federal judges, too, and takes it for granted that justices can no longer be depended upon to disqualify themselves from sitting in cases involving companies or firms with which in the past they may have had some connection or in whose securities they at present have investments.

To assume that federal judges can't be trusted to conduct themselves properly and must disclose their financial affairs to everybody's gaze is a reflection on the judiciary which illustrates the utter carelessness and irresponsibility of the President's message. If Mr. Truman had sent to Congress a declaration that in America everybody is deemed honest in financial affairs and in the conduct of his office unless someone can come forth with evidence of dishonesty and that the discovery of dishonesty in government will be promptly prosecuted, he would have been on safer ground. But in the wake of the scandals in the RFC and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue—both of which have been under his immediate supervision as Chief Executive—it is a grave mistake for the President now to try to shift the blame by suggesting that all public officials disclose their private affairs.

What he is also doing—perhaps inadvertently—is to open up the question of whether the Democratic National Committee is in need of an authentic list of private incomes to help with the annual shakedown that usually precedes the $100-a-plate dinners and the collection of larger contributions. Stranger things have happened in politics.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 28—The Babson Organization has 2,000 corporations on its Master List which it constantly watches. In other words, out of the 16,000 corporations whose securities are publicly traded in, we select 2,000 which we believe to be the cream.

Notwithstanding our careful selection, some of these corporations are at times suffering from one department slipping. This naturally worries the head of the department. The more he worries, the more the department slips; the more it slips, the more he worries. If this continues too long he has a nervous breakdown or a heart attack. This is a loss to the corporation and its stockholders.

The real purpose of my story is to emphasize that men are more important than machines; — in fact, all machines were invented by men and we must depend upon men for coming great inventions. I have in mind electronic devices which should reduce prices and increase the wages of intelligent workers. The value of foremen and department heads is not fully recognized by many corporations. Their accumulation of experience will take many years on the part of their successors to duplicate.

Entitled To More Rest

Corporations judge employes by their hours of work and—directly or indirectly—by their production in physical units. But a department head or foreman may be able to develop original ideas in a few hours that can be worth large amounts to the corporation. To accomplish this, however, such a man should not be worried, and should keep himself in good health. If I should tell the president of the corporation that he could save thousands of dollars annually by spending $1,000 on repairing a certain machine, he would gladly do so; but most corporation heads can't see this when it comes to repairing men or keeping them in A-1 condition.

When I tell the corporation president that he could save and make large sums by spending $1,000 to give the head of a slipping department a complete rest for a month, the president often fails to see the point. Of course, this rest must be away from home and under supervision. Yet, such an investment by the corporation would produce more in dividends to stockholders than if spent in any other possible way. This is the next great lesson which corporations must learn.

Preventing Heart Attacks

During the past year, I have been especially distressed because so many of my friends and clients are dying from heart attacks. This is not only a loss to the family, but often a severe loss to the corporations with which such men were connected. Often the death of such a man is ultimately unfavorably reflected in labor relations, sales programs and the earnings of the corporation; and hence a loss to stockholders. With special interest in the 2,000 corporations above mentioned, I am anxious for the support of all attempts to reduce these heart tragedies.

Doctors tell me that these heart attacks are unnecessary and could largely be prevented if corporations would insist on annual physical audits of their head executives. When finding one of their executives threatened with a heart condition, the corporation would find it an excellent investment to give this executive a supervised vacation with pay at a restful spot catering to the "tired businessman." This is not charity or of a "welfare" nature. It is sound, hardboiled business sense.

Repairing Versus Preventive

The so-called "six weeks cure" for heart attacks can be taken at home or at a hospital if the patient will absolutely obey the doctor's orders; but this is not true of preventive heart repairing. Those showing a tendency to heart trouble, and who have not yet been attacked, need not stay in bed. They should, however, be away from home and office, in a restful spot in the woods until all these symptoms vanish.

In this connection let me say that great progress is being made by physicians in detecting possible heart troubles. The electro-cardiograph is now being supplemented or anticipated by "flicker tests," blood tests and ingenious gadgets which given an executive a warning to take a rest and avoid further trouble.

Search for Utopia

Melbourne (AP) — John Greenston, a 57-year-old bachelor, who is tired of Melbourne's "frustrations", is recruiting men and women to go with him to an island Utopia. He plans to "escape the city jungle," and establish a co-operative village settlement, probably in New Guinea or the Torres Islands, north of Queensland. "There are hundreds of people," he explained, "who are fed up with the pinpricks, frustrations, and repressions of a big city. They are looking for an escape, and this is their chance."

Bard's Students Give 500 Hours Of Work Weekly

Annandale-on-Hudson, Sept. 28—Bard College students this fall, all 250 men and women strong, are painting buildings, working on the roads, mowing lawns, assisting in the post office, and helping in other ways to improve their campus and to reduce costs of operation $10,000.

The new project, known as the Community Service Program, which makes available 500 man hours per week, was overwhelmingly adopted by the student body at the opening of the 1951 fall semester.

Every student is donating on the average of two hours per week under the direction of a student committee which has the responsibility of selecting work projects and of making assignments. Among the projects now being undertaken are the transfer of sections of the library for greater convenience and efficiency, painting of dormitory buildings, preparation of roads for blacktop finish, clean-up and maintenance work in the science laboratories and art studios, and staffing the college post office.

Projects Planned

Projects planned for the near future include the reconditioning of the skating pond, building a large fireplace for cook-outs, constructing gravel walks to replace present paths, and the building of a new music practice room.

Student response has been more than 95 per cent effective in meeting the new volunteer obligations.

The program was first discussed last spring when a special committee of students challenged what they considered to be the narrow concept of "entertainment" prevailing on campus. Dances and parties were fine, they reported, but "entertainment" should include other forms of recreation—picnics, outings, play readings, and even work projects. What Bard needed were some other ways in which students and faculty could share common interests and activities. The idea of work projects made an immediate and widespread appeal, and this fall became an official part of campus activities under the general supervision of the community government.

No Employes Dropped

The transition was made with the understanding that no jobs needed by students to earn part of their college expenses would be discontinued and that no employes on the payroll would be released. The expected savings of $6,000 will result from the fact that budgeted vacancies on the Grounds Staff will not be filled and that the need for additional temporary labor during certain seasons will be reduced sharply. While the direct economies resulting will be valuable, it is equally important to the development of the college that many projects can now be undertaken which formerly were not budgeted because of lack of funds for the necessary labor.

The new program was installed at the same time that the administration moved to curtail maid service in college dormitories, another economy measure. Now Bard students along with many other college and university students are making their own beds and cleaning their own rooms, but they have the rather unique distinction of also performing a weekly two-hour work service for the general community. Total savings resulting from the two activities will exceed $10,000 annually.

Roman Jars Found

Diano Marino, Italy (AP)—Divers have uncovered a large number of old Roman earthen jars in the Gulf of Genoa. The jars were found in an old Roman vessel which probably was transporting them when it sank. The wreck lay under some 50 feet of water off Cervo, northeast of San Remo, and was covered by mud. Divers say the work of salvaging the jars will not be too difficult. The wreck is wedged under a rocky submarine ledge where there are no undercurrents. The jars are about 32 inches in diameter. The divers made the discovery while trying to salvage a ship sunk in World War II.

Ash trees are found in the tropics, as well as in the temperate regions.

Heinz New Dessert For Junior Food Line

New crop values is the theme of the H. J. Heinz Company newspaper advertising company for September and October. The company states that new crops pre-suppose a freshness of products and freshness is what every mother demands when she's buying food for her baby.

Totaling the birth statistics of the year 1950 and the first six months of 1951, there are 5,227,000 babies under two years old in the United States.

The Heinz Company has added a new dessert to their junior food line. It is chocolate pudding styled for the younger palate. The flavor of this dessert is due to its quality ingredients: sugar, rice, whole milk powder, eggs, chocolate, cocoa, cornstarch, salt and vanilla extract.

Neuls Coming Home After Year of Battle in Korea

The Marine Corps said today, according to the Associated Press, that a Kingston veteran was among more than 2,200 combat marines and navy hospital corps men arriving from Korea.

He is Staff Sergeant Walter H. Neuls of 54 Lucas avenue, one of 105,000 United Nations troops that awaited evacuation on crowded Hungnam beachhead in Northwest Korea which was completed on Christmas eve, December 1950.

About 550 of the returning marines, the announcement said, are reservists to be released soon to inactive duty. The remainder, home on rotation, will get new duty stations.

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. Emil R. Himmelsbach, Sergeant Neuls wrote vividly of the war, and through her permission excerpts were printed in The Freeman.

Referring to the fighting around Hagaru, he said that only 93 British Marines were left out of 260 that had gone into the battle, and commented. "They sure are a fighting bunch of guys."

Fought at 30 Below

His letter mentioned about U. S. Marines being surrounded by Gooks, and his comment was "We were thankful our planes kept bombing and strafing them all day long and some times at night."

"This marine division sure has taken a beating up here. A lot of the casualties have been from the cold. Some nights it was 30 below zero."

"I sure did a lot of praying while I was up there and on that trip back. I guess everyone did too, and everyone was sure glad to get back," he said.

Corpses Higher Than Gun

"One company up at Hagaru," he added, "had a machinegun set up and they killed so many gooks that they had to move their gun because they were piled up in front of it so high they couldn't see to fire.

"I found out that the night we sat on the mountain it was 35 below zero and the wind was blowing snow all over the place.

"Some of the guys went to sleep but I was afraid that if I went to sleep I would freeze to death. I am sure glad that that is over and I hope I never have to go through that again."

Phoned Mother

Mrs. Himmelsbach told a reporter today that her son phoned her from the west coast last night, and that his message about coming home was "the best news I've heard since he went away."

His arrival was not a surprise entirely, because in a letter from Japan on September 14 he said he was due to sail for the United States.

"PIEL'S is the BEER for me—
DRY as a beer can be!"

Less N.F.S.
(NON-FERMENTED SUGAR)
means a drier, more satisfying flavor!

BY DEFINITION, THE WORD "DRY" means "lacking sweetness." And in beer, dryness is measured by the amount of N.F.S. (non-fermented sugar) present after the brewing process is completed.

Scientific findings show that Piel's Beer contained almost no N.F.S. at all... that Piel's is truly as "dry as a beer can be!"

Tonight—get a couple of bottles of Piel's at your favorite store or tavern. We think you'll agree that Piel's slower, costlier brewing means a drier, more satisfying flavor!

HERE'S PROOF THAT SLOWER, COSTLIER BREWING MAKES PIEL'S "DRY AS A BEER CAN BE!"

● Repeated independent laboratory tests have shown that a quart of Piel's Beer contained no more sugar (N.F.S.) than could be placed on the head of a common pin.

● This is an average of less than one part in 10,000! You can hardly see it, much less taste it!

Bard's Students Give 500 Hours Of Work Weekly

Annandale-on-Hudson, Sept. 28—Bard College students this fall, all 250 men and women strong, are painting buildings, working on the roads, mowing lawns, assisting in the post office, and helping in other ways to improve their campus and to reduce costs of operation $10,000.

The new project, known as the Community Service Program, which makes available 500 man hours per week, was overwhelmingly adopted by the student body at the opening of the 1951 fall semester.

Every student is donating on the average of two hours per week under the direction of a student committee which has the responsibility of selecting work projects and of making assignments. Among the projects now being undertaken are the transfer of sections of the library for greater convenience and efficiency, painting of dormitory buildings, preparation of roads for blacktop finish, clean-up and maintenance work in the science laboratories and art studios, and staffing the college post office.

Projects Planned

Projects planned for the near future include the reconditioning of the skating pond, building a large fireplace for cook-outs, constructing gravel walks to replace present paths, and the building of a new music practice room.

Student response has been more than 95 per cent effective in meeting the new volunteer obligations.

The program was first discussed last spring when a special committee of students challenged what they considered to be the narrow concept of "entertainment" prevailing on campus. Dances and parties were fine, they reported, but "entertainment" should include other forms of recreation—picnics, outings, play readings, and even work projects. What Bard needed were some other ways in which students and faculty could share common interests and activities. The idea of work projects made an immediate and widespread appeal, and this fall became an official part of campus activities under the general supervision of the community government.

No Employes Dropped

The transition was made with the understanding that no jobs needed by students to earn part of their college expenses would be discontinued and that no employes on the payroll would be released. The expected savings of $6,000 will result from the fact that budgeted vacancies on the Grounds Staff will not be filled and that the need for additional temporary labor during certain seasons will be reduced sharply. While the direct economies resulting will be valuable, it is equally important to the development of the college that many projects can now be undertaken which formerly were not budgeted because of lack of funds for the necessary labor.

The new program was installed at the same time that the administration moved to curtail maid service in college dormitories, another economy measure. Now Bard students along with many other college and university students are making their own beds and cleaning their own rooms, but they have the rather unique distinction of also performing a weekly two-hour work service for the general community. Total savings resulting from the two activities will exceed $10,000 annually.

Roman Jars Found

Diano Marino, Italy (AP)—Divers have uncovered a large number of old Roman earthen jars in the Gulf of Genoa. The jars were found in an old Roman vessel which probably was transporting them when it sank. The wreck lay under some 50 feet of water off Cervo, northeast of San Remo, and was covered by mud. Divers say the work of salvaging the jars will not be too difficult. The wreck is wedged under a rocky submarine ledge where there are no undercurrents. The jars are about 32 inches in diameter. The divers made the discovery while trying to salvage a ship sunk in World War II.

Ash trees are found in the tropics, as well as in the temperate regions.

"I sure did a lot of praying while I was up there and on that trip back. I guess everyone did too, and everyone was sure glad to get back," he said.

Corpses Higher Than Gun

"One company up at Hagaru," he added, "had a machinegun set up and they killed so many gooks that they had to move their gun because they were piled up in front of it so high they couldn't see to fire.

"I found out that the night we sat on the mountain it was 35 below zero and the wind was blowing snow all over the place.

"Some of the guys went to sleep but I was afraid that if I went to sleep I would freeze to death. I am sure glad that that is over and I hope I never have to go through that again."

Phoned Mother

Mrs. Himmelsbach told a reporter today that her son phoned her from the west coast last night, and that his message about coming home was "the best news I've heard since he went away."

His arrival was not a surprise entirely, because in a letter from Japan on September 14 he said he was due to sail for the United States.

"PIEL'S is the BEER for me—
Less N.F.S.
(NON-FERMENTED SUGAR)
means a drier, more satisfying flavor!
HERE'S PROOF THAT SLOWER, COSTLIER BREWING MAKES PIEL'S "DRY AS A BEER CAN BE!"
• Repeated independent laboratory tests have shown that a quart of Piel's Beer contained no more sugar (N.F.S.) than could be placed on the head of a common pin.
• This is an average of less than one part in 10,000! You can hardly see it, much less taste it!
BY DEFINITION, THE WORD "DRY" means "lacking sweetness." And in beer, dryness is measured by the amount of N.F.S. (non-fermented sugar) present after the brewing process is completed.
Scientific findings show that Piel's Beer contained almost no N.F.S. at all...that Piel's is truly as "dry as a beer can be!"
Tonight—get a couple of bottles of Piel's at your favorite store or tavern. We think you'll agree that Piel's slower, costlier brewing means a drier, more satisfying flavor!

Prize Is Offered For Best Article To Aid Adoptions

A statewide contest offers $100 for the best article on "Ways of Interesting More Colored Families in the Adoption of Children," it was announced locally today by Mrs. Herbert Fister, chairman of the Ulster County Child Home-Finding and Adoption Committee.

The contest is sponsored by the State Charities Aid Association's adoption committee in a concerted drive to interest more colored families in the adoption of children.

For more than a half century, the Child Placing and Adoption Committee has found homes for thousands of children of all races, but in recent years the number of colored children needing homes has far exceeded the number of homes available to them, the committee explains.

The contest is open to anyone except active social workers and individuals officially connected with the State Charities Aid Association. The article must be limited to 1,000 words or less and must be written on one side of the paper only. It will be judged on the basis of originality and practical usefulness of ideas. Entries should be mailed to Mrs. Floyd R. Banks, Jr., Room 710, 105 East 22nd street, New York 10, N. Y., on or before midnight October 31.

Judges will be Hon. Jane M. Bolin, justice of the Domestic Relations Court of New York city; Mrs. Marshall Field, member of Child Placing and Adoption Committee; and Dr. Robert W. Weaver, director of Opportunity Fellowships, John Hay Whitney Foundation.

WEDDING CALLED OFF

A reader explains: "My sister-in-law would like to know the procedure to follow about returning the gifts she has received—engagement, shower and even wedding—as she is not going to be married after all. The invitations were recalled and the wedding called off for good."

She simply sends them back and encloses a printed card saying:

Owing to the unhappy fact that the wedding of Miss Mary Jones to Mr. John Black will not take place, your kind gift is herewith returned.

Kindness to Nurse

Dear Mrs. Post: When I was a patient in the hospital not long ago, I had a very nice nurse, who was on my case for the first week. She then went on another case but always managed to come into my room to see me every day. I became very fond of her. Would it be out of place for me to invite her to dinner on one of her days off? We don't live too far from the hospital to make this feasible and from what she said I gather she lives with another nurse, alone. She met my husband and young daughter at the hospital.

Answer: I'm puzzled by your phrase "out of place." Certainly invite her. I can't imagine why not!

Tips

Dear Mrs. Post: Why is not 10 per cent of a restaurant check sufficient? You suggest that it should be nearer 12 or 15 per cent because everything has gone up. But I would like to know why 10 per cent is not higher than originally because the prices of meals is so high these days.

The only explanation is that every angle of expenditure has gone up. Although I can't say that I think it is fair, it is now expected.

Time to Retire

Dear Mrs. Post: Who should suggest the time to retire—hostess or house guest?

Answer: Hostess, usually—but this is not a fixed rule.

Do you know how to introduce an older person or how to introduce a friend to a group of people? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-17, "Introductions," will help you introduce friends with ease. Dynamite or Gasoline Fumes May Have Caused Explosions

Rochester, Sept. 28 (AP)—Dynamite or gasoline fumes—not natural gas—may have caused the explosions that took three lives in suburban Brighton last Friday.

This opinion was given by Leo H. East, vice-president of the Rochester Gas & Electric Corp.

He testified yesterday at a State Public Service Commission hearing on the explosions, that destroyed or damaged 44 homes.

PSC Chairman Benjamin Feinberg adjourned the hearings for an indefinite period after a lengthy session last night. He said the commission decided to wait until Brighton town officials gather more information.

Feinberg told RG&E officials to keep all equipment that was involved in the disaster in storage for examination by PSC engineers and other officials.

Valve Is Blamed

RG&E officials have said that the explosions apparently were caused by a faulty valve. They said the valve, which was kept in a vault was damaged when an explosion rocked the vault.

The regulator valve controls the gas pressure that moves from the principal mains into smaller mains supplying homes.

East told Joseph J. Doran, assistant counsel to the PSC, that he didn't know what caused the explosion in the vault.

Doran asked if it could have been accumulation of gas. East answered, "not necessarily. It could have been an explosion of gasoline vapors or dynamite."

East added that he had no indications that gasoline vapors or dynamite were in the vault.

None Like Blast

He did not elaborate on his theory, except to say:

"There have been many manhole explosions here and throughout the country, but to my knowledge there has never been an explosion like this. It tore the roof right off the vault. The nature of the explosion—the force behind it—is something I have never heard of before."

East brought out that a utility crew had been working on a "corrosion protecting program" in the vault for eight days prior to the explosion. He said it did not involve a shifting of any pipes.

He also said that a construction crew was installing a sidewalk near the underground vault but that this didn't affect the pressure regulators.

Crews Are Doubled

Syracuse, Sept. 28 (AP)—City crews of trash collectors and park workers were doubled today to clean up the litter accumulated during their three-day "sick" strike. The 600 AFL employes agreed yesterday to accept a $350-a-year pay increase effective Jan. 1 already provided in the new city budget. They walked out "ill" Monday, asking a $400 raise. Fred Maggio of the Truck Drivers and Helpers Local 540 said the union vote was unanimous. It came after garbage and trash piles had mounted throughout the city.

Reds Abuse Adenauer

Berlin, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Russian-controlled press abused West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today, claiming he and the Bonn Parliament had "practically rejected" Communist proposals for uniting the country through nation-wide elections. "To the devil with Adolf Adenauer," exclaimed Neues Deutschland, organ of East Germany's ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) party. It accused him of using Hitler tactics in supporting proposals to bring Germany into Western Europe's defense. "Adenauer doesn't want to negotiate. He wants to dictate," the Communist organ proclaimed.

Dividend Declared

The board of directors of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, at its monthly meeting held at its South road office, Poughkeepsie, today declared a dividend of 15 cents per share on its common stock, payable November 1, 1951, to stockholders of record October 10, 1951.

The festival was largely attended, approximately 500 being present including many Grand Commandery officers of New York. The Grand Commander and staff of New Jersey also were in attendance. Officers and members of Rondout Commandery took part in the festival.

Isaac Herb, one of Kingston's oldest florists hasn't let the passing years keep him out of the greenhouses, and at 75 he's still active at Brown's Flower Shop on Clifton avenue. Last night 35 of his friends gathered with him for a birthday dinner at the By-Pass Tavern on East Chester street, where he cut a large cake and said he felt as youthful in spirit as his youngest buddy at the party. Prize Is Offered For Best Article To Aid Adoptions

A statewide contest offers $100 for the best article on "Ways of Interesting More Colored Families in the Adoption of Children," it was announced locally today by Mrs. Herbert Fister, chairman of the Ulster County Child Home-Finding and Adoption Committee.

The contest is sponsored by the State Charities Aid Association's adoption committee in a concerted drive to interest more colored families in the adoption of children.

For more than a half century, the Child Placing and Adoption Committee has found homes for thousands of children of all races, but in recent years the number of colored children needing homes has far exceeded the number of homes available to them, the committee explains.

The contest is open to anyone except active social workers and individuals officially connected with the State Charities Aid Association. The article must be limited to 1,000 words or less and must be written on one side of the paper only. It will be judged on the basis of originality and practical usefulness of ideas. Entries should be mailed to Mrs. Floyd R. Banks, Jr., Room 710, 105 East 22nd street, New York 10, N. Y., on or before midnight October 31.

Judges will be Hon. Jane M. Bolin, justice of the Domestic Relations Court of New York city; Mrs. Marshall Field, member of Child Placing and Adoption Committee; and Dr. Robert W. Weaver, director of Opportunity Fellowships, John Hay Whitney Foundation.

WEDDING CALLED OFF

A reader explains: "My sister-in-law would like to know the procedure to follow about returning the gifts she has received—engagement, shower and even wedding—as she is not going to be married after all. The invitations were recalled and the wedding called off for good."

She simply sends them back and encloses a printed card saying:

Owing to the unhappy fact that the wedding of Miss Mary Jones to Mr. John Black will not take place, your kind gift is herewith returned.

Kindness to Nurse

Dear Mrs. Post: When I was a patient in the hospital not long ago, I had a very nice nurse, who was on my case for the first week. She then went on another case but always managed to come into my room to see me every day. I became very fond of her. Would it be out of place for me to invite her to dinner on one of her days off? We don't live too far from the hospital to make this feasible and from what she said I gather she lives with another nurse, alone. She met my husband and young daughter at the hospital.

Answer: I'm puzzled by your phrase "out of place." Certainly invite her. I can't imagine why not!

Tips

Dear Mrs. Post: Why is not 10 per cent of a restaurant check sufficient? You suggest that it should be nearer 12 or 15 per cent because everything has gone up. But I would like to know why 10 per cent is not higher than originally because the prices of meals is so high these days.

The only explanation is that every angle of expenditure has gone up. Although I can't say that I think it is fair, it is now expected.

Time to Retire

Dear Mrs. Post: Who should suggest the time to retire—hostess or house guest?

Answer: Hostess, usually—but this is not a fixed rule.

Do you know how to introduce an older person or how to introduce a friend to a group of people? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-17, "Introductions," will help you introduce friends with ease. Dynamite or Gasoline Fumes May Have Caused Explosions

Rochester, Sept. 28 (AP)—Dynamite or gasoline fumes—not natural gas—may have caused the explosions that took three lives in suburban Brighton last Friday.

This opinion was given by Leo H. East, vice-president of the Rochester Gas & Electric Corp.

He testified yesterday at a State Public Service Commission hearing on the explosions, that destroyed or damaged 44 homes.

PSC Chairman Benjamin Feinberg adjourned the hearings for an indefinite period after a lengthy session last night. He said the commission decided to wait until Brighton town officials gather more information.

Feinberg told RG&E officials to keep all equipment that was involved in the disaster in storage for examination by PSC engineers and other officials.

Valve Is Blamed

RG&E officials have said that the explosions apparently were caused by a faulty valve. They said the valve, which was kept in a vault was damaged when an explosion rocked the vault.

The regulator valve controls the gas pressure that moves from the principal mains into smaller mains supplying homes.

East told Joseph J. Doran, assistant counsel to the PSC, that he didn't know what caused the explosion in the vault.

Doran asked if it could have been accumulation of gas. East answered, "not necessarily. It could have been an explosion of gasoline vapors or dynamite."

East added that he had no indications that gasoline vapors or dynamite were in the vault.

None Like Blast

He did not elaborate on his theory, except to say:

"There have been many manhole explosions here and throughout the country, but to my knowledge there has never been an explosion like this. It tore the roof right off the vault. The nature of the explosion—the force behind it—is something I have never heard of before."

East brought out that a utility crew had been working on a "corrosion protecting program" in the vault for eight days prior to the explosion. He said it did not involve a shifting of any pipes.

He also said that a construction crew was installing a sidewalk near the underground vault but that this didn't affect the pressure regulators.

Crews Are Doubled

Syracuse, Sept. 28 (AP)—City crews of trash collectors and park workers were doubled today to clean up the litter accumulated during their three-day "sick" strike. The 600 AFL employes agreed yesterday to accept a $350-a-year pay increase effective Jan. 1 already provided in the new city budget. They walked out "ill" Monday, asking a $400 raise. Fred Maggio of the Truck Drivers and Helpers Local 540 said the union vote was unanimous. It came after garbage and trash piles had mounted throughout the city.

Reds Abuse Adenauer

Berlin, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Russian-controlled press abused West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today, claiming he and the Bonn Parliament had "practically rejected" Communist proposals for uniting the country through nation-wide elections. "To the devil with Adolf Adenauer," exclaimed Neues Deutschland, organ of East Germany's ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) party. It accused him of using Hitler tactics in supporting proposals to bring Germany into Western Europe's defense. "Adenauer doesn't want to negotiate. He wants to dictate," the Communist organ proclaimed.

Dividend Declared

The board of directors of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, at its monthly meeting held at its South road office, Poughkeepsie, today declared a dividend of 15 cents per share on its common stock, payable November 1, 1951, to stockholders of record October 10, 1951.

St. Augustine Chapel at West Shokan Will Be Blessed on Sunday, Sept. 30

Replaces Older Chapel Condemned For the Reservoir

Sunday, September 30, at 12:30 p. m., the Catholic people of West Shokan will come to the realization of seven years' planning and work, with the blessing of the new chapel of St. Augustine. This chapel replaces, after a lapse of almost 40 years, the older chapel of St. Augustine, which was built in 1893 and which was condemned in the building of the Ashokan water system. For the past seven years Mass has been celebrated on Sundays and Holy Days in the hall of the Colange store building on the South Ashokan Boulevard by the Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain of The Benedictine Hospital.

The blessing of the new chapel will be carried out by the Right Rev. Monsignor Martin J. Drury, representing His Eminence Cardinal Spellman. The blessing will be followed by a high Mass celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. James L. Riordan. A large attendance of parishioners and friends is expected.

Following the ceremonies, dinner will be served for the clergy at Holiday Inn.

The basic aim of the pastor and the community of West Shokan in the erection of the new Chapel of St. Augustine has been to provide shelter for their religious services in the form of a chapel of the mission type to serve a normally small congregation, which is more than doubled in the summer vacation months.

The style, while not starkly modernistic, represents the effect which current ideas of planning and modern materials have exercised upon the best forms of American church architecture. Exterior walls are of concrete blocks painted white, while roofs, supported on trussed rafters, are of asphalt shingles in a blue-black tone. The plan, a conscious effort toward economy, is traditionally rectangular with Sacristy and anterooms on the east and a classroom on the west, flanking the Sanctuary, the whole roofed under one ridge. The surmounting cross has been faced to the four winds and, from the resulting enclosure, will some day sound the chapel bell.

The main floor line is close to the ground level, partly as an economy measure, but mostly to allow easy travel between exterior and interior due to the omission of steps. Thus the open porch, with its stone floor, forms an easy transition between the outdoors and the interior of the chapel.

Inside the chapel the endeavor has been to make the tabernacle and altar the focal point by concentrating there all richness of materials and contrasts of color. The highly decorated tabernacle is of bronze-finished metal; the altar and tester, or canopy, of full grained oak against a background of inlaid oak panels which cover the rear wall of the sanctuary and are brought forward along the sidewalls as a low wainscot, only to spring upward again in straight-grained form to surround the quiet shrines of the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. The images in the shrines are of hand-carved linden wood. Behind the main altar, which is elevated on a predella of three steps, is a cloth dossal of deep red damask. The design woven in the damask presents the Chi-Rho symbol, the monogram of Christ, Whose Three-fold Kingship, King of Prophets, King of Priests and King of Kings, is portrayed by the three crowns arrayed one above the other in the midst of the grape leaves and fruit which refer to Christ's description of Himself as "the true vine" which is the source of spiritual life. The Chi-Rho symbol is repeated in red, green and gold on the circular plaque below the altar table. Against the cloth dossal is placed an oak cross bearing a linden wood corpus or figure of Christ. Carved linden wood statues of the Sacred Heart and the patron, St. Augustine, will flank the altar in the near future. Each of the Stations of the Cross on the walls of the nave is an artistic composition of full relief linden wood figures on a plain oak background.

The materials of the nave, or body of the chapel, have been selected to intensify by their simplicity the prominence of the Sanctuary area and, at the same time, to continue the familiar residential quality of many of the details and the general scale of the chapel. The tileboard ceiling, which is insulated, is low and flat, and has heating outlets and lighting fixtures recessed into the ceiling surface to achieve an open, uncluttered feeling in the room. Walls have a dark wood wainscot with smooth, lighter surfaces above. The floors are of asphalt tile over a concrete slab. The pews are solid oak designed with a view toward comfort of use and access. The pews ends are squared and on each one is incised a small cross of equal arms. In order to concentrate the congregation in winter and to conserve fuel, a sliding partition crosses the nave at the approximate center of the length. There are small doors in the partition at the center aisle so that the main entrance may still be used. In summer the partition will slide back into pockets in the side walls.

All windows are of the wide opening, aluminum casement type, those in the forward part of the nave being narrow, while those in the summer nave are wider to give as much ventilation as possible. The sills of all windows are high enough to prevent local distractions while still permitting an unobstructed view, through clear glass, of the mountains and the changing seasons, which can be whole sermons in themselves.

The main entrance doors and the two side entrances, one on each side of the forward part of the nave, as well as the interior doors, are low and intimate to conform with the comfortable and homelike scale.

The heating system is forced warm air, with provisions for circulating fresh air in the summer. The apparatus is located in a partial basement under the Sacristy.

St. Augustine Chapel at West Shokan Will Be Blessed on Sunday, Sept. 30

Replaces Older Chapel Condemned For the Reservoir

Sunday, September 30, at 12:30 p. m., the Catholic people of West Shokan will come to the realization of seven years' planning and work, with the blessing of the new chapel of St. Augustine. This chapel replaces, after a lapse of almost 40 years, the older chapel of St. Augustine, which was built in 1893 and which was condemned in the building of the Ashokan water system. For the past seven years Mass has been celebrated on Sundays and Holy Days in the hall of the Colange store building on the South Ashokan Boulevard by the Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain of The Benedictine Hospital.

The blessing of the new chapel will be carried out by the Right Rev. Monsignor Martin J. Drury, representing His Eminence Cardinal Spellman. The blessing will be followed by a high Mass celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. James L. Riordan. A large attendance of parishioners and friends is expected.

Following the ceremonies, dinner will be served for the clergy at Holiday Inn.

The basic aim of the pastor and the community of West Shokan in the erection of the new Chapel of St. Augustine has been to provide shelter for their religious services in the form of a chapel of the mission type to serve a normally small congregation, which is more than doubled in the summer vacation months.

The style, while not starkly modernistic, represents the effect which current ideas of planning and modern materials have exercised upon the best forms of American church architecture. Exterior walls are of concrete blocks painted white, while roofs, supported on trussed rafters, are of asphalt shingles in a blue-black tone. The plan, a conscious effort toward economy, is traditionally rectangular with Sacristy and anterooms on the east and a classroom on the west, flanking the Sanctuary, the whole roofed under one ridge. The surmounting cross has been faced to the four winds and, from the resulting enclosure, will some day sound the chapel bell.

The main floor line is close to the ground level, partly as an economy measure, but mostly to allow easy travel between exterior and interior due to the omission of steps. Thus the open porch, with its stone floor, forms an easy transition between the outdoors and the interior of the chapel.

Inside the chapel the endeavor has been to make the tabernacle and altar the focal point by concentrating there all richness of materials and contrasts of color. The highly decorated tabernacle is of bronze-finished metal; the altar and tester, or canopy, of full grained oak against a background of inlaid oak panels which cover the rear wall of the sanctuary and are brought forward along the sidewalls as a low wainscot, only to spring upward again in straight-grained form to surround the quiet shrines of the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. The images in the shrines are of hand-carved linden wood. Behind the main altar, which is elevated on a predella of three steps, is a cloth dossal of deep red damask. The design woven in the damask presents the Chi-Rho symbol, the monogram of Christ, Whose Three-fold Kingship, King of Prophets, King of Priests and King of Kings, is portrayed by the three crowns arrayed one above the other in the midst of the grape leaves and fruit which refer to Christ's description of Himself as "the true vine" which is the source of spiritual life. The Chi-Rho symbol is repeated in red, green and gold on the circular plaque below the altar table. Against the cloth dossal is placed an oak cross bearing a linden wood corpus or figure of Christ. Carved linden wood statues of the Sacred Heart and the patron, St. Augustine, will flank the altar in the near future. Each of the Stations of the Cross on the walls of the nave is an artistic composition of full relief linden wood figures on a plain oak background.

The materials of the nave, or body of the chapel, have been selected to intensify by their simplicity the prominence of the Sanctuary area and, at the same time, to continue the familiar residential quality of many of the details and the general scale of the chapel. The tileboard ceiling, which is insulated, is low and flat, and has heating outlets and lighting fixtures recessed into the ceiling surface to achieve an open, uncluttered feeling in the room. Walls have a dark wood wainscot with smooth, lighter surfaces above. The floors are of asphalt tile over a concrete slab. The pews are solid oak designed with a view toward comfort of use and access. The pews ends are squared and on each one is incised a small cross of equal arms. In order to concentrate the congregation in winter and to conserve fuel, a sliding partition crosses the nave at the approximate center of the length. There are small doors in the partition at the center aisle so that the main entrance may still be used. In summer the partition will slide back into pockets in the side walls.

All windows are of the wide opening, aluminum casement type, those in the forward part of the nave being narrow, while those in the summer nave are wider to give as much ventilation as possible. The sills of all windows are high enough to prevent local distractions while still permitting an unobstructed view, through clear glass, of the mountains and the changing seasons, which can be whole sermons in themselves.

The main entrance doors and the two side entrances, one on each side of the forward part of the nave, as well as the interior doors, are low and intimate to conform with the comfortable and homelike scale.

The heating system is forced warm air, with provisions for circulating fresh air in the summer. The apparatus is located in a partial basement under the Sacristy.

The architect was John J. O'Connor, A.I.A., of Ulster Park, and the general contractor was Henry H. Swart and Son of Hurley. Sub-contractors were: Masonry, Thomas Kennedy & Son, Kingston; millwork, Lumb Woodworking Co., Inc., Poughkeepsie; roofing, sheet metal and waterproofing, Smith-Parish Roofing Co., Kingston; steel and iron work, Ashley Welding Machine & Iron Co., Kingston; floor coverings, Donald C. St. Augustine Chapel at West Shokan Will Be Blessed on Sunday, Sept. 30

Replaces Older Chapel Condemned For the Reservoir

Sunday, September 30, at 12:30 p. m., the Catholic people of West Shokan will come to the realization of seven years' planning and work, with the blessing of the new chapel of St. Augustine. This chapel replaces, after a lapse of almost 40 years, the older chapel of St. Augustine, which was built in 1893 and which was condemned in the building of the Ashokan water system. For the past seven years Mass has been celebrated on Sundays and Holy Days in the hall of the Colange store building on the South Ashokan Boulevard by the Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain of The Benedictine Hospital.

The blessing of the new chapel will be carried out by the Right Rev. Monsignor Martin J. Drury, representing His Eminence Cardinal Spellman. The blessing will be followed by a high Mass celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. James L. Riordan. A large attendance of parishioners and friends is expected.

Following the ceremonies, dinner will be served for the clergy at Holiday Inn.

The basic aim of the pastor and the community of West Shokan in the erection of the new Chapel of St. Augustine has been to provide shelter for their religious services in the form of a chapel of the mission type to serve a normally small congregation, which is more than doubled in the summer vacation months.

The style, while not starkly modernistic, represents the effect which current ideas of planning and modern materials have exercised upon the best forms of American church architecture. Exterior walls are of concrete blocks painted white, while roofs, supported on trussed rafters, are of asphalt shingles in a blue-black tone. The plan, a conscious effort toward economy, is traditionally rectangular with Sacristy and anterooms on the east and a classroom on the west, flanking the Sanctuary, the whole roofed under one ridge. The surmounting cross has been faced to the four winds and, from the resulting enclosure, will some day sound the chapel bell.

The main floor line is close to the ground level, partly as an economy measure, but mostly to allow easy travel between exterior and interior due to the omission of steps. Thus the open porch, with its stone floor, forms an easy transition between the outdoors and the interior of the chapel.

Inside the chapel the endeavor has been to make the tabernacle and altar the focal point by concentrating there all richness of materials and contrasts of color. The highly decorated tabernacle is of bronze-finished metal; the altar and tester, or canopy, of full grained oak against a background of inlaid oak panels which cover the rear wall of the sanctuary and are brought forward along the sidewalls as a low wainscot, only to spring upward again in straight-grained form to surround the quiet shrines of the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. The images in the shrines are of hand-carved linden wood. Behind the main altar, which is elevated on a predella of three steps, is a cloth dossal of deep red damask. The design woven in the damask presents the Chi-Rho symbol, the monogram of Christ, Whose Three-fold Kingship, King of Prophets, King of Priests and King of Kings, is portrayed by the three crowns arrayed one above the other in the midst of the grape leaves and fruit which refer to Christ's description of Himself as "the true vine" which is the source of spiritual life. The Chi-Rho symbol is repeated in red, green and gold on the circular plaque below the altar table. Against the cloth dossal is placed an oak cross bearing a linden wood corpus or figure of Christ. Carved linden wood statues of the Sacred Heart and the patron, St. Augustine, will flank the altar in the near future. Each of the Stations of the Cross on the walls of the nave is an artistic composition of full relief linden wood figures on a plain oak background.

The materials of the nave, or body of the chapel, have been selected to intensify by their simplicity the prominence of the Sanctuary area and, at the same time, to continue the familiar residential quality of many of the details and the general scale of the chapel. The tileboard ceiling, which is insulated, is low and flat, and has heating outlets and lighting fixtures recessed into the ceiling surface to achieve an open, uncluttered feeling in the room. Walls have a dark wood wainscot with smooth, lighter surfaces above. The floors are of asphalt tile over a concrete slab. The pews are solid oak designed with a view toward comfort of use and access. The pews ends are squared and on each one is incised a small cross of equal arms. In order to concentrate the congregation in winter and to conserve fuel, a sliding partition crosses the nave at the approximate center of the length. There are small doors in the partition at the center aisle so that the main entrance may still be used. In summer the partition will slide back into pockets in the side walls.

All windows are of the wide opening, aluminum casement type, those in the forward part of the nave being narrow, while those in the summer nave are wider to give as much ventilation as possible. The sills of all windows are high enough to prevent local distractions while still permitting an unobstructed view, through clear glass, of the mountains and the changing seasons, which can be whole sermons in themselves.

The main entrance doors and the two side entrances, one on each side of the forward part of the nave, as well as the interior doors, are low and intimate to conform with the comfortable and homelike scale.

The heating system is forced warm air, with provisions for circulating fresh air in the summer. The apparatus is located in a partial basement under the Sacristy.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Learn a Lesson From This Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Sevice

"We missed the boat, partner," South said sadly when he saw the dummy.

"I tried to get you to slam," North reproached him. "Oh well, play it quickly and maybe we'll have time for another rubber."

Thus encouraged, South played the hand quickly and found a very easy way to go down at his game contract. South quavered miserably that he had played he hand too hastily, but this wa a poor excuse and he knew it. The truth was that he'd have made the same plays no matter how much time he had taken.

West led the king of hearts, and dummy ruffed with the deuce of spades. Declarer promptly led the six of spades from dummy, winning with the ace. His next step was to lay down the king of spades.

It all seems very natural, doesn't it? Nevertheless, South has now foozled away his contrac.

At best, South can ruf another heart in dummy and begn on the clubs. West can ruff the second club, however, and South is stuck with two losing hearts and two losing diamonds and no way to get rid of them. Down two on a hand that was good enough for a slam.

The correct play is very hard to find even if you se all the cards. In actual play I oubt that one player in a thousand would make the contract.

At the second trick, North leads the six of spades, and East plays the five of spades. South should not win with a high trump, but should give up the trick by playing his low trump.

This remarkable play protects declarer against a 4-1 break in trumps. By giving up this trump at once South can make twelve tricks instead of only eight.

West wins the second trick with the nine of spades and returns a trump (as good a defense as any). South wins, ruffs a second heart in dummy, and returns to his hand with a diamond to draw the rest of the trumps. The clubs then provide the rest of the tricks.

Wilson Burroughs, Poughkeepsie resident and grandnephew of John Burroughs, author-naturalist and one time school teacher in Olive, has purchased the famed Woodchuck Lodge at Roxbury. Wilson recalls how the elder Burroughs in the former's boyhood days used to trap as many as 50 'chucks in a summer season, converting the pelts into several uses and the carcasses into "Roxbury lamb," a dish much in favor at Woodchuck Lodge.

Mrs. Gabriel Richard's dog, Dinah, has reached the ripe old age (for canines) of 19 years. Although Dinah has begun to drag a little in getting around the house, she remains in pretty good health.

Medical Ambulance Service

Editor, The Freeman:

As noted in your recent issue, the tragic accident resulting in the death of young Robert Hamm, took place right outside my home on Lucas Turnpike. As a new but very loyal resident of Kingston it was very distressing to me to find that the city has no medical-ambulance service on call in such emergencies that I fear are quite frequent. The correct methods of moving the injured, the administration of anti-shock treatment and the checking of bleeding, are all matter of life and death that should not be deferred a moment longer than is possible. For a city the size and dignity of Kingston with such a justifiable sense of civic pride, to have no such service for its citizens and surrounding community is rather shocking to one accustomed to modern medical ideals and practices.

While I feel the need, certainly, to enlarge the capacity of our hospitals, this seems to me a more vital and pressing need. Who knows what life may be next at stake requiring instant care? Surely if this was recognized by all organizations . . . civic, police, veteran, philanthropic and religious . . . it would soon be possible to acquire an ambulance, to be manned by internes from the hospitals on call in turn, at need. And never again would there be the heartbreaking situation I witnessed last week when after being assured by bystanders—"the doctor is just coming"—the young veteran had to be driven over seven miles for medical aid that came all too late.

Very truly yours,
(MISS) CELIA M. PEARSON
(1937-1950, director, occupational therapy department, Montefiore Hospital, New York)

Wage Boost Wanted

Pusan, Korea, Sept. 28 (AP)—Korean laborers working for the U. S. Army want a wage boost—of 200 per cent. The army recently granted a 50 per cent raise, but laborers say they need four times that. The present average daily wage of 2,000 won (about 35 cents) meets less than one-third of the living costs of a family of four, they complain.

Learn a Lesson From This Hand

"We missed the boat, partner," South said sadly when he saw the dummy.

"I tried to get you to slam," North reproached him. "Oh well, play it quickly and maybe we'll have time for another rubber."

Thus encouraged, South played the hand quickly and found a very easy way to go down at his game contract. South quavered miserably that he had played he hand too hastily, but this was a poor excuse and he knew it. The truth was that he'd have made the same plays no matter how much time he had taken.

West led the king of hearts, and dummy ruffed with the deuce of spades. Declarer promptly led the six of spades from dummy, winning with the ace. His next step was to lay down the king of spades.

It all seems very natural, doesn't it? Nevertheless, South has now foozled away his contract.

At best, South can ruff another heart in dummy and begin on the clubs. West can ruff the second club, however, and South is stuck with two losing hearts and two losing diamonds and no way to get rid of them. Down two on a hand that was good enough for a slam.

The correct play is very hard to find even if you see all the cards. In actual play I doubt that one player in a thousand would make the contract.

At the second trick, North leads the six of spades, and East plays the five of spades. South should not win with a high trump, but should give up the trick by playing his low trump.

This remarkable play protects declarer against a 4-1 break in trumps. By giving up this trump at once South can make twelve tricks instead of only eight.

West wins the second trick with the nine of spades and returns a trump (as good a defense as any). South wins, ruffs a second heart in dummy, and returns to his hand with a diamond to draw the rest of the trumps. The clubs then provide the rest of the tricks.

Medical Ambulance Service

Editor, The Freeman:

As noted in your recent issue, the tragic accident resulting in the death of young Robert Hamm, took place right outside my home on Lucas Turnpike. As a new but very loyal resident of Kingston it was very distressing to me to find that the city has no medical-ambulance service on call in such emergencies that I fear are quite frequent. The correct methods of moving the injured, the administration of anti-shock treatment and the checking of bleeding, are all matter of life and death that should not be deferred a moment longer than is possible. For a city the size and dignity of Kingston with such a justifiable sense of civic pride, to have no such service for its citizens and surrounding community is rather shocking to one accustomed to modern medical ideals and practices.

While I feel the need, certainly, to enlarge the capacity of our hospitals, this seems to me a more vital and pressing need. Who knows what life may be next at stake requiring instant care? Surely if this was recognized by all organizations . . . civic, police, veteran, philanthropic and religious . . . it would soon be possible to acquire an ambulance, to be manned by internes from the hospitals on call in turn, at need. And never again would there be the heartbreaking situation I witnessed last week when after being assured by bystanders—"the doctor is just coming"—the young veteran had to be driven over seven miles for medical aid that came all too late.

Very truly yours,
(MISS) CELIA M. PEARSON
(1937-1950, director, occupational therapy department, Montefiore Hospital, New York)

Wage Boost Wanted

Pusan, Korea, Sept. 28 (AP)—Korean laborers working for the U. S. Army want a wage boost—of 200 per cent. The army recently granted a 50 per cent raise, but laborers say they need four times that. The present average daily wage of 2,000 won (about 35 cents) meets less than one-third of the living costs of a family of four, they complain.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Learn a Lesson From This Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Sevice

"We missed the boat, partner," South said sadly when he saw the dummy.

"I tried to get you to slam," North reproached him. "Oh well, play it quickly and maybe we'll have time for another rubber."

Thus encouraged, South played the hand quickly and found a very easy way to go down at his game contract. South quavered miserably that he had played he hand too hastily, but this wa a poor excuse and he knew it. The truth was that he'd have made the same plays no matter how much time he had taken.

West led the king of hearts, and dummy ruffed with the deuce of spades. Declarer promptly led the six of spades from dummy, winning with the ace. His next step was to lay down the king of spades.

It all seems very natural, doesn't it? Nevertheless, South has now foozled away his contrac.

At best, South can ruf another heart in dummy and begn on the clubs. West can ruff the second club, however, and South is stuck with two losing hearts and two losing diamonds and no way to get rid of them. Down two on a hand that was good enough for a slam.

The correct play is very hard to find even if you se all the cards. In actual play I doubt that one player in a thousand would make the contract.

At the second trick, North leads the six of spades, and East plays the five of spades. South should not win with a high trump, but should give up the trick by playing his low trump.

This remarkable play protects declarer against a 4-1 break in trumps. By giving up this trump at once South can make twelve tricks instead of only eight.

West wins the second trick with the nine of spades and returns a trump (as good a defense as any). South wins, ruffs a second heart in dummy, and returns to his hand with a diamond to draw the rest of the trumps. The clubs then provide the rest of the tricks.

Medical Ambulance Service

Editor, The Freeman:

As noted in your recent issue, the tragic accident resulting in the death of young Robert Hamm, took place right outside my home on Lucas Turnpike. As a new but very loyal resident of Kingston it was very distressing to me to find that the city has no medical-ambulance service on call in such emergencies that I fear are quite frequent. The correct methods of moving the injured, the administration of anti-shock treatment and the checking of bleeding, are all matter of life and death that should not be deferred a moment longer than is possible. For a city the size and dignity of Kingston with such a justifiable sense of civic pride, to have no such service for its citizens and surrounding community is rather shocking to one accustomed to modern medical ideals and practices.

While I feel the need, certainly, to enlarge the capacity of our hospitals, this seems to me a more vital and pressing need. Who knows what life may be next at stake requiring instant care? Surely if this was recognized by all organizations . . . civic, police, veteran, philanthropic and religious . . . it would soon be possible to acquire an ambulance, to be manned by internes from the hospitals on call in turn, at need. And never again would there be the heartbreaking situation I witnessed last week when after being assured by bystanders—"the doctor is just coming"—the young veteran had to be driven over seven miles for medical aid that came all too late.

Very truly yours,
(MISS) CELIA M. PEARSON
(1937-1950, director, occupational therapy department, Montefiore Hospital, New York)

Wage Boost Wanted

Pusan, Korea, Sept. 28 (AP)—Korean laborers working for the U. S. Army want a wage boost—of 200 per cent. The army recently granted a 50 per cent raise, but laborers say they need four times that. The present average daily wage of 2,000 won (about 35 cents) meets less than one-third of the living costs of a family of four, they complain.

Miss Mary A. Bohan To Study in Europe

MARY A. BOHAN

Miss Mary A. Bohan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bohan, River road, Port Ewen, embarked Tuesday on the French Line's Liberte for a study tour through France, Italy and Spain.

Miss Bohan is traveling with Miss Eileen Brown of Carmel, a former classmate at Cooper Union, New York, where both girls were graduated in June. Miss Bohan and Miss Brown plan to study fine arts in the three countries they will visit, and are looking forward to many of the continent's famous art galleries.

At her graduation from Cooper Union where she attended evening sessions, Miss Bohan was awarded a $100 U. S. Savings Bond for her "outstanding quality of accomplishment" in the fine arts course.

A graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula, this city, she was employed as an advertising copywriter for Stern Brothers, New York. She has also earned credits towards a master's degree at New York University's School of Education.

The American public drinks more than 80,000 gallons of fruit juices annually.

Agudas Achim Group Plans Fall Program

The executive board of the Women's Group of Congregation Agudas Achim planned an intensive and constructive program of activities for the coming season during their second monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Ben Suskind. Committee chairmen were also appointed.

Included in the fall agenda are the annual bazaar scheduled for October 29-31 in the vestry hall of the synagogue, and a bus trip to New York and theatre party November 28.

This year's bazaar will be particularly outstanding, the board feels, as a result of side shows, light refreshments, elaborate decorations, and numerous novelty booths.

During the course of the year there will be parties, social gatherings, educational and cultural programs, planned in conjunction with other groups for the promotion of understanding and good will. As the Women's Group is an affiliate of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America, the board expressed a desire to inculcate better understanding of the principles and ideas on which the organization is based.

At the tea which followed the meeting, Mrs. Irving Meyers poured. Mrs. Ben Suskind and Mrs. David Kline were hostesses.

The executive board will meet again Thursday, Oct. 11 at 8:15 p. m., in the vestry hall of the synagogue, with Mrs. Ralph Klein as program chairman.

Three Kingston Residents Visit in Greece; Give Reports on Living Conditions Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. John Janakis are shown on the sun deck of the SS Constitution en route to New York where they docked last week. They were visiting Mr. Janakis' family in Crete. At the left is Mrs. Stephen Larios, who returned to her native Greece this summer for the first time in 38 years.

Three Kingston residents visited the countries bordening the Aegean Sea this summer, bringing back vivid, kaleidoscopic and impressively similiar memories.

For Mrs. Stephen Larios it was a strangely sad "pleasure trip" .....the first visit to her childhood home since she left 38 years ago at the age of 16 for the United States. John Janakis had not seen his native Crete since 1933. Mrs. Janakis had never visited the Mediterranean world.

Mrs. Larios, who flew to Athens via Canada and Paris, never wants to go back again.

"I don't want to ever see my people like that. Since my trip I've thanked God a thousand times I'm an American. The only thing I can still enjoy in Greece is the warm, dry, sunny climate. And Athens is still a beautiful place. But the villages are so poor..."

Mrs. Larios left Kingston in May. Twenty-four hours after departure, she was in Athens. When she came to this country as a young girl, the voyage lasted 22 days. Once in Greece, she divided her two-months' stay between those classic rivals, Sparta and Athens. In Sparta she saw her mother and brothers, and in Athens her cousins. Since her return she has managed, despite the expense, to send off weekly boxes of food and clothing.

Athens, Mrs. Larios describes as "not so bad." Sparta, and the surrounding villages, present a different picture. It has been a dry year in Sparta, and the farms aren't producing. There is evidence of World War 2 damages everywhere. The people suffer from hunger, inadequate clothing poor housing.

"All the people," she explains, "are very, very sad."

Mrs. Larios now hopes to adopt a cousin's child, a nine-year-old girl, one of a family of eight. She has already helped six displaced persons to make their homes in this country.

Belgrade Stop

The Janakis left here May 8 aboard the Queen Elizabeth, and crossed the continent by train, passing through France, Italy and Czechoslovakia. In Belgrade there was a 90-minute stopover. Mr. Janakis strolled around near the station to stretch his legs. Czechoslovakia, he now feels, was the poorest European nation he visited. He still remembers vividly the show windows of a nearly-empty store. There were two pictures, one of Stalin and one of Tito. An aged bottle of vodka and two packs of dusty cigarettes made up the rest of the display. Of all the people he saw on the street, only high army officers were well dressed. The food on the train was the worst they ate abroad.

Belgrade officials caused the Janakis little or no trouble.

"They asked me if I were a diplomat," Mr. Janakis chuckles. "I said 'yes' and then they left us alone."

Saw Inauguration

Mr. and Mrs. Janakis arrived in Athens in time to see the mayor's inauguration, a spectacular, gilt-edged affair. They were met there by a doctor cousin, whose son is attending Drew University in New Jersey. After two weeks they went on to Crete, where Mr. Janakis lived until he was 17.

"Conditions," Mr. Janakis admits, "are not very good. Without the Marshall Plan, the people would starve."

He remembers an old man he met, who, after he recognized him as an American, told him: "God bless all Americans. If it wasn't for the Americans we would starve to death. Everyone loves the Americans."

Another man remarked: "We owe so much to America, that we could not even pay with stones, for if we paid with stones, there would be no land left. It would be all covered up with water."

Mrs. Larios noticed a similar reaction. "Everybody, except a few Communists, had praise for the Americans."

American Goods

The shelves of Greece's stores, as well as those in Crete, are stocked with American consumer goods, Mr. and Mrs. Janakis reported. Women, particularly in the upper classes, dress in American made clothes.

Greece's struggle to rebuild herself from the rubble of war is, both Mrs. Larios and the Janakis feel, a slow, painstaking task. There are villages with barely a dozen houses intact. Often 10 or 12 people live in a single room. Many families have no other shelter than a tent. The people want to rebuild, but there is neither the money, nor the material. It takes an ordinary family two or three years to finish a single room. They have, in fact, little except spirit, to go on.

"They fear Russia," Mr. Janakis notes, "but are willing to fight, if necessary. I have a nephew who is an officer in the army. He told me Greece has 200,000 troops in top condition."

Italy Prosperous

In Italy Mr. and Mrs. Janakis saw greater prosperity than in any other European country. Living conditions were cheaper and better.

"You wouldn't know there was ever a war there."

Stopping off in Rome on their way back to the States (they sailed via Gibraltar aboard the SS Constitution), they discovered an English-speaking taxi driver who became their unofficial guide of the city. He had learned English when he served under the Fifth Army.

With the help of the taxi driver the Janakis saw most of Rome's highlights: St. Peter's, St. Paul's, the Vatican. They had only one real disappointment. They were unable to see the Pope.

Mrs. Alice Sturges Lists Parliamentary Procedure for Club

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—There are five and a half million women's clubs in the United States.

This is the figure estimated by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as the number of member clubs and affiliated organizations.

This means there are five and a half million women's club presidents in the country.

At least half of these do not know the basic parliamentary rules for conducting a meeting, says Alice F. Sturgis, author of the recently published "Sturgis Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure."

Under a Guggenheim fellowship, Mrs. Sturgis, a recognized parliamentarian, has been studying the procedure of a group of national organizations. One of the first things that struck her was the astronomical number of groups in every community of the U.S.A. The next was the need for knowledge of recognized rules of procedure.

As a daughter, wife and mother of lawyers, Mrs. Sturgis has been steeped in legal atmosphere since childhood, and frequently is called from her home in Piedmont, Calif., to act as an advisor on parliamentary procedure at varied conventions.

She feels strongly that anyone who accepts the presidency or chairmanship of an orzanized group should at least know what he—or she— is talking about.

For the millions of women who this year will preside at meetings of their local clubs, she suggests ten rules on how to be a good chairman:

Ten Rules

1—Don't use the club for your personal glory. If you put the good of the organization first the personal plaudits will follow naturally. But don't make the common mistake of saying: "My year is going to be the best year in the history of the club."

2—Don't keep on being president after your term is over. There should be nothing deader than a past president. Give the new leader a chance.

3—Be sure that you understand the basic policy of your organization, and follow its continuity. If you haven't a policy, get one.

4—If you have an unpleasant duty to perform, do it outside the club meeting. Don't use the rostrum as center for a cat-and-dog fight. Three-fourths of intelligent club leadership takes place outside the meetings. Work out any imminent problems or clashes ahead of time, to avoid embarrassment. Use simple common sense in exercising behind-the-scenes leadership.

5—Follow, don't push. Your job is to carry out the wishes of all the members, not to bend them to your own will.

6—Watch principles instead of technicalities. You need to know the rules of parliamentary procedure, but you needn't use all your knowledge all the time. Remember that the reason for rules of procedure is to facilitate business and insure a fair consideration of every issue.

7—Remember that the president of a club is in the position of a judge. Don't take sides with one faction against another.

8—Don't campaign for your own election, or you will make enemies before you start. If you have to fight for the chairmanship, you probably are not yet ready for it.

9—In presiding, be sure of these points: (a) that there is a quorum present; (b) that everyone understands each motion; (c) that plenty of time is given to discussion; (d) that the vote is taken accurately; (e) that the will of the majority is carried out and the rights of the minority protected.

10—Observe the rules of parliamentary procedure and you will be safe from legal difficulties, avoid lawsuits and misunderstandings.

October Is Named For School Boards Association Meeting

Aims, accomplishments and problems common to school systems throughout the state will be discussed in Syracuse next month during the 19th annual meeting of the New York State School Boards Association, Inc. October 21-23 in the Onondaga County War Memorial auditorium.

In a recent announcement, Lester Shultis, president of the Onteora School Board, said that some 2,000 men and women, all school board members and officials, representing 814 of the association's member school boards, will attend.

Mr. Shultis, president, will head the local delegation, which will include Philip Gordon, board member; Reginald Bennett, district superintendent; Lawrence Gallagher, supervising principal.

The theme of this year's meeting, according to Mr. Shultis, will be taken from a statement by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower: "Loylaty to the moral and spiritual values which have made America great is a top priority for our public schools."

It is through these conferences and meetings, Mr. Shultis has explained, that the association lays the foundation for its wide educational improvements. Interest is stimulated in schools and school problems. Benefits for the school, the teacher, and the pupil are often gained. In addition the public becomes aware of educational progress, and educational needs.

Educational leaders who will speak at the convention include Patrick Murphy Kalin, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, New York; Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, commissioner of education and president of the University of the State of New York; Frank H. Trotter, president of the National School Boards Association. Cyrus M. Higley, president of the State School Boards Association, will preside at the meeting.

Wesleyan Service Guild Gives Report

The first fall meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of St. James Methodist Church was held Tuesday, Sept. 25, beginning with supper at 6:30 p. m. followed by the regular meeting at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Lucie Baker, president, reported on the Guild conference week-end at Carmel July 27-29 which she attended as a delegate from St. James. She also reminded members that on September 9 the Guild entertained shut-ins of the church from 3 to 5 p. m. At that meeting refreshments were served, and each guest given a gift. Additional gifts were sent to those who could not attend.

Devotions Tuesday were led by Mrs. Beatrice Van Keuren, while Mrs. Ralph Houston spoke on The Health of the American Indian, the evening's study topic. Mrs. Houston pointed out that the Indian's health was dependent upon his religious, educational and economic standards, and explained how the church is helping to improve and enrich their lives.

The Guild's next meeting will be October 23 with Major Helena Clearwater as guest speaker. St. James' WSCS and the Wesleyan Service Guild will hold a joint fellowship supper October 29.

The boarders, a strange assortment, are always good natured, and sometimes eccentric.

Miss Mary A. Bohan To Study in Europe

MARY A. BOHAN

Miss Mary A. Bohan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bohan, River road, Port Ewen, embarked Tuesday on the French Line's Liberte for a study tour through France, Italy and Spain.

Miss Bohan is traveling with Miss Eileen Brown of Carmel, a former classmate at Cooper Union, New York, where both girls were graduated in June. Miss Bohan and Miss Brown plan to study fine arts in the three countries they will visit, and are looking forward to many of the continent's famous art galleries.

At her graduation from Cooper Union where she attended evening sessions, Miss Bohan was awarded a $100 U. S. Savings Bond for her "outstanding quality of accomplishment" in the fine arts course.

A graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula, this city, she was employed as an advertising copywriter for Stern Brothers, New York. She has also earned credits towards a master's degree at New York University's School of Education.

The American public drinks more than 80,000 gallons of fruit juices annually.

Agudas Achim Group Plans Fall Program

The executive board of the Women's Group of Congregation Agudas Achim planned an intensive and constructive program of activities for the coming season during their second monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Ben Suskind. Committee chairmen were also appointed.

Included in the fall agenda are the annual bazaar scheduled for October 29-31 in the vestry hall of the synagogue, and a bus trip to New York and theatre party November 28.

This year's bazaar will be particularly outstanding, the board feels, as a result of side shows, light refreshments, elaborate decorations, and numerous novelty booths.

During the course of the year there will be parties, social gatherings, educational and cultural programs, planned in conjunction with other groups for the promotion of understanding and good will. As the Women's Group is an affiliate of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America, the board expressed a desire to inculcate better understanding of the principles and ideas on which the organization is based.

At the tea which followed the meeting, Mrs. Irving Meyers poured. Mrs. Ben Suskind and Mrs. David Kline were hostesses.

The executive board will meet again Thursday, Oct. 11 at 8:15 p. m., in the vestry hall of the synagogue, with Mrs. Ralph Klein as program chairman.

Robert John Cooke To Wed in December

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Dexter of Pearl River announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Louise, to Robert John Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooke of Utica.

Miss Dexter is a graduate of Pearl River High School, and attended New Paltz State Teachers College.

Mr. Cooke was graduated from Kingston High School and New Paltz State Teachers College. He received his master's degree from Columbia University, New York, and is now a member of the high school faculty at Goshen.

The wedding will take place in the latter part of December.

Three Kingston Residents Visit in Greece; Give Reports on Living Conditions Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. John Janakis are shown on the sun deck of the SS Constitution en route to New York where they docked last week. They were visiting Mr. Janakis' family in Crete. At the left is Mrs. Stephen Larios, who returned to her native Greece this summer for the first time in 38 years.

Three Kingston residents visited the countries bordening the Aegean Sea this summer, bringing back vivid, kaleidoscopic and impressively similiar memories.

For Mrs. Stephen Larios it was a strangely sad "pleasure trip" .....the first visit to her childhood home since she left 38 years ago at the age of 16 for the United States. John Janakis had not seen his native Crete since 1933. Mrs. Janakis had never visited the Mediterranean world.

Mrs. Larios, who flew to Athens via Canada and Paris, never wants to go back again.

"I don't want to ever see my people like that. Since my trip I've thanked God a thousand times I'm an American. The only thing I can still enjoy in Greece is the warm, dry, sunny climate. And Athens is still a beautiful place. But the villages are so poor..."

Mrs. Larios left Kingston in May. Twenty-four hours after departure, she was in Athens. When she came to this country as a young girl, the voyage lasted 22 days. Once in Greece, she divided her two-months' stay between those classic rivals, Sparta and Athens. In Sparta she saw her mother and brothers, and in Athens her cousins. Since her return she has managed, despite the expense, to send off weekly boxes of food and clothing.

Athens, Mrs. Larios describes as "not so bad." Sparta, and the surrounding villages, present a different picture. It has been a dry year in Sparta, and the farms aren't producing. There is evidence of World War 2 damages everywhere. The people suffer from hunger, inadequate clothing poor housing.

"All the people," she explains, "are very, very sad."

Mrs. Larios now hopes to adopt a cousin's child, a nine-year-old girl, one of a family of eight. She has already helped six displaced persons to make their homes in this country.

Belgrade Stop

The Janakis left here May 8 aboard the Queen Elizabeth, and crossed the continent by train, passing through France, Italy and Czechoslovakia. In Belgrade there was a 90-minute stopover. Mr. Janakis strolled around near the station to stretch his legs. Czechoslovakia, he now feels, was the poorest European nation he visited. He still remembers vividly the show windows of a nearly-empty store. There were two pictures, one of Stalin and one of Tito. An aged bottle of vodka and two packs of dusty cigarettes made up the rest of the display. Of all the people he saw on the street, only high army officers were well dressed. The food on the train was the worst they ate abroad.

Belgrade officials caused the Janakis little or no trouble.

"They asked me if I were a diplomat," Mr. Janakis chuckles. "I said 'yes' and then they left us alone."

Saw Inauguration

Mr. and Mrs. Janakis arrived in Athens in time to see the mayor's inauguration, a spectacular, gilt-edged affair. They were met there by a doctor cousin, whose son is attending Drew University in New Jersey. After two weeks they went on to Crete, where Mr. Janakis lived until he was 17.

"Conditions," Mr. Janakis admits, "are not very good. Without the Marshall Plan, the people would starve."

He remembers an old man he met, who, after he recognized him as an American, told him: "God bless all Americans. If it wasn't for the Americans we would starve to death. Everyone loves the Americans."

Another man remarked: "We owe so much to America, that we could not even pay with stones, for if we paid with stones, there would be no land left. It would be all covered up with water."

Mrs. Larios noticed a similar reaction. "Everybody, except a few Communists, had praise for the Americans."

American Goods

The shelves of Greece's stores, as well as those in Crete, are stocked with American consumer goods, Mr. and Mrs. Janakis reported. Women, particularly in the upper classes, dress in American made clothes.

Greece's struggle to rebuild herself from the rubble of war is, both Mrs. Larios and the Janakis feel, a slow, painstaking task. There are villages with barely a dozen houses intact. Often 10 or 12 people live in a single room. Many families have no other shelter than a tent. The people want to rebuild, but there is neither the money, nor the material. It takes an ordinary family two or three years to finish a single room. They have, in fact, little except spirit, to go on.

"They fear Russia," Mr. Janakis notes, "but are willing to fight, if necessary. I have a nephew who is an officer in the army. He told me Greece has 200,000 troops in top condition."

Italy Prosperous

In Italy Mr. and Mrs. Janakis saw greater prosperity than in any other European country. Living conditions were cheaper and better.

"You wouldn't know there was ever a war there."

Stopping off in Rome on their way back to the States (they sailed via Gibraltar aboard the SS Constitution), they discovered an English-speaking taxi driver who became their unofficial guide of the city. He had learned English when he served under the Fifth Army.

Miss Mary A. Bohan To Study in Europe

MARY A. BOHAN

Miss Mary A. Bohan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bohan, River road, Port Ewen, embarked Tuesday on the French Line's Liberte for a study tour through France, Italy and Spain.

Miss Bohan is traveling with Miss Eileen Brown of Carmel, a former classmate at Cooper Union, New York, where both girls were graduated in June. Miss Bohan and Miss Brown plan to study fine arts in the three countries they will visit, and are looking forward to many of the continent's famous art galleries.

At her graduation from Cooper Union where she attended evening sessions, Miss Bohan was awarded a $100 U. S. Savings Bond for her "outstanding quality of accomplishment" in the fine arts course.

A graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula, this city, she was employed as an advertising copywriter for Stern Brothers, New York. She has also earned credits towards a master's degree at New York University's School of Education.

The American public drinks more than 80,000 gallons of fruit juices annually.

Agudas Achim Group Plans Fall Program

The executive board of the Women's Group of Congregation Agudas Achim planned an intensive and constructive program of activities for the coming season during their second monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Ben Suskind. Committee chairmen were also appointed.

Included in the fall agenda are the annual bazaar scheduled for October 29-31 in the vestry hall of the synagogue, and a bus trip to New York and theatre party November 28.

This year's bazaar will be particularly outstanding, the board feels, as a result of side shows, light refreshments, elaborate decorations, and numerous novelty booths.

During the course of the year there will be parties, social gatherings, educational and cultural programs, planned in conjunction with other groups for the promotion of understanding and good will. As the Women's Group is an affiliate of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America, the board expressed a desire to inculcate better understanding of the principles and ideas on which the organization is based.

At the tea which followed the meeting, Mrs. Irving Meyers poured. Mrs. Ben Suskind and Mrs. David Kline were hostesses.

The executive board will meet again Thursday, Oct. 11 at 8:15 p. m., in the vestry hall of the synagogue, with Mrs. Ralph Klein as program chairman.

Robert John Cooke To Wed in December

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Dexter of Pearl River announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Louise, to Robert John Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooke of Utica.

Miss Dexter is a graduate of Pearl River High School, and attended New Paltz State Teachers College.

Mr. Cooke was graduated from Kingston High School and New Paltz State Teachers College. He received his master's degree from Columbia University, New York, and is now a member of the high school faculty at Goshen.

The wedding will take place in the latter part of December.

Three Kingston Residents Visit in Greece; Give Reports on Living Conditions Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. John Janakis are shown on the sun deck of the SS Constitution en route to New York where they docked last week. They were visiting Mr. Janakis' family in Crete. At the left is Mrs. Stephen Larios, who returned to her native Greece this summer for the first time in 38 years.

Three Kingston residents visited the countries bordening the Aegean Sea this summer, bringing back vivid, kaleidoscopic and impressively similiar memories.

For Mrs. Stephen Larios it was a strangely sad "pleasure trip" .....the first visit to her childhood home since she left 38 years ago at the age of 16 for the United States. John Janakis had not seen his native Crete since 1933. Mrs. Janakis had never visited the Mediterranean world.

Mrs. Larios, who flew to Athens via Canada and Paris, never wants to go back again.

"I don't want to ever see my people like that. Since my trip I've thanked God a thousand times I'm an American. The only thing I can still enjoy in Greece is the warm, dry, sunny climate. And Athens is still a beautiful place. But the villages are so poor..."

Mrs. Larios left Kingston in May. Twenty-four hours after departure, she was in Athens. When she came to this country as a young girl, the voyage lasted 22 days. Once in Greece, she divided her two-months' stay between those classic rivals, Sparta and Athens. In Sparta she saw her mother and brothers, and in Athens her cousins. Since her return she has managed, despite the expense, to send off weekly boxes of food and clothing.

Athens, Mrs. Larios describes as "not so bad." Sparta, and the surrounding villages, present a different picture. It has been a dry year in Sparta, and the farms aren't producing. There is evidence of World War 2 damages everywhere. The people suffer from hunger, inadequate clothing poor housing.

"All the people," she explains, "are very, very sad."

Mrs. Larios now hopes to adopt a cousin's child, a nine-year-old girl, one of a family of eight. She has already helped six displaced persons to make their homes in this country.

Belgrade Stop

The Janakis left here May 8 aboard the Queen Elizabeth, and crossed the continent by train, passing through France, Italy and Czechoslovakia. In Belgrade there was a 90-minute stopover. Mr. Janakis strolled around near the station to stretch his legs. Czechoslovakia, he now feels, was the poorest European nation he visited. He still remembers vividly the show windows of a nearly-empty store. There were two pictures, one of Stalin and one of Tito. An aged bottle of vodka and two packs of dusty cigarettes made up the rest of the display. Of all the people he saw on the street, only high army officers were well dressed. The food on the train was the worst they ate abroad.

Belgrade officials caused the Janakis little or no trouble.

"They asked me if I were a diplomat," Mr. Janakis chuckles. "I said 'yes' and then they left us alone."

Saw Inauguration

Mr. and Mrs. Janakis arrived in Athens in time to see the mayor's inauguration, a spectacular, gilt-edged affair. They were met there by a doctor cousin, whose son is attending Drew University in New Jersey. After two weeks they went on to Crete, where Mr. Janakis lived until he was 17.

"Conditions," Mr. Janakis admits, "are not very good. Without the Marshall Plan, the people would starve."

He remembers an old man he met, who, after he recognized him as an American, told him: "God bless all Americans. If it wasn't for the Americans we would starve to death. Everyone loves the Americans."

Another man remarked: "We owe so much to America, that we could not even pay with stones, for if we paid with stones, there would be no land left. It would be all covered up with water."

Mrs. Larios noticed a similar reaction. "Everybody, except a few Communists, had praise for the Americans."

American Goods

The shelves of Greece's stores, as well as those in Crete, are stocked with American consumer goods, Mr. and Mrs. Janakis reported. Women, particularly in the upper classes, dress in American made clothes.

Greece's struggle to rebuild herself from the rubble of war is, both Mrs. Larios and the Janakis feel, a slow, painstaking task. There are villages with barely a dozen houses intact. Often 10 or 12 people live in a single room. Many families have no other shelter than a tent. The people want to rebuild, but there is neither the money, nor the material. It takes an ordinary family two or three years to finish a single room. They have, in fact, little except spirit, to go on.

"They fear Russia," Mr. Janakis notes, "but are willing to fight, if necessary. I have a nephew who is an officer in the army. He told me Greece has 200,000 troops in top condition."

Italy Prosperous

In Italy Mr. and Mrs. Janakis saw greater prosperity than in any other European country. Living conditions were cheaper and better.

"You wouldn't know there was ever a war there."

Stopping off in Rome on their way back to the States (they sailed via Gibraltar aboard the SS Constitution), they discovered an English-speaking taxi driver who became their unofficial guide of the city. He had learned English when he served under the Fifth Army.

With the help of the taxi driver the Janakis saw most of Rome's highlights: St. Peter's, St. Paul's, the Vatican. They had only one real disappointment. They were unable to see the Pope.

Mrs. Alice Sturges Lists Parliamentary Procedure for Club

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—There are five and a half million women's clubs in the United States.

This is the figure estimated by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as the number of member clubs and affiliated organizations.

This means there are five and a half million women's club presidents in the country.

At least half of these do not know the basic parliamentary rules for conducting a meeting, says Alice F. Sturgis, author of the recently published "Sturgis Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure."

Under a Guggenheim fellowship, Mrs. Sturgis, a recognized parliamentarian, has been studying the procedure of a group of national organizations. One of the first things that struck her was the astronomical number of groups in every community of the U.S.A. The next was the need for knowledge of recognized rules of procedure.

As a daughter, wife and mother of lawyers, Mrs. Sturgis has been steeped in legal atmosphere since childhood, and frequently is called from her home in Piedmont, Calif., to act as an advisor on parliamentary procedure at varied conventions.

She feels strongly that anyone who accepts the presidency or chairmanship of an orzanized group should at least know what he—or she— is talking about.

For the millions of women who this year will preside at meetings of their local clubs, she suggests ten rules on how to be a good chairman:

Ten Rules

1—Don't use the club for your personal glory. If you put the good of the organization first the personal plaudits will follow naturally. But don't make the common mistake of saying: "My year is going to be the best year in the history of the club."

2—Don't keep on being president after your term is over. There should be nothing deader than a past president. Give the new leader a chance.

3—Be sure that you understand the basic policy of your organization, and follow its continuity. If you haven't a policy, get one.

4—If you have an unpleasant duty to perform, do it outside the club meeting. Don't use the rostrum as center for a cat-and-dog fight. Three-fourths of intelligent club leadership takes place outside the meetings. Work out any imminent problems or clashes ahead of time, to avoid embarrassment. Use simple common sense in exercising behind-the-scenes leadership.

5—Follow, don't push. Your job is to carry out the wishes of all the members, not to bend them to your own will.

6—Watch principles instead of technicalities. You need to know the rules of parliamentary procedure, but you needn't use all your knowledge all the time. Remember that the reason for rules of procedure is to facilitate business and insure a fair consideration of every issue.

7—Remember that the president of a club is in the position of a judge. Don't take sides with one faction against another.

8—Don't campaign for your own election, or you will make enemies before you start. If you have to fight for the chairmanship, you probably are not yet ready for it.

9—In presiding, be sure of these points: (a) that there is a quorum present; (b) that everyone understands each motion; (c) that plenty of time is given to discussion; (d) that the vote is taken accurately; (e) that the will of the majority is carried out and the rights of the minority protected.

10—Observe the rules of parliamentary procedure and you will be safe from legal difficulties, avoid lawsuits and misunderstandings.

October Is Named For School Boards Association Meeting

Aims, accomplishments and problems common to school systems throughout the state will be discussed in Syracuse next month during the 19th annual meeting of the New York State School Boards Association, Inc. October 21-23 in the Onondaga County War Memorial auditorium.

In a recent announcement, Lester Shultis, president of the Onteora School Board, said that some 2,000 men and women, all school board members and officials, representing 814 of the association's member school boards, will attend.

Mr. Shultis, president, will head the local delegation, which will include Philip Gordon, board member; Reginald Bennett, district superintendent; Lawrence Gallagher, supervising principal.

The theme of this year's meeting, according to Mr. Shultis, will be taken from a statement by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower: "Loylaty to the moral and spiritual values which have made America great is a top priority for our public schools."

It is through these conferences and meetings, Mr. Shultis has explained, that the association lays the foundation for its wide educational improvements. Interest is stimulated in schools and school problems. Benefits for the school, the teacher, and the pupil are often gained. In addition the public becomes aware of educational progress, and educational needs.

Educational leaders who will speak at the convention include Patrick Murphy Kalin, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, New York; Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, commissioner of education and president of the University of the State of New York; Frank H. Trotter, president of the National School Boards Association. Cyrus M. Higley, president of the State School Boards Association, will preside at the meeting.

Wesleyan Service Guild Gives Report

The first fall meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of St. James Methodist Church was held Tuesday, Sept. 25, beginning with supper at 6:30 p. m. followed by the regular meeting at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Lucie Baker, president, reported on the Guild conference week-end at Carmel July 27-29 which she attended as a delegate from St. James. She also reminded members that on September 9 the Guild entertained shut-ins of the church from 3 to 5 p. m. At that meeting refreshments were served, and each guest given a gift. Additional gifts were sent to those who could not attend.

Devotions Tuesday were led by Mrs. Beatrice Van Keuren, while Mrs. Ralph Houston spoke on The Health of the American Indian, the evening's study topic. Mrs. Houston pointed out that the Indian's health was dependent upon his religious, educational and economic standards, and explained how the church is helping to improve and enrich their lives.

The Guild's next meeting will be October 23 with Major Helena Clearwater as guest speaker. St. James' WSCS and the Wesleyan Service Guild will hold a joint fellowship supper October 29.

Coach House Begins Fall Play Rehearsals

Bustle and activity are erupting from the Coach House Players' theatre on Augusta street, as the group's next production, Chicken Every Sunday, gets underway.

The well-loved comedy centers about the Blachman family in Arizona, with W. Irving Rose as Jim Blachman, the husband who is always investing in non-profit enterprises, and is always going broke. Rose Helen Mellert plays his wife, Emily, who has converted the Blachman home into a boarding house to give the family a roof over their heads, and something to eat. The boarders, a strange assortment, are always good natured, and sometimes eccentric.

Chicken Every Sunday will be produced October 12 and 13 at the Woodstock Playhouse. The 22-person cast is under Houston Richards, who directed the Players last year.

Talk Given on Brewery

Few persons understand beer and the brewing process, Warren Christoph of the United States Brewers Foundation said at a meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel. As an example he cited the common misconception that Bock beer is made from the scrapings inside the vats. Actually, he said, it is made with the use of a caramel syrup, slightly toasted. "We could make it all year long," he said, but tradition decrees it be brought out only in the spring.

Japs Plan Super Highway

Tokyo (AP) — The construction ministry has announced plans are under consideration for a super highway linking Tokyo and the city of Osaka. Prime Minister Shigero Yoshida—who recently served in San Francisco as the chief Japanese delegate to the peace treaty conference—said that he would like to see such a project started in commemoration of the signing of the treaty. The projected super highway would cost roughly $160,000 to $190,000.

Dodgers Blow Their Tops, Game, And Maybe the Pennant to Giants

Need Three Wins To Be on Safe Side

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the Brooklyn Dodgers clinging to an end-of-the-branch half game lead over the New York Giants in the torrid National League pennant race, Brook Manager Charlie Dressen today found himself in a mighty ticklish situation, indeed.

The prides of the Gowanus reeled into Philadelphia for tonight's game with the Phillies with this situation facing them:

In order to insure themselves the pennant they must sweep all three games with the Phils over the week-end, assuming of course the New York Giants win both their remaining contests with the Boston Braves in Beantown starting tomorrow.

But . . .

If they lose one and the Giants win two, the race will end in a deadlock, and if they lose two and the Giants win two—woosh, it will be wait-till-next-year. So from the Giants' view, the Durochermen must win their two games with the Braves and hope for an assist from the Phils.

Roe Beaten

After Brooklyn's ace Preacher Roe failed yesterday, absorbing a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Braves, Dressen planned to send Carl Erskine (16-11) against the Phils in the opener. Following him, it could be Don Newcombe and Roe again on Sunday.

Phil Manager Eddie Sawyer will send Karl Drews, an ex-New York Yankee, against the Dodgers in the opener, then follow with Robin Roberts and Bubba Church. None of the three figure exactly to be easy marks.

As for the American League, the New York Yankees are in a position to breathe a little easier, what with their 2½ game bulge over the Cleveland Indians. The Yanks, in fact, can clinch the pennant today if they whip the Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader.

The Sox are ripe, too, after being mathematically eliminated yesterday by the Washington Senators, 8-6. Yank Manager Casey Stengel is taking no chances, though. He's throwing two of his aces against the Sox, Allie Reynolds (16-8) and Vic Raschi (20-10).

The magic number remains two for the Yanks—any combination of two New York triumphs or two Indian losses. The Tribe has two games to play, the Yanks five.

Dodgers Blow Tops

The excited Dodgers really blew their tops yesterday at Umpire Frank Dascoli, who called Bob Addis safe at home with what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. Dascoli cleared the Brook bench and threw out catcher Roy Campanella and Coach Cookie Lavagetto.

He said later he gave Campy the boot because the backstop threw his glove in the air, an act which, he said, calls for automatic ejection.

Roe's third defeat of the campaign was a tough one for a pitcher who has won 22. He was nursing a 10-game winning streak and hoping to better the National League pitching percentage record of 16-2 set by Freddie Fitzimmons in 1940. He can't do it now.

Chet Nichols, a 20-year-old southpaw, stifled the Dodgers with six hits while his mates were tapping Roe for 10. Brooklyn went ahead twice, but couldn't hold its advantage either time. The Brooks scored one each in the first and fourth but the Braves came back with two in the fourth, including a home run by Sam Jethroe.

Then, in the sixth again, Dressen's operatives tallied, only to have the Braves tie it again. Then came the fatal eighth. Addis singled and went to third on Jethroe's single. Earl Torgerson grounded to Jackie Robinson, who tried to get Addis. Dascoli called him safe and that set off the din.

Campanella's ousting was a tough one, because the Brooks had a chance to tie it in the ninth when Pee Wee Reese doubled and went to third on Robinson's infield out. Dressen sent Wayne Terwilliger in to bat for Al Walker, who took Campanella's place. Terwilliger grounded out and Reese held third. Andy Pafko whiffed to end the game.

The Red Sox apparently cracked wide open, losing all three games to the seventh-place Senators in the current series. They now are six games back with five to play. Chuck Stobbs was the victim and Al Sima the winner in yesterday's affair.

Rookie Stops Dodgers

Chet Nichols, 20-year-old rookie southpaw pitcher for Braves, looks a bit surprised himself as he nurses a blistered thumb after hurling team to 4-3 victory over Dodgers in Boston. Brooklyn's pennant lead was thus cut to a slim half game over the idle New York Giants. Nichols outdueled Dodgers' ace Preacher Roe with a six-hitter. (AP Wirephoto)

Avoiding Accidents

Then Came the Argument

Braves' outfielder Bob Addis slides under Dodgers' catcher Roy Campanella to score in eight inning after Earl Torgeson hit to Jackie Robinson at second in game at Boston. Umpire Frank Dascoli calls runner safe and Campanella immediately started argument that eventually led to his banishment along with coach Cookie Lavagetto. This proved to be winning run as Braves took game, 4-3. Later Dodgers in dugout heckled Dascoli and they were banned. (AP Wirephoto)

Boston Police Claim Robinson Kicked in Ump's Door; Jackie Says It Ain't So, but He Knows Who Did It

Boston, Sept. 28 (AP)—Did Jackie Robinson, fiery Brooklyn second baseman, pound and kick the locked door of the umpires' dressing room in a violent rage following the Dodgers' hotly disputed 4-3 loss to the Boston Braves yesterday.

"No," shouted Robinson. "Any body who says I did it is a damned liar."

Did any of the Dodgers assault the barred door, cracking two of its panels, before the arrival of five special policemen to help the regular guard?

"Yes," admitted Robinson. "I know who did it but I'm not saying who."

"I know who did it, too," echoed Brooklyn pitching ace Preacher Roe, victim of the heartbreaking loss that pared the Dodgers' first place lead over the New York Giants to a half game.

"But it wasn't Jackie," added the Preacher. "I'll take an oath on that."

"I don't know who damaged the umpire's door," another Dodger said, refusing to be identified. "But quite a few of our boys either kicked or pounded it on their way to our dressing room."

Cops Name Jackie

Earlier, one of the special policemen had reported that it was Robinson who had done the kicking and pounding.

"Whenever I'm in a crowd and something happens," complained the brilliant Brooklyn infielder, "right away it's me."

Photographs taken of the abused door showed clearly two cracks in the panels, one on the upper half of the door, the other on the lower half.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said in New York he had talked by telephone with two of the four umpires who had worked the game and neither had mentioned an assault on the officials' door.

"I talked with both Frank Dascoli and Bill Stewart," said Frick, "and they said nothing about Jackie Robinson or any other player kicking in the umpire's door.

"I expect, however," he added, "that part of the report if true, will be in my hands soon."

The hectic under-the-stands scene came as a result of the ejection of Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella by plate umpire Dascoli. Campanella had objected violently when Dascoli ruled Bob Addis slid home safely with the run that snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth to give Boston its dramatic victory.

Jones-Boulevard Set For Sunday Battles

Twi League's MVP

Set in somewhat idyllic background is Augie Passante of Highland, the Wiltwyck Motors third baseman who was recently voted the most valuable player in the City Baseball League for 1951. A staunch fielder and hitter, Passante won the coveted honor by a close margin over Tommy Carlino of Jones Dairy.

Gulfmen Need One Game for Title

One of the strangest playoffs in City Baseball League history will be completed on Sunday at the Athletic Field when Boulevard Gulf meets Jones Dairy in a single game that could easily develop into a doubleheader.

Because, if the Dairymen cop the opener, the clubs will stay right on the field and go into a second contest which would be the fifth and final test in the post-season Shaughnessy finals.

Both clubs are expected to shoot the works in the opener and let the nightcap take care of itself.

The Dairymen must win the opener in order to keep their hopes alive and have nominated veteran Tommy Fisher as the "clutch man." Boy and man, Fisher has been one of the greatest pitchers in City League history but he never faced a more crucial test in his life.

Boulevard Gulf, meanwhile, has "Bullet Bill" Tierney thoroughly rested for the big one. Tierney has been the standout flinger of the season and will have plenty of incentive to top off the campaign with a victory.

City League experts expect a tight battle that could be won by something like 1-0 or 2-1. The clubs have twice battled to a 1-1 draw.

The first game has been scheduled for 2:30 p. m. and will be over the usual seven-inning route.

Hoople Sees Rocky Road for Football Forecasters As He Picks First Card

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Egad and halloo!

After a summer of research into Ice Age problems, it is refreshing to the point of exuberance to greet my zillions of readers again with my regular weekly football forecasts.

The business of predicting is going to be especially hazardous and fraught with obstacles this year. Freshmen are playing. The draft board may step in and take any of our moleskin heroes willy nilly. Orders from the Pentagon may alter the rating of a team overnight.

But these are impediments to less hardly souls than your omniscient correspondent who takes them all as they come, and not only calls the turn on the favorites, but names the upsets. This year I have 17 different secret systems. I'll tell you about them later in the season.

In my first forecast, covering 15 important games of September 29, there are few upsets, unless Villanova's victory over the lads from West Point comes under that heading. I am using the hatpin system on these games.

Last season many misled individuals among my readers challenged me, offering to wager I was wrong on certain upsets I selected. Sorry I had to refuse. I will wager on anything and everything under the sun, including the mean rainfall for next April, with one exception: This department will not hazard a wager on which way a football will bounce—heh-heh!

Now, go on and read the forecast:

Maroon Battles Highland High In Home Grid Opener Tonight

Burke Expects Tough Game

The Lineups

RE—Craft	Roumelis (44)
QB—Murphy	York (15)
RHB—Manfro	Roan (21)
LHB—Fiore	Heaton (35)
FB—Carpino	Burdock (11)

Game time is 8 p. m.

Kingston holds a 2-1 edge in the early season rivalry since Bill Burke transferred from the southern Ulster school to K.H.S. in 1946.

Highland has not won or scored a point against Kingston since the 1946 contest. There have been two scoreless ties in the series.

Tender Squad

Although such information is not intended to bring comfort to the Maroon camp, it is a fact that Highland's quarterback is a tender youth of 14 years and the fullback is a freshman.

The background of the series, however, promises nothing less than a rugged workout for Coach Bill Burke's gridders. Except for one year they have never found Highland easy.

The Maroon is expected to start the same lineup that held ponderous Mont Pleasant to a 27-13 decision last Saturday in the seasonal opener in Schenectady.

Kingston showed some fine qualities that day. Although the Red Raiders went all the way with marches of 80 and 58 yards the first two times they got possession, the Maroons refused to get panicky. They fought stubbornly against big odds.

Coach Burke's first string backfield is expected to show Don Murphy at quarterback; Frank Fiore and Pat Manfro at the halfbacks and hard-running Al Carpino at fullback, the key position in the single wing.

Burke indicated earlier in the week that Gene Massa, who will handle all the punting, may be in the starting lineup. The sixth backfield regular is Jim Ferraro, who will do the passing.

The line will have Charlie Tiano and Harry Craft at the wings. Each was on the receiving end of a Massa TD pass against Mont Pleasant. John Barmann and Bob Engle will be at the tackles. Chris Rienzo and Al Kurdt will handle the guard duties with that able workman, "Red" Hinkley at center.

Avoiding Accidents

THESE HUNTERS ARE RISKING A TRAGIC ACCIDENT.

NEVER POINT A GUN MUZZLE CARELESSLY AT A FRIEND OR AT ANYTHING YOU WOULDN'T SHOOT! MANY SPORTSMEN FREQUENTLY BREAK THIS RULE.

DON'T CLIMB FENCES WITH A LOADED GUN. INSTEAD, SET IT DOWN WHERE ITS TRIGGER CAN NOT BE ACCIDENTLY SNAGGED WHILE CLIMBING OVER. HUNTING PALS SHOULD HAND THE GUNS OVER FOR SAFETY.

Then Came the Argument

Braves' outfielder Bob Addis slides under Dodgers' catcher Roy Campanella to score in eight inning after Earl Torgeson hit to Jackie Robinson at second in game at Boston. Umpire Frank Dascoli calls runner safe and Campanella immediately started argument that eventually led to his banishment along with coach Cookie Lavagetto. This proved to be winning run as Braves took game, 4-3. Later Dodgers in dugout heckled Dascoli and they were banned. (AP Wirephoto)

Boston Police Claim Robinson Kicked in Ump's Door; Jackie Says It Ain't So, but He Knows Who Did It

Boston, Sept. 28 (AP)—Did Jackie Robinson, fiery Brooklyn second baseman, pound and kick the locked door of the umpires' dressing room in a violent rage following the Dodgers' hotly disputed 4-3 loss to the Boston Braves yesterday.

"No," shouted Robinson. "Any body who says I did it is a damned liar."

Did any of the Dodgers assault the barred door, cracking two of its panels, before the arrival of five special policemen to help the regular guard?

"Yes," admitted Robinson. "I know who did it but I'm not saying who."

"I know who did it, too," echoed Brooklyn pitching ace Preacher Roe, victim of the heartbreaking loss that pared the Dodgers' first place lead over the New York Giants to a half game.

"But it wasn't Jackie," added the Preacher. "I'll take an oath on that."

"I don't know who damaged the umpire's door," another Dodger said, refusing to be identified. "But quite a few of our boys either kicked or pounded it on their way to our dressing room."

Cops Name Jackie

Earlier, one of the special policemen had reported that it was Robinson who had done the kicking and pounding.

"Whenever I'm in a crowd and something happens," complained the brilliant Brooklyn infielder, "right away it's me."

Photographs taken of the abused door showed clearly two cracks in the panels, one on the upper half of the door, the other on the lower half.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said in New York he had talked by telephone with two of the four umpires who had worked the game and neither had mentioned an assault on the officials' door.

"I talked with both Frank Dascoli and Bill Stewart," said Frick, "and they said nothing about Jackie Robinson or any other player kicking in the umpire's door.

"I expect, however," he added, "that part of the report if true, will be in my hands soon."

The hectic under-the-stands scene came as a result of the ejection of Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella by plate umpire Dascoli. Campanella had objected violently when Dascoli ruled Bob Addis slid home safely with the run that snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth to give Boston its dramatic victory.

Jones-Boulevard Set For Sunday Battles

Twi League's MVP

Set in somewhat idyllic background is Augie Passante of Highland, the Wiltwyck Motors third baseman who was recently voted the most valuable player in the City Baseball League for 1951. A staunch fielder and hitter, Passante won the coveted honor by a close margin over Tommy Carlino of Jones Dairy.

Gulfmen Need One Game for Title

One of the strangest playoffs in City Baseball League history will be completed on Sunday at the Athletic Field when Boulevard Gulf meets Jones Dairy in a single game that could easily develop into a doubleheader.

Because, if the Dairymen cop the opener, the clubs will stay right on the field and go into a second contest which would be the fifth and final test in the post-season Shaughnessy finals.

Both clubs are expected to shoot the works in the opener and let the nightcap take care of itself.

The Dairymen must win the opener in order to keep their hopes alive and have nominated veteran Tommy Fisher as the "clutch man." Boy and man, Fisher has been one of the greatest pitchers in City League history but he never faced a more crucial test in his life.

Boulevard Gulf, meanwhile, has "Bullet Bill" Tierney thoroughly rested for the big one. Tierney has been the standout flinger of the season and will have plenty of incentive to top off the campaign with a victory.

City League experts expect a tight battle that could be won by something like 1-0 or 2-1. The clubs have twice battled to a 1-1 draw.

The first game has been scheduled for 2:30 p. m. and will be over the usual seven-inning route.

Hoople Sees Rocky Road for Football Forecasters As He Picks First Card

Egad and halloo!

After a summer of research into Ice Age problems, it is refreshing to the point of exuberance to greet my zillions of readers again with my regular weekly football forecasts.

The business of predicting is going to be especially hazardous and fraught with obstacles this year. Freshmen are playing. The draft board may step in and take any of our moleskin heroes willy nilly. Orders from the Pentagon may alter the rating of a team overnight.

But these are impediments to less hardly souls than your omniscient correspondent who takes them all as they come, and not only calls the turn on the favorites, but names the upsets. This year I have 17 different secret systems. I'll tell you about them later in the season.

In my first forecast, covering 15 important games of September 29, there are few upsets, unless Villanova's victory over the lads from West Point comes under that heading. I am using the hat-pin system on these games.

Last season many misled individuals among my readers challenged me, offering to wager I was wrong on certain upsets I selected. Sorry I had to refuse. I will wager on anything and everything under the sun, including the mean rainfall for next April, with one exception: This department will not hazard a wager on which way a football will bounce—heh-heh!

Now, go on and read the forecast:

Highland presents a new coach, Don Neff, and one of its youngest squads in history against Kingston High in the renewal of the David and Goliath series tonight at municipal stadium.

Game time is 8 p. m.

Kingston holds a 2-1 edge in the early season rivalry since Bill Burke transferred from the southern Ulster school to K.H.S. in 1946.

Highland has not won or scored a point against Kingston since the 1946 contest. There have been two scoreless ties in the series.

Tender Squad

Although such information is not intended to bring comfort to the Maroon camp, it is a fact that Highland's quarterback is a tender youth of 14 years and the fullback is a freshman.

The background of the series, however, promises nothing less than a rugged workout for Coach Bill Burke's gridders. Except for one year they have never found Highland easy.

The Maroon is expected to start the same lineup that held ponderous Mont Pleasant to a 27-13 decision last Saturday in the seasonal opener in Schenectady.

Kingston showed some fine qualities that day. Although the Red Raiders went all the way with marches of 80 and 58 yards the first two times they got possession, the Maroons refused to get panicky. They fought stubbornly against big odds.

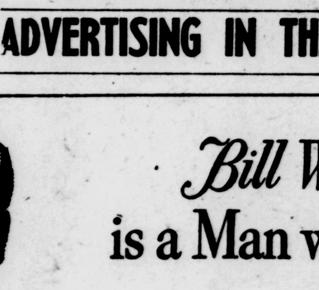

Coach Burke's first string backfield is expected to show Don Murphy at quarterback; Frank Fiore and Pat Manfro at the halfbacks and hard-running Al Carpino at fullback, the key position in the single wing.

Burke indicated earlier in the week that Gene Massa, who will handle all the punting, may be in the starting lineup. The sixth backfield regular is Jim Ferraro, who will do the passing.

The line will have Charlie Tiano and Harry Craft at the wings. Each was on the receiving end of a Massa TD pass against Mont Pleasant. John Barmann and Bob Engle will be at the tackles. Chris Rienzo and Al Kurdt will handle the guard duties with that able workman, "Red" Hinkley at center.

Otto says, "There's nothing like 'Prestone' anti-freeze for my money! One shot lasts all winter, so I put it in and forget about it. I know I'm safe from freeze-ups and boilovers—no matter how cold or warm it gets from week to week. I know of no other anti-freeze that gives the same degree of protection. Dodgers Blow Their Tops, Game, And Maybe the Pennant to Giants

Need Three Wins To Be on Safe Side

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the Brooklyn Dodgers clinging to an end-of-the-branch half game lead over the New York Giants in the torrid National League pennant race, Brook Manager Charlie Dressen today found himself in a mighty ticklish situation, indeed.

The prides of the Gowanus reeled into Philadelphia for tonight's game with the Phillies with this situation facing them:

In order to insure themselves the pennant they must sweep all three games with the Phils over the week-end, assuming of course the New York Giants win both their remaining contests with the Boston Braves in Beantown starting tomorrow.

But . . .

If they lose one and the Giants win two, the race will end in a deadlock, and if they lose two and the Giants win two—woosh, it will be wait-till-next-year. So from the Giants' view, the Durochermen must win their two games with the Braves and hope for an assist from the Phils.

Roe Beaten

After Brooklyn's ace Preacher Roe failed yesterday, absorbing a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Braves, Dressen planned to send Carl Erskine (16-11) against the Phils in the opener. Following him, it could be Don Newcombe and Roe again on Sunday.

Phil Manager Eddie Sawyer will send Karl Drews, an ex-New York Yankee, against the Dodgers in the opener, then follow with Robin Roberts and Bubba Church. None of the three figure exactly to be easy marks.

As for the American League, the New York Yankees are in a position to breathe a little easier, what with their 2½ game bulge over the Cleveland Indians. The Yanks, in fact, can clinch the pennant today if they whip the Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader.

The Sox are ripe, too, after being mathematically eliminated yesterday by the Washington Senators, 8-6. Yank Manager Casey Stengel is taking no chances, though. He's throwing two of his aces against the Sox, Allie Reynolds (16-8) and Vic Raschi (20-10).

The magic number remains two for the Yanks—any combination of two New York triumphs or two Indian losses. The Tribe has two games to play, the Yanks five.

Dodgers Blow Tops

The excited Dodgers really blew their tops yesterday at Umpire Frank Dascoli, who called Bob Addis safe at home with what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. Dascoli cleared the Brook bench and threw out catcher Roy Campanella and Coach Cookie Lavagetto.

He said later he gave Campy the boot because the backstop threw his glove in the air, an act which, he said, calls for automatic ejection.

Roe's third defeat of the campaign was a tough one for a pitcher who has won 22. He was nursing a 10-game winning streak and hoping to better the National League pitching percentage record of 16-2 set by Freddie Fitzimmons in 1940. He can't do it now.

Chet Nichols, a 20-year-old southpaw, stifled the Dodgers with six hits while his mates were tapping Roe for 10. Brooklyn went ahead twice, but couldn't hold its advantage either time. The Brooks scored one each in the first and fourth but the Braves came back with two in the fourth, including a home run by Sam Jethroe.

Then, in the sixth again, Dressen's operatives tallied, only to have the Braves tie it again. Then came the fatal eighth. Addis singled and went to third on Jethroe's single. Earl Torgerson grounded to Jackie Robinson, who tried to get Addis. Dascoli called him safe and that set off the din.

Campanella's ousting was a tough one, because the Brooks had a chance to tie it in the ninth when Pee Wee Reese doubled and went to third on Robinson's infield out. Dressen sent Wayne Terwilliger in to bat for Al Walker, who took Campanella's place. Terwilliger grounded out and Reese held third. Andy Pafko whiffed to end the game.

The Red Sox apparently cracked wide open, losing all three games to the seventh-place Senators in the current series. They now are six games back with five to play. Chuck Stobbs was the victim and Al Sima the winner in yesterday's affair.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting—Sam Jethroe, Braves—hit homer, double and single as Braves defeated Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-3.

Pitching—Chet Nichols, Braves—twenty-year-old rookie stopped the Dodgers on six hits.

Rookie Stops Dodgers

Chet Nichols, 20-year-old rookie southpaw pitcher for Braves, looks a bit surprised himself as he nurses a blistered thumb after hurling team to 4-3 victory over Dodgers in Boston. Brooklyn's pennant lead was thus cut to a slim half game over the idle New York Giants. Nichols outdueled Dodgers' ace Preacher Roe with a six-hitter. (AP Wirephoto)

The business of predicting is going to be especially hazardous and fraught with obstacles this year. Freshmen are playing. The draft board may step in and take any of our moleskin heroes willy nilly. Orders from the Pentagon may alter the rating of a team overnight.

But these are impediments to less hardly souls than your omniscient correspondent who takes them all as they come, and not only calls the turn on the favorites, but names the upsets. This year I have 17 different secret systems. I'll tell you about them later in the season.

In my first forecast, covering 15 important games of September 29, there are few upsets, unless Villanova's victory over the lads from West Point comes under that heading. I am using the hatpin system on these games.

Last season many misled individuals among my readers challenged me, offering to wager I was wrong on certain upsets I selected. Sorry I had to refuse. I will wager on anything and everything under the sun, including the mean rainfall for next April, with one exception: This department will not hazard a wager on which way a football will bounce—heh-heh!

Now, go on and read the forecast:

PASS MASTER

Otto Graham is one good reason why the Cleveland Browns have been a top team ever since they joined the pro football loop. His passing has been consistently sensational and his field generalship is little short of uncanny. But there's nothing uncanny about Otto's choice of anti-freeze for his car. He picked the best! Otto says, "There's nothing like 'Prestone' anti-freeze for my money! One shot lasts all winter, so I put it in and forget about it. I know I'm safe from freeze-ups and boilovers—no matter how cold or warm it gets from week to week. I know of no other anti-freeze that gives the same degree of protection. 'Prestone' brand is guaranteed!"

No other anti-freeze gives the same degree of protection!

Bill Watson is a Man who Cares...

His suit, a smart blue worsted, is by Kuppenheimer, noted for their fine tailoring.

His shirt is a Van Heusen Century, famous for quality, comfort and style.

His drink is made with Carstairs. Its superb quality makes it the choice of a Man who Cares for the finest. He prefers its smooth, mellow flavor, and finds it costs less than other fine whiskies.

His suggestion to you is try Carstairs yourself. At bar, club or at home, you'll find it a better drink at a better price.

Carl Husta, Refusing to Take Sides Agrees Campy Had Right to Pop Off

Dodgers-Giant Playoff Plans

New York, Sept. 28 (AP) — If the National League race ends in a tie between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants, a playoff will begin at Ebbets Field on Monday.

The second and third, if necessary, games of the best of three series would be played at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Former Basketball Ace Fighting Illness

He's not in the best of health, but Carl Husta is still in there when it comes to any of the sports.

Reclining in an easy chair at Orthmann's Sanitarium, the former star of the basketball court and baseball field listened to the Braves taking over the Dodgers yesterday.

He shook his head as umpire Frank Dascoli ruled Bob Addis safe when he slid home between Roy Campanella's legs with the winning run in the eighth.

"I'd like to see that Campanella," said the former favorite of the late Frank Morgenweck's world's champion professional basketball team.

"It's real tough to take one like that without popping off," he added.

"Who are you rooting for?" queried his visitor, Joe Kelly, who handled the press scorebook when Carlie was in his prime.

His answer was: "What's the difference who wins as long as it's a good game!"

Husta, who hasn't been in the best of health for more than a year, finds taking it easy a rougher job than racing down the court for a score.

Sports fans recall his brilliant performances at the auditorium with delight, and long for those good old days when the pro sport flourished in Kingston.

Some of them have been dropping in at Orthmann's, and others have sent cards expressing wishes for his recovery, and the mail is a real stimulant to Carlie.

He may not be the same guy psysically that he was in his heyday, but Husta still has the same old spirit and humor.

"Take that off there, it's bad luck, you'll break a leg before you get out of here," he cautioned Kelly as he tossed his hat on the bed when he arrived.

Still on Hook

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—It'll probably be a month before Don Meade knows whether he'll be permitted to ride again in New York. The State Racing Commission reserved decision yesterday after hearing Meade's plea for a license. Meade was suspended by the Mexican Racing Commission in 1945 for using abusive language against officials when he was charged with foul riding at Mexico City.

California, Notre Dame and Villanova Picked in First Big Games of Season

AP Selector Says Yale Over Navy

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Pushing those hot baseball pennant races aside for a moment to pick the winners in this weekend's football fracases:

California over Penn: The Quakers supposedly are either the best or second best in the east but you can't overlook what California did to Santa Clara last week. The Bears trounced the Broncs, 34 to 0.

Notre Dame over Indiana: Indiana is loaded but the Irish don't make a practice of losing their opening games, especially when they are played at home.

Villanova over Army: The Army remnants lack a defense. They'll score but Villanova will score more.

Yale over Navy: Bob Spears, Yale fullback and captain, loves to run over people. He'll get plenty of chances against the Middies.

Washington over Minnesota: Coaches Odell of Washington and Fesler of Minnesota, are the closest of friends but only Odell will be smiling after the game. Hugh McElhenny to be the star.

Kentucky over Mississippi: Too much Parilli for Ole Miss.

Ohio State over Southern Methodist: Even the coach of SMU says his team will lose by three touchdowns. Why should there be disagreement?

Alabama over Louisiana State: LSU tabs its veteran backfield as the "four workmen." Their job is cut out for them against one of the south's top lines.

Maryland over Washington & Lee: The team that was the 1950 Southern Conference champion gets trampled by the team that may be the 1951 king.

Tonight

Detroit over Houston, West Virginia over Furman, Wichita over Utah State.

Saturday

East: Bucknell over Muhlenberg, Colgate over Buffalo, Cornell over Syracuse, Duke over Pittsburgh, Fordham over Dartmouth, Holy Cross over Harvard, Penn State over Boston University, Princeton over NYU, Rutgers over Lafayette, Temple over Brown.

South: Tennessee over Mississippi, Arkansas over Tempe State, Georgia Tech over Florida, Miami over Tulane, North Carolina over Georgia, South Carolina over the Citadel, Vanderbilt over Auburn, Virginia Military over Richmond, Virginia over George Washington, Wake Forest over North Carolina State.

Midwest: Michigan State over Michigan, Drake over Bradley, Illinois over UCLA, Iowa over Kansas State, Kansas over Iowa State, Missouri over Oklahoma A & M, Nebraska over TCU, Northwestern over Colorado, Tulsa over Cincinnati, Wisconsin over Marquette.

Southwest: Clemson over Rice, Oklahoma over William & Mary, Texas A & M over Texas Tech.

Far West: Oregon State over Utah, Oregon over Arizona, San Francisco over Idaho, Santa Clara over Washington State, Southern California to defeat both Camp Pendleton and San Diego Navy, Stanford over San Jose, Wyoming over Denver.

Women's Senior Title To Miami Golfer

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Walter A. Reynolds of Miami Beach, Fla., won the United States Senior Women's golf title on her second attempt.

Turning in a 36-hole score of 167 in the two-day test over the Westchester Country Club's 5,798-yard course, Mrs. Reynolds won by a stroke over Mrs. Richard Hellman of Scarsdale, N. Y., yesterday.

Defending champion Mrs. Robert B. Meckley of Washington and Mrs. J. Walker Hoopes of Wilmington, Del., twice titleholder, tied for third with 170s.

California, Notre Dame and Villanova Picked in First Big Games of Season

AP Selector Says Yale Over Navy

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Pushing those hot baseball pennant races aside for a moment to pick the winners in this weekend's football fracases:

California over Penn: The Quakers supposedly are either the best or second best in the east but you can't overlook what California did to Santa Clara last week. The Bears trounced the Broncs, 34 to 0.

Notre Dame over Indiana: Indiana is loaded but the Irish don't make a practice of losing their opening games, especially when they are played at home.

Villanova over Army: The Army remnants lack a defense. They'll score but Villanova will score more.

Yale over Navy: Bob Spears, Yale fullback and captain, loves to run over people. He'll get plenty of chances against the Middies.

Washington over Minnesota: Coaches Odell of Washington and Fesler of Minnesota, are the closest of friends but only Odell will be smiling after the game. Hugh McElhenny to be the star.

Kentucky over Mississippi: Too much Parilli for Ole Miss.

Ohio State over Southern Methodist: Even the coach of SMU says his team will lose by three touchdowns. Why should there be disagreement?

Alabama over Louisiana State: LSU tabs its veteran backfield as the "four workmen." Their job is cut out for them against one of the south's top lines.

Maryland over Washington & Lee: The team that was the 1950 Southern Conference champion gets trampled by the team that may be the 1951 king.

Texas over Purdue: That rugged battle with Kentucky last week showed Texas all its weak spots.

Tonight

Detroit over Houston, West Virginia over Furman, Wichita over Utah State.

Saturday

East: Bucknell over Muhlenberg, Colgate over Buffalo, Cornell over Syracuse, Duke over Pittsburgh, Fordham over Dartmouth, Holy Cross over Harvard, Penn State over Boston University, Princeton over NYU, Rutgers over Lafayette, Temple over Brown.

South: Tennessee over Mississippi, Arkansas over Tempe State, Georgia Tech over Florida, Miami over Tulane, North Carolina over Georgia, South Carolina over the Citadel, Vanderbilt over Auburn, Virginia Military over Richmond, Virginia over George Washington, Wake Forest over North Carolina State.

Midwest: Michigan State over Michigan, Drake over Bradley, Illinois over UCLA, Iowa over Kansas State, Kansas over Iowa State, Missouri over Oklahoma A & M, Nebraska over TCU, Northwestern over Colorado, Tulsa over Cincinnati, Wisconsin over Marquette.

Southwest: Clemson over Rice, Oklahoma over William & Mary, Texas A & M over Texas Tech.

Far West: Oregon State over Utah, Oregon over Arizona, San Francisco over Idaho, Santa Clara over Washington State, Southern California to defeat both Camp Pendleton and San Diego Navy, Stanford over San Jose, Wyoming over Denver.

Carl Husta, Refusing to Take Sides Agrees Campy Had Right to Pop Off

Dodgers-Giant Playoff Plans

New York, Sept. 28 (AP) — If the National League race ends in a tie between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants, a playoff will begin at Ebbets Field on Monday.

The second and third, if necessary, games of the best of three series would be played at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Former Basketball Ace Fighting Illness

He's not in the best of health, but Carl Husta is still in there when it comes to any of the sports.

Reclining in an easy chair at Orthmann's Sanitarium, the former star of the basketball court and baseball field listened to the Braves taking over the Dodgers yesterday.

He shook his head as umpire Frank Dascoli ruled Bob Addis safe when he slid home between Roy Campanella's legs with the winning run in the eighth.

"I'd like to see that Campanella," said the former favorite of the late Frank Morgenweck's world's champion professional basketball team.

"It's real tough to take one like that without popping off," he added.

"Who are you rooting for?" queried his visitor, Joe Kelly, who handled the press scorebook when Carlie was in his prime.

His answer was: "What's the difference who wins as long as it's a good game!"

Husta, who hasn't been in the best of health for more than a year, finds taking it easy a rougher job than racing down the court for a score.

Sports fans recall his brilliant performances at the auditorium with delight, and long for those good old days when the pro sport flourished in Kingston.

Some of them have been dropping in at Orthmann's, and others have sent cards expressing wishes for his recovery, and the mail is a real stimulant to Carlie.

He may not be the same guy psysically that he was in his heyday, but Husta still has the same old spirit and humor.

"Take that off there, it's bad luck, you'll break a leg before you get out of here," he cautioned Kelly as he tossed his hat on the bed when he arrived.

Frick Fines Three

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League fined three Brooklyn players—Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Preacher Roe — for causing a scene in front of the umpires' dressing room after yesterday's controversial Brooklyn-Boston game in Boston. Dodger players kicked at the door of the umpires' room after the game. Frick, newly elected commissioner of baseball, took no action against Campanella for his argument with Umpire Frank Dascoli in the eighth inning which led to Campanella's ejection from the game. Robinson and Campanella were fined $100 each and Roe was fined $50.

Neustadt, Germany, Sept. 28 (AP)—More than 100,000 allied troops under French direction kicked off early today on a joint ground-air training assault against "enemy" troops on the east bank of the Rhine. which account for 10 per cent of sales, OPS said.

Actual prices over the country will vary in the 25 zones into which the country has been split for pricing purposes, as they do now because of differences in transportation and other costs.

However, the changes are the same in all zones, and will range from an increase of 29 cents a pound on some cuts to a drop of 20 cents on others.

For the first time, dollar and cents ceilings are set on prime grades which formerly sold at choice grade ceilings. This means the better grade will go up about 4 cents a pound more than under the previous choice ceiling.

The new ceilings were ordered to permit wholesalers to pass on to consumers recent hikes in their own ceilings, those wholesale ceilings, in turn, were boosted to let packers make up losses on tallow and hides which had sagged in price.

OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle promised that his agency's drive for enforcement of beef controls will continue until the industry is convinced "we mean business."

Frick Fines Three

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League fined three Brooklyn players—Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Preacher Roe — for causing a scene in front of the umpires' dressing room after yesterday's controversial Brooklyn-Boston game in Boston. Dodger players kicked at the door of the umpires' room after the game. Frick, newly elected commissioner of baseball, took no action against Campanella for his argument with Umpire Frank Dascoli in the eighth inning which led to Campanella's ejection from the game. Robinson and Campanella were fined $100 each and Roe was fined $50.

which account for 10 per cent of sales, OPS said.

Actual prices over the country will vary in the 25 zones into which the country has been split for pricing purposes, as they do now because of differences in transportation and other costs.

However, the changes are the same in all zones, and will range from an increase of 29 cents a pound on some cuts to a drop of 20 cents on others.

For the first time, dollar and cents ceilings are set on prime grades which formerly sold at choice grade ceilings. This means the better grade will go up about 4 cents a pound more than under the previous choice ceiling.

The new ceilings were ordered to permit wholesalers to pass on to consumers recent hikes in their own ceilings, those wholesale ceilings, in turn, were boosted to let packers make up losses on tallow and hides which had sagged in price.

OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle promised that his agency's drive for enforcement of beef controls will continue until the industry is convinced "we mean business."

Frick Fines Three

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League fined three Brooklyn players—Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Preacher Roe — for causing a scene in front of the umpires' dressing room after yesterday's controversial Brooklyn-Boston game in Boston. Dodger players kicked at the door of the umpires' room after the game. Frick, newly elected commissioner of baseball, took no action against Campanella for his argument with Umpire Frank Dascoli in the eighth inning which led to Campanella's ejection from the game. Robinson and Campanella were fined $100 each and Roe was fined $50.

Neustadt, Germany, Sept. 28 (AP)—More than 100,000 allied troops under French direction kicked off early today on a joint ground-air training assault against "enemy" troops on the east bank of the Rhine. Under aerial support of warplanes representing eight Atlantic Pact nations, the ground troops of three nations — France, America and Holland — moved out to cross the Rhine on pontoon bridges and in assault boats.

which account for 10 per cent of sales, OPS said.

Actual prices over the country will vary in the 25 zones into which the country has been split for pricing purposes, as they do now because of differences in transportation and other costs.

However, the changes are the same in all zones, and will range from an increase of 29 cents a pound on some cuts to a drop of 20 cents on others.

For the first time, dollar and cents ceilings are set on prime grades which formerly sold at choice grade ceilings. This means the better grade will go up about 4 cents a pound more than under the previous choice ceiling.

The new ceilings were ordered to permit wholesalers to pass on to consumers recent hikes in their own ceilings, those wholesale ceilings, in turn, were boosted to let packers make up losses on tallow and hides which had sagged in price.

OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle promised that his agency's drive for enforcement of beef controls will continue until the industry is convinced "we mean business."

Now's the Time to SELL SCRAP!
Scrap prices are high—the nation's steel plants need scrap badly. Chances are you have many dollars worth of loose odds and ends lying around . . . worn-out tools; scrap of all kinds—iron and steel scrap you've long meant to have hauled away. We'll pay you well for every piece. Most important you'll render a vital service to our national defense—and boost the production of steel products you yourself use.
How YOU Can Help in The Scrap Drive
1. Collect every pound of iron and steel scrap—every day!
2. Scrap all machines worn out or broken beyond repair.
3. Pass the word around to your personnel to gather up scrap at home.
4. Sell your scrap to a scrap dealer. He will see that it gets into steel production.
